High Prices Face Three Probes, Taft Announces

Clark Promises Jail for Profiteers As CIO Calls for Return to Control

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Republicans, Democrats, businessmen and the CIO all came out against high prices yesterday.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), announced three congressional investigations.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark ordered investigation of food, clothing and housing costs. He threatened profiteers—if any are convicted—with jail and heavy fines under the antitrust laws.

Blame High Wages

Business spokesmen doubted Clark would find any criminals and said Clark was putting industry on the spot. They blamed rising prices on higher wages, shortage of materials and big demand.

The CIO called on Congress to come back and put price controls in force again.

Congress voted in its closing hours for two price investigations this summer. One, by Taft's Joint Economic Committee, will cover consumer goods and report by next February 1. The other will cover housing.

Taft said yesterday that three economic subcommittees would be on the job by September 15. They are headed by Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), Representative Bender (R., Ohio) and Senator Watkins (R., Utah). The subcommittees will hold hearings in cities throughout the country. The cities will be chosen later.

Sonnett Has Charge

Clark's antitrust investigation will be a Nation-wide affair, under Assistant Attorney General John F. Sonnett, chief of the antitrust division.

Clark recalled yesterday that President Truman last January said one of the worst threats to the country was the gathering of power in the hands of a few big business groups. Mr. Truman said that now, more than ever before, whole industries are run by a few companies, which can hold down production in order to make more money.

Mr. Truman warned, in his mid-year economic report, that prices must be kept down to keep the country prosperous.

Clark said his antitrust investigation would be aimed at these problems.

NAM Protests Views

Food, clothing and housing prices will be Clark's chief target, he said. Where criminal conspiracies are found to blame for high prices, he said, prosecutions will be started. And if the profiteers are found guilty, the Justice Department will ask for jail sentences for all individual profiteers and top fines for all corporations.

The National Association of Manufacturers said Clark's statement was a blow at all industry which would do great harm to the country.

Some prices are out of line, the NAM said, but only in isolated cases, while Clark gives the idea that business in general is to blame.

Other Business Disagrees

The NAM's views were not shared by other business spokesmen reached by the Associated Press in New York. Mostly they said their own skirts were clean and they would be glad to have the price situation aired. They blamed rising prices on the cost of labor and raw materials.

Here are some of their views:

Lew Hahn, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association—"The influence of retailers has been consistently used to create as favorable a price level for consumers as possible under existing conditions."

The National Association of Shirt and Pajama Makers—"The prime thing in clothing costs is the cost of textiles. Attorney Gen-

Lords Assail But Advance Crisis Measure

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—The House of Lords approved by voice vote tonight on second decisive reading the Attlee bill giving the Labor Government almost unlimited powers in dealing with Britain's economic crisis.

The Lords' action on the bill, bitterly assailed by the Conservative opposition as a dictatorial measure, came scarcely 12 hours after the House of Commons sitting throughout the night voted final approval in preparation for recessing tomorrow until October 20.

The vote in the Commons was 178 to 63. Many of the members had gone home exhausted when the vote was taken.

Members of Lords denounced the bill vigorously before bowing to the action in the House of Commons. Before consenting to approval the Marquess of Salisbury, opposition leader, said the Conservatives would press for a special meeting of Lords in three weeks—during the summer recess—to consider any action the government might take under its 'crisis powers."

Final Passage Remains

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison has already ruled out any scheduled session of the Commons during the recess, while leaving open the possibility of recalling both houses in the event of an emergency.

The Conservative motion for a special session is to be presented before the adjournment tomorrow, when the Lords will consider possible amendments to the crisis bill before giving it final passage.

If there are any amendments, the House of Commons will be in session to deal with them. Otherwise the bill will be ready for the Fire Officials Back James In Blast Trial

4 Testify They Would Have Acted as He Did Under Same Conditions

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Four Fire Department officers yesterday came to the support of Capt. William V. James, being tried on charges stemming from an explosion at No. 18 Engine House July 17.

One of the officers was Battalion Chief William C. Rees, James' immediate superior, who conducted an investigation after the explosion, which occurred while a boiler was being cleaned with a mixture of gasoline and oil.

All the witnesses testified that they would have acted exactly as James did under the same circumstances.

Charges Against James

James is charged with jeopardizing the lives of his men, failure to exercise proper judgment, and failure to insure the safety of personnel and property.

The officers, called as defense witnesses, also declared that they did not consider James guilty of the charges and testified that the suspended engine house commander enjoyed a reputation of being one of the most efficient firemen in the department.

Besides Rees, those who testified in James' behalf were: Battalion Chief John L. Werheim, Sixth Battalion; Battalion Chief H. F. Harding, Seventh Battalion, and Capt. Paul Grisso, No. 4 Truck Company.

Defense Attorney Renah F. Camalier, stressing earlier testimony that there was no commercial cleaning fluid available in the Fire Department storage room, asked each witness:

Each Approves Action

"Under the same circumstances, would you have acted as did Captain James?"

Each answered in the affirmative.

Then Camalier asked the witnesses if they considered that James jeopardized the lives of his men, used poor judgment, or failed to insure safety of personnel and property.

Each of the officers answered with an emphatic "no."

Rees testified that he was or-

...ain Threat Given Clegg, Wife Reports

Unidentified Man Appears at Home, Warns Post Employe Who Accused Police

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A guarded but personally delivered threat of violence or death to Julius Willie Clegg, 26-year-old Negro war veteran, was reported to police yesterday by his wife and her sister-in-law.

Clegg, night employe of The Washington Post, recently identified two city detectives as men who beat him during the 34 hours he said police of the First Precinct held him without charge.

The threat, they said, was made in midafternoon, Monday, at the 21st st. home by an unidentified white man, who turned and walked quickly away.

The incident was reported yesterday to Detective Chief Floyd A. Truscott, who took statements from the two. He promised Clegg's attorney, Roger Robb, "complete protection for your client and his family."

Truscott Promises Protection

Truscott, Robb said, promised that the Clegg neighborhood would be given special attention and that the family would be adequately protected.

Identity of the two detectives has been withheld and the men have not been suspended pending a full investigation of Clegg's story. The Post employe complained he was picked up by police on suspicion of molesting a white woman and was never permitted to call his employer or his home until his release without charge 34 hours later.

As a result of Monday's threat, the Clegg family said, the employe of the production department of The Washington Post did not report for work that night.

Mrs. Gussie Mae Clegg, wife, in her statement to police declared:

"I was sitting in my living room about the time between 2 and 2:30 yesterday afternoon when someone knocked at the door. I answered, and there was a white man standing there, wearing a dark brown suit, tan shoes, dark shade glasses, face was cleanly shaven, brown hair, and his clothes seemed to be of good quality.

Makes Threat, Disappears

"He said in a low tone, 'Tell Clegg if he doesn't know what will happen to him, he had better not go to The Washington Post to work tonight.' He turned back then and walked away rapidly. That is all."

Substantially the same testimony was given by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Mabel Berry, of Norfolk, Va., who was visiting there at the time.

Both told police they did not believe they could identify the man because of the dark glasses and the brief moment he faced them. They said they did not report the matter Monday night because Clegg did not get home from a conference with Attorney Robb until after 6 p. m., they had no telephone, and the nearest public telephone was more than four blocks distant.

Hungarian Official Talks Mother of 2 Out of Bridge Leap

A woman who had quarreled with her husband on the eve of their twelfth wedding anniversary was talked out of a death leap from the Calvert st. bridge over Rock Creek yesterday.

Desider Ajtai, of the Shoreham Hotel, who arrived in Washington last week as a member of the Hungarian government's surplus property purchasing agency, told police he saw the woman sobbing at the bridge railing.

He talked with her, heard of the quarrel with her husband and of her intention to jump. Ajtai kept her in conversation while another passerby called police.

The woman, 29, mother of two, was taken to Gallinger Hospital.

Mrs. Truman and Margaret To Fly to Rio With President

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman will be accompanied by the First Lady and Miss Margaret Truman on the forthcoming trip to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, the White House announced yesterday.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, in making the announcement, said that the exact time of departure was still to be settled. Earlier it had been stated that Mr. Truman would leave either late this month or early in September.

The trip down to Rio will be made by air, presumably on the new presidential plane, Independence, and the trip back aboard the battleship USS Missouri.

Marshall Leaves Today

Secretary of State Marshall, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Warren R. Austin, American representative to the United Nations, who head up the United States delegation to the Inter-American Confernce for Maintenance of Continental Peace and Security at Rio, are scheduled to take off for off for the Brazilian capital at 9 o'clock this morning. They will travel in the Sacred Cow, until recently the presidental plane.

Prsidnt Truman will be at the Air Transport Command terminal to see the party off, the White House said.

The Rio Conference, which opens Friday in the luxurious Hotel Quintadinha, has been called to draft a formal treaty in which the American republics will pledge themselves to repel an aggressor against any one of them.

"Marshall Plan" Proposed

President Truman is expected to address the conference in its closing days. Secretary Marshall and Senator Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, also are expected to make important declarations.

In Rio yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch, there

Andrews Field Bomber Hits Trainer, 4 Die

Army Planes Collide Over N. H. Golf Club, Crash in Flames

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 12 (U.P.). An A-26 attack bomber and an Army training plane collided over the Manchester Country Club late today and plunged to the ground in flames, carrying at least four persons to a fiery death.

Officials at Grenier Field said the A-26 was en route here from Andrews Field, Md., with a crew of three men. The AT-11 trainer was on a routine training flight from the Army Air Base at Bedford, Mass.

Witnesses said they heard a "rumbling noise" and looked up in time to see burning fragments of the planes showering earthward.

The fuselage of the AT-11 plumetted into the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Stone, narrowly missing children who were at play. The twisted wreckage of the plane burned briskly.

The attack bomber fell into a field near the Manchester to Boston road on route 101, where raging flames from leaking gasoline kept would-be rescuers at a distance.

Officials said the heat was so intense and the planes so damaged that immediate recovery of bodies was impossible. Identity of the victims was withheld by Army officials pending notification of next of kin.

Paraguayan Capital Girds For Defense

Refugees Cross Border as Rebels Menace Asuncion

Buenos Aires, Aug. 12 (AP).—Some Paraguayan refugees arriving at Clorinda, Argentina, reported today that President Higinio Morlingo's forces in Asuncion, the capital, were preparing strong points on the upper floors of the Bank of Paraguay, and the ministries of finance and public works in the event the rebels break into the city.

Morinigo

An Associated Press dispatch from Asuncion said the Paraguayan government "categorically denied" it had left the capital and gone to Pilar, 120 miles southwest of Asuncion on the Paraguay River. Sources in Buenos Aires friendly to the government said yesterday they had received word that Moringo and his government had fled the capital.

Both Claim Victories

Among 600 refugees arriving at the border city of Clorinda were both opponents and supporters of the government. Clorinda, a city of 5000, has 18,000 refugees living in tents, it was reported. Government opponents said they came out under safe-conduct passes and that foreign missions in the Paraguayan capital were trying to get all their refugees to Argentina so they would have room for govern-

Children May Drink Liquor But D. C. Won't Say 'Cheers'

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West's opinion that parents can legally help their children to drinks at District bars stirred up a hornet's nest of controversy throughout the city yesterday.

These developments followed:

1. The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, startled at the sudden reversal of a 13-year policy, said it may recommend to the Commissioners that ABC laws be strengthened to prohibit delivery of drinks to children in any manner.

2. Both the Washington Restaurant Association and the Taverns Owners Association said their members would continue to refuse service to minors, despite West's opinion such service is legal if drinks are delivered first to parents and are paid by parents.

3. The Rev. Leonard S. Edmonds, head of the Social Welfare Department of the D. C. Federation of Churches, attacked West's opinion as inconsistent "with the intention of the law or of the public that demanded its enactment."

4. West steadfastly maintained his interpertation reflected the intent of Congress when it passed the law and advised parents to teach their children how to drink in their homes.

5. Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent at St. Elizabeths Hospital, agreed West's advice to parents was "pretty sound" but said barrooms were not proper places to take youngsters.

6. Miss Virginia Clary, director of social work at Juvenile Court, said West's ruling might well open the door to more juvenile delinquency here. "It's something all of us are concerned about," she declared.

West ruled Monday that minors could legally drink in District bars providing they didn't order the drinks, pay for them, or have the waiter set the drinks in front of them. It is all right, he said, for adults to order drinks and give them to the minors.

Alan W. Payne, chairman of the ABC Board, said a special board meeting was planned for today to study the law and West's new interpretation. He said Mrs. Agnes K. Mason, third member of the board, was being called back from her vacation to attend the meeting.

The ABC Board has interpreted the law to mean that minors may not drink in bars here, regardless of how they obtain the drinks.

Americans, British To Discuss Ways To Increase Output 100,000 Tons Daily

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

British and American delegates opened discussions here yesterday designed to raise production of German coal as a necessary first step in the economic recovery of Europe.

Yesterday's 30-minute opening session was devoted to amenities between heads of the delegations and to reaching an agreement that the talks would not be restricted to the sole question of mining techniques. Thus, according to Willard L. R. Thorp, assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, "any problem" which bears directly on coal production in the industrially rich Ruhr would be considered.

Thorp and Sir William Strang, political adviser to the British commander in chief in Germany, later told a news conference that no agenda for the meeting had yet been drawn. They said the conference would be divided into technical subcommittees to consider specific details and that no plenary sessions were in immediate prospect.

The sessions are being held at the State Department Conference Building, 1778 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Three Major Problems

Both Thorp and Strang declined to commit themselves on whether socialization of the Ruhr mines would be discussed at this conference. A measure strongly opposed by the United States as dangerously experimental when production should be regarded as the only issue. The British some time ago agreed to postpone socialization of the mines but the question has frequently cropped up since that time.

Three principal problems face the conferees, problems which must be resolved before Ruhr coal production can be raised from the current 200,000 tons a day to the 300,000 tons "hoped for" in recent statements by United States authorities. These problems are food, management and transportation.

As to food, Ruhr miners at present are receiving 4000 calories daily but their families are limited to the 1000 calories prevalent throughout the British occupation zone. The result has been that the miners have turned much of their food over to their families, leaving themselves still without an adequate diet. The suggestion has been made that this difficulty might be solved by establishing an 1800-calory level in the Ruhr.

Management Held Faulty

Management has assumed prime importance since the present operators have achieved little more than half the prewar production of the mines. Methods suggested have included setting up German directors from both the British and American zones, or installing a one-man management, with expert technical advisers provided in either case.

Transportation, which strictly limits production by limiting its distribution, has become a bottleneck by virtue of great destruction of German trackage and rolling stock. However, since steel is needed to rebuild railways and coal is vital to the production of steel, there exists a vicious circle which probably will have to be broken from the outside.

Mining machinery actually in the pits was little damaged by the war, requiring only minor replacements.

Other details which must be considered by the conference, though not so important as food, management and transportation,

American Deputy Accuses Russia

HERSCHEL JOHNSON
"Greece is in grave peril"

Vetoes by Russia Will Not Prevent Outside Action, Council Is Told

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 12.—The United States served blunt notice today that it is ready to join other countries in direct action to defend Greece from Communist domination if the United Nations Security Council and the United Nations General Assembly fail to do the job.

The tough warning, handed to the Council by Herschel V. Johnson of the United States, opened a new and drastic phase in the Balkan dispute, which hit an impasse two weeks ago with the Soviet veto of the majority-supported American plan for a U. N. commission to keep order along the northern Greek frontier.

It threatened, first, to lift the case from the Council, where it has been bogged down since June 26, to the General Assembly, where there is no chance for the Russians to use a veto.

Ominous Alternative

Then, in case the Assembly does nothing, there is the ominous alternative stated this way by Johnson:

"The continued failure of the Security Council to take effective action in this case because of the Soviet veto cannot, in the opinion of the United States Government, preclude individual or collective action by states willing to act, so long as they act in accordance with the general purposes and principles of the United Nations."

The American delegatee prefaced his warning with the strongest attack yet on Greece's Soviet-dominated northern neighbors—Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania. And he closeed it with a new resolution that accuses the three states of threatening peace by supporting guerilla war on the royalist Greek government.

Called Threat to Peace

The council already has before it an Australian resolution that blames none of the four Balkan countries for the chotic state of affairs, but calls the situation a threat to peace and provides for observers along the frontier between Greece and her neighbors to supervise the restoration of order.

Johnson promised to withdraw the new American proposal if the Austraian plan is acepted, but it apperas certain that the Russians wil veto both of them. The Soviet bloc has steadily opposed any U. N. surveilance of the area and has blamed all the trouble on the Greek government.

The American statement landed with a heavy impact on the Council, which had just received a report of complete failure from the seven-nation subcommittee set up last week to find a way out of the deadlock between the American and Soviet positions.

Greece in 'Grave Peril'

Johnson opened up with the charge that Greece is in "grave peril" from the guerilla warfare being waged by "Communist-led bands actively supported by Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia and by the Communist Party of Greece."

"It is perfectly clear that the governments of the three northern countries are working in close conjunction with the Greek Communists with a common objective: the establishment in Greece of a minority, totalitarian government which would be subservient to the Communist-controlled countries," he said.

Then he turned to the Soviet veto of the American plan, which was supported by nine of the

Greeks Torn By Civil War, Writer Finds

Tale of 'Invasion' And 'International Brigade' Exploded

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Yannina, Epiros, Aug. 12.—The outside world is undoubtedly puzzled by the calm that has followed the "foreign invasion" here in July.

Nothing further has been heard of the operations of an "international brigade" that reportedly came from Albania and attacked Greek forces in this vicinity. In July, Gen. Napoleon Zervass, chief of the Greek forces, was issuing communiques telling of the "invasion" and the full scale fighting hereabout.

So I came to Yannina to find out what actually happened. I have talked with leading personalities on both sides; the general commanding the Yannina division of the Greek army; the Governor General of Epiros and his deputy; the chief of the gendarmerie police, and, by a fortunate chance, to guerilla leaders.

This investigation convinces me that

1. There was no "invasion."
2. There was no "international brigade" on Greek soil.
3. There is a full-fledged civil war in Epiros and Macedonia, aided and abetted by northern neighbors.

It is an established fact that there were no Albanian or Slav troops, as such engaged in the "invasion." The Albanian or Slav nationals captured in the fighting around Yannina can be counted on the fingers of one hand.

But there is evidence that the Greek guerillas are being trained by foreign officers in Albania and Yugoslavia and that there has been a distinct change in methods of conducting civil war here in the past three weeks. Now guerillas are marching on roads and are equipped with heavy mortars, machineguns, and other modern weapons. No longer are they fighting behind trees and rocks and stealing single file through the mountains.

There were not more than 1500 guerillas involved in the widely publicized attack near Yannina on July 11. General Zervass' com-

Richmond, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—Delegates Edwin Lynch of Fairfax will be certified as the Democratic nominee to succeed himself in the House of Delegates, members of the State Board of Elections announced today.

The board members said the Fairfax County farmer-realtor would be certified after his name was drawn out of a hat by Matt G. Anderson of Goochland, chairman of the Virginia State Board of Elections. Lynch and Robert J. McCandlish, a former delegate, received 2853 votes each in the August 5 primary and under State law a tie primary vote is decided by lot.

Chairman Anderson, blindfolded, reached into the hat which contained the names of Lynch and McCandlish and Lynch's name was drawn.

The Fairfax candidate smiled when he heard his name read, but insisted that he would have no objection to a recount being conducted if the Circuit Court of Fairfax County so directs.

A petition was filed Friday by McCandlish, who was not present at the drawing today, in which he requested a recount and Lynch later fined a similar petition. Both candidates make no charges of irregularities, but base their plea simply on the chance that a mechanical error may have been made in the tally from the county's 26 precincts.

McCadlish had been notified of today's proceedings and the draw-

U. S. Pastors Say Yugoslavia Is Victim of Falsification

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 12 (AP).—After a two-week tour at Yugolav government expense, seven American Protestant clergymen issued a joint statement today saying they found Yugoslavia to be the victim of misrepresentation and falsification abroad.

"What we have seen has made us deeply conscious of the misrepresentation and outright falsification which are today provoking ill will toward Yugoslavia, whose story, stripped of political and ecclesiastical propaganda, ought to receive a sympathetic and informed interest of world opinion," said the statement, signed by all the members of the party.

In the party are Dr. Guy Emery Shipler of New York, editor of the magazine Churchman; the Rev. William Melish, associated rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn; the Rev. Emory Bucke, editor of the Zion's Herald; the Rev. George Buckner, editor of the World Call of the Disciples of Christ; Dr. Samuel Trexler, president of the Lutheran Synod of New York; Claude Williams, director of the Peoples Institute of Applied Religion, Birmingham, Ala., and Philip Elliott of the First Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn.

The group will leave by plane tomorrow for Prague, where it will break up. Some will return home directly. Others plan to visit further in Europe.

The statement said the clergymen were permitted to move freely and talk with whomever they pleased without supervision by government officials, and that they talked to many people and visited many churches throughout are housing, finance and the determination of allowable exports to the rest of Western Europe.

Finally, although French representatives are not sitting in on the conference, France is greatly concerned lest restoration of Ruhr production should amount in fact to restoring Germany's war potential. That is a question difficult of solution, since all industry, even production of the fertilizer necessary to agriculture, is useful in making munitions.

It was expected, in line with recent United States notes, that France would be informed of progress and decisions and that French views would be received and given weight.

The British delegation, headed by Strang, consists of Sir Mark Turner, adviser to the German department of the Foreign Office; Brig. D. I. Anderson, deputy to the chief economic executive of the British zone in Germany; F. H. Harrison, director of the mining division of the British zone; H. Collins, chief technical adviser to the mining division; H. E. Gilchrist of the British Foreign Office; Hubert Penson, adviser on German affairs at the British Embassy here.

American Delegation:

Headed by Thorp, the American delegation includes Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall; Maj. Gen. William H. Draper, economic adviser to the American zone in Germany; Charles E. Saltzman, special assistant to the Secretary of State; Max Forester, chief of the coal section, economic division, American zone; C. Tyler Wood, deputy to the Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs; and James H. Stillwell, special assistant to the Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs.

Thorp said he could venture no guess as to the length of the conference. He said he hoped it might conclude its work in "a couple of weeks."

Balloon Cosmic Ray Instruments Sought by Police

Philadelphia, Aug. 12 (AP).—Police in Pennsylvania and neighboring states were asked today to search for cosmic ray detection instruments on balloons that reached a height of more than 125,000 feet.

While radio transmitters gave the height achieved in the ascension tests of four balloons, Martin A. Ponzerantz of Franklin Institute said the new cosmic ray findings at that altitude have not yet been analyzed.

The balloons were sent up last Thursday. They were last heard from as they drifted below the horizon at aproximately 16,000 feet.

Reds to Probe Hermine Death

Berlin, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Russian authorities have indicated they will press an inquiry into the death of Princess Hermine, which United States Army criminal investigation division agents dropped because no Americans were involved, an American authority said today.

Princess Hermine, 59-year-old widow of Kaiser Wilhelm II, died Thursday at Frankfurt-on-the-Oder in the Russian zone amid a maze of family intrigue revolving around efforts of her son and daughter to obtain the lion's share of the five-million-dollar German crown jewels she possessed.

U. S. Moves To Support Italy Regime

By the United Press

The United States is ready to launch a new program of "Truman Doctrine" economic aid to the non-Communist government of Italy, diplomatic officials revealed yesterday.

Public announcement of the new program is expected tomorrow.

It is said to call for the transfer of 21 surplus Liberty ships to the Italian merchant fleet. An estimated 45 million dollars in Italian assets, seized in this country at the outbreak of war, also would be "unfrozen" to enable Italy to make purchases of American goods.

In addition, the United States is expected to write off an Italian debt of 540 million dollars for food furnished to Italian civilians by the American Army, and for Lend-Lease relief supplies already shipped to Italy.

Agreement on new American aid to Italy was reached after three months of negotiations here between State Department officials and Italian diplomats.

Diplomatic sources said the agreement was in line with the American policy of giving Italy all possible assistance in its efforts to maintain a non-Communist government in office—a policy evolved after President Truman's historic address to Congress requesting authority to extend economic aid to Greece and Turkey.

Dutch Keep Up Drive, Foe Charges

Batavia, Java, Aug. 12 (AP).—An Indonesian communique charged tonight that the Dutch were conducting a large-scale military campaign in western Java aimed at seizing control of important mountain passes and rich rubber and tea plantations.

This latest Indonesian accusation that the Dutch were failing to abide by the cease-fire order of the United Nations Security Council came on the heels of a similar Netherlands charge.

A Dutch army communique said Dutch troops had captured orders of the Indonesian Republican army for an attack on a Dutch camp on Sumatra issued after a truce became effective a week ago yesterday.

The Indonesian communique asserted that in the week following the cease-fire order Dutch troops had launched attacks with parachute troops, artillery and tanks along the Bandoeng-Jogjakarta railway. Many casualties occurred among the civil population, the Indonesians said.

The Netherlands communique asserted that the Republican army orders dated August 8 were captured when Republican troops tried to infiltrate a Dutch camp at Baugin, near Padang on the west coast of Sumatra.

In addition the Dutch reported an attack by 350 Republicans near Mangli, in north central Java. The Dutch admitted casualties in repelling the Indonesians.

Yesterday Indonesian deputy premier A. K. Gani said the situation was "impossible" and predicted Republican attacks would be intensified. He blamed Dutch insistence on mopping-up operations in territory they seized up to August 4 for the situation.

Reliable sources said three British consular officials and a Dutch civilian fought off a 90-minute attack by 30 Indonesians Sunday at a weekend resort 60 miles southwest of Batavia. One of the attackers was slain.

A dispatch from Jogjakarta quoted authoritative sources as saying that the Indonesian cabinet had sent to U. S. Consul General Walter P. Foote a restatement of its desire for appointment of an international arbitration commission to work out a final settlement with the Dutch.

U. N. Invites Indonesians

Lake Success, Aug. 12 (AP).—Over vigorous opposition from Britain, France and the Netherlands, the United Nations Security Council late today invited Indonesian representatives to take part in its discussions of the Dutch-Indonesian conflict. The vote was 8 to 3.

Sutan Sjahrir, former premier of the Indonesian Republic, who had sat in the spectators section during the long debate, was invited to the council table immediately. He was accompanied by Indonesian Foreign Minister Hadji Agus Salim.

The three delegates who voted against were France, Britain and Belgium. The Netherlands, although leading the opposition, is not a member of the Council. The negative votes of Britain and France did not count as vetoes, since the question was considered as a matter of procedure.

Navy Finds CPO Guilty of Beating Fellow Prisoners

New York, Aug. 12 (INS).—Navy Chief Signalman Harold E. Hirshberg was found guilty today by a Navy court martial of beating other American prisoners of war in a Japanese prison camp.

Hirshberg was acquitted on several other charges, the most serious that he informed on a fellow prisoner who then was killed by the Japs.

He faces a possible maximum term of one year in prison and dishonorable discharge. Sentence is delayed until appeals have been followed through.

Hirshberg was convicted of "striking and assaulting" Navy Chief Carpenter's Mate George N. Garboury and Chief Boatswain's Mate Robert Welch.

Council's 11 members and was rejected only because Russian Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko cast one of the two votes against it. The plan would have settled the issue peacably and would have given Greece the protection she needs, Johnson said.

"It becomes all too clear that the veto is being used in defense of the aggressions of Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria," he said.

In spite of the almost inevitable Soviet veto on the Australian and American resolutions that are now before the Council, Johnson urged that they be voted upon. A majority decision on either or both, regardless of the veto, would provide "a powerful impetus for formal action by the Assembly," he said.

It was then that the American delegate looked beyond the Assembly to outline the lengths to which the United States is ready to go in pressing the matter in case no effective action is taken.

"The Government of the United States will not sit idly by while the territorial integrity and political independence of a member of the United Nations are challenged," he said.

"We do not consider that our obligations or the obligations of the United Nations in this regard are ended merely because the Soviet Union sees fit to use her veto to block the passage of constructive proposals desired by nine out of 11 members of the Security Council which would have afforded Greece the protection the Charter guarantees to her and would have helped to restore peaceful conditions in the Balkans."

The United States, he added, will not hesitate to exhaust every available means within the framework of the Charter of the United Nations" to keep peace and give the Greeks any protection they may need in the future.

U. S. Diplomats in New Session On Europe's Economic Crisis

By William J. Humphreys

Paris, Aug. 12.—Europe's economic crisis convoked the State Department's leading continental representatives in Paris today for the second time within a week.

Will Clayton, Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, and Lewis W. Douglas, Ambassador to Britain, both flew here to join Jefferson Caffery, Ambassador to France, for a brief review of the latest developments in the European situation.

Germany Main Topic

The conference behind closed doors in the Paris embassy was called for a roundtable discussion of all phases of the continental economic problem, informed sources said, but they added that the forthcoming three-power conference on increasing Germany's industrial production was a likely major topic.

It was thought that the latest information on British and French intentions at this three-power meeting were reported by Ambassador Douglas and Ambassador Caffery.

The French, who hold that Germany's industrial level may be increased in French industry is not penalized, now are said be weakening on their demand that the Ruhr must be internatinalized.

The importance of western Germany's coal and steel area to European recovery is regarded as paramount by Washington. The American position is said to be that American dollars cannot be used further to support a Germany stripped of the Ruhr.

To feed the Ruhr population, the British must import dollar food, an operation that she is finding intolerable in view of the fact that her dollar credits for imperative needs at home are dwindling rapidly.

France, whose food situation is better thanks to her large agricultural population, also is facing exhaustion of her dollar credits needed for machinery to reequip her industries and for wheat to replace last winter's freeze losses.

These problems are being discussed daily in Paris at the 16-nation committee of European Economic Cooperation, which is drafting a self-help program to be incorporated within the four-year program of the Marshall Plan.

Commenting on the committee's work thus far, Sir Oliver Franks, British delegate and chairman, said today that the final assets and requirements report would be ready for Washington's scrutiny by September 1, as originally planned in July.

He added that the British crisis served "the purpose of reminding countries other than the United Kingdom of the seriousness of the situation." Asked about Britain's wishes to be relieved temporarily of pound sterling convertibility into dollars and to restore temporarily empire trade preferences to protect her money, the former university professor said slowly:

"A number of other countries will be forced to take measures in the coming months which they do not embrace with pleasure."

Hughes Flies Home, But Row Goes On

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

From Maine to California hot breezes fanned up the Howard Hughes dispute yesterday while at every United States port a stop order was out to prevent Johnny Meyer, Hughes' publicity man, from leaving the country.

Meanwhile, Hughes, the airplane builder, who stopped a Senate committee in its tracks, jauntily flew out of Washington yesterday for his California home.

Frank Dow, Acting Commission of Customs, said he had instructed customs collectors at all ports to stop Meyer.

The pudgy party-giving public relations man is wanted—or was wanted—by the Senate War Investigating Committee which was inquiring the 40 million dollars in war contracts held by his boss.

New Subpena Issued

A new subpena was issued for Meyer when he disappeared as soon as the first one expired but Meyer couldnt 'be found.

It was because the peripatetic public relations many couldn't be located to testify again about his lavish expense accounts for entertaining Government officers that the fantastic Hughes hearings were called off abruptly Monday, according to Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) subcommittee chairman.

Meanwhile the International News Service, almost simultaneously, reported (1) Meyer was in Guatemala and (2) Meyer was in New York, enjoying himself at his accustomed night club haunts.

At any rate, Meyer doesn't appear to be in Washington, where his luggage is still remaining in his room at the Statler Hotel.

There were these other developments in the Hughes row yesterday:

1. Democrats, who charged the inquiry was political, and some Republicans were thinking of ways to kill off the committee headed by Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) when Congress comes back next January.

2. Others, including Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), a member of the committee, urged improvement in Congressional rules governing all investigations.

3. Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) predicted that laws governing lobbying would be tightened as a result of the inquiry, and took a slam at the so-called Pan-American Airways "monopoly" bill, of which Brewster is one of the sponsors.

4. The Wyoming Democrat said that the bill was dead as a result of the row between Brewster and Hughes, over the latter's accusations that Brewster tried to "blackmail" him into favoring the bill.

Parting Shot at Brewster

5. Hughes left behind a parting shot at Brewster. He said the Maine Senator had been promised the Republican vice presidential nomination by Pan American's "supercharged political machine" if he got the "community airline" bill through Congress. The charge was made in a transcription prepared for the broadcast locally by Radio Station WINX.

6. Senator James Murray (D., Mont.) called for a Senate investigation of its own investigations—"I'm serious about that"—and said the Brewster Committee inquiry was "just another inquiry to smear every witness that takes the stand."

7. From his home in Maine, Brewster kept firing broadsides back at his critics. Murray, he said, "has been trying to stop the committee for a long time."

8. At the airport Hughes told waiting marshals that Meyer wasn't with him. He told reporters he supposed Meyer would be on hand if the hearings resume as scheduled on November 17. "I suppose he'll be back or he'll be in jail," laughed Hughes. "I guess if Ferguson gets hold of him that will be something."

9. Still hanging over the head of the unlucky Meyer, whose lavish expense accounts for entertaining Army officers and Government officials, notably Elliott Roosevelt, were spread on the record, is not only a possible contempt charge but a threat of prosecution on draft charges.

10. The Senate Committee already has referred evidence regarding Meyer's deferments to the Department of Justice.

Dow said the customs office was requested by the State Department to "take up" Meyer's passport if he tried to board any outbound ship. Under wartime legislation still in effect the State Department has authority to prevent use of passports by any individual sought by a law enforcement agency.

Members on Vavation

Some of the top members of the Senate Wer Investigating Committee staff were reported on vacation last night, which is taken as one indication the search for Meyer is not being pressed very hard.

In response to Hughes' charges on Ed Hart's Forum over WINX last night that Pan American had promised to help Brewster become President in return for aid on the community airline bill, Brewster declared:

"We've just begun to fight."

Beseiged by well wishers at Washington National Airport Hughes setled himself at the controls of his converted B-23 and remarked:

"This feels a lot better than the hot seat I've been in for the last week."

Enlistments In Army Show Gain in July

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The War Department yesterday reported an upsurge in enlistments during July, giving promise that the Army can be kept at strength under the volunteer system.

Total enlistments for the month were 27,093—highest since last January and nearly double that in May. Officials expressed gratification at the results and credited new enlistment policies and an intensified recruiting program as responsible.

"We're very happy over the July rate," Maj. Gen. W. S. Paul, Army personnel chief, told The Washington Post. "The really healthy thing is the fact that during the last 10 days of the month the number of volunteers ran over a thousand a day and that we are now getting long-term enlistments."

School End Boosts Recruiting

If the present rate can be continued, America's unprecedented attempt to maintain a volunteer Army of one million men will prove a success. There were many skeptics when the Administration and Congress decided last winter to scrap selective service and rely on volunteers.

With the draft still on the books, though not in operation 35,000 men enlisted in January. The total dropped to 16,000 in April—first month after the law expired—and 15,000 in May.

The end of the school year helped June recruiting, and 25,000 men volunteered. Officials had feared a drop in July, with longer term enlistments in effect.

July Total Still Short

Even the 27,093 total last month i sa bit short of requirements. An average influx of some 30,000 men each month is required to maintain a 1,070,000-man Army.

Moreover, the Army started the new fiscal year on July 1 with a deficit of approximately 100,000 men, after the last of the draftees were released. This loss must be made up.

However, the men replacing these "shortimers" signed up for longer periods. A total of 22,869 enlisted for three years, 3349 for two years, 131 for four years and 744 for five-year "hitches."

Four Factors Cited

Paul credited the July upswing to four factors:

1. The intensified "selling" program recently launched by the Army recruiting service, employing modern salesmanship and advertising techniques.

2. Permitting men to enlist for duty in Europe—under limited quotas. Waiting lists of men within the Army wanting European duty has barred such service to recruits.

3. Allowing former servicemen who volunteer for three-year enlistments to have one year of duty in any Army area in the United States they select.

4. Reopening of enlistments to Negroes—closed for months due to an excess over established quotas.

General Paul said that the Army recruiting service planned to shift its emphasis from the job of getting new recruits to stimulating reenlistments.

Prisoner Who Bragged He'd 'Kill Cop' Retaken

French Type Bathing Suit Ruled Legal

THE FRENCH-STYLE SUIT
In it is Joan Gordon of Miami

A policeman could do nothing more than turn his head if he saw a woman in a French "wooshwoosh" bathing suit saunter in front of the White House.

It might be unfashionable but it is not illegal, said Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, who handles "indecent exposure" cases in Municipal Court.

He looked up the law on it yesterday, and said that probably only a G-string is mandatory.

"As a matter of fact," said King, "it is questionable whether we could prosecute her if she left off the —er— halter, brassiere, or top, whatever you call it."

Open-shut Case

King said that it has been two years since a woman has been prosecuted in court for indecent exposure of any kind.

"In that case, we were sure. She wasn't wearing anything and the judge gave her a $200 fine. She said she was cooling off," King related.

King said that the Indecent exposure law did forbid a person from being seen in public without his loins covered. A fine of $250 and a 90-day jail sentence is provided.

But before you get down to a couple of fig leaves as a remedy for Washington's heat waves, heed this caution by King:

Might Be Riotous

"If that woman in the French bathing suit was pretty enough, we'd probably get her for inciting a riot."

But, in case you were worried, King will assure you that the women of Washington are within the law when they walk around town with open midriff dresses and loll around the parks getting an almost-over-all tan.

"It might be immodest, but we don't have the kind of laws here that can stop them," he said.

139 Charges for Jury Slow Eisler Passport-fraud Trial

The Gerhart Eisler passport-fraud trial ran into a snag yesterday when lawyers in the case handed Justice James W. Morris 139 instructions they want him to give the jury.

The District Court jurist disposed of 89 of the instructions. Court will resume at 10 a. m. today, when the justice will hear discussion on the rest.

Meanwhile, prosecution and defense are attempting to reach agreement on whether they should bring Stewart Smith, identified as a Canadian Communist, here from Toronto.

A Government witness, Manning Johnson, identified a picture of Smith as that of a man he met with Eisler and Earl Browder in 1933. Johnson said Smtih was pointed out to him as Sam Carr, another Canadian Communist, when Eisler allegedly was working closely with the Communist Party of America. Carr was then in jail, the defense avers.

In another action yesterday, Justice Morris rejected for the sixth time a defense petition to throw the case out of court. He overruled defense motions for a directed verdict of acquittal and a mistrial.

Justice Morris ruled it was for the jury to decide whether Eisler, as the Government charges, intended to conceal Communist Party membership, aliases and previous visits to this country when he tried to obtain an alien exit permit in 1945.

When discussion over the 139 instructions and the matter of Smith's testimony is concluded, final argument in the case is scheduled to begin before the jury.

Alexandria Council Approves $50,000,000 Electrical Plant

Alexandria City Council, in special meeting last night, amended its zoning ordinances to permit erection of a proposed 50 million dollar electric plant there.

The plant, to be constructed and operated by the Braddock Electric Light and Power Co., in the northeast waterfront sector of Alexandria, is expected to be erected over a period of years beginning this fall.

To permit its construction, the council unanimously adopted a resolution changing maximum building height of 72 feet in Class E, industrial sections, to a new maximum of 125 feet.

H. G. Thielscher, mechanical engineer for the power company, explained that the proposed plant calls for erection of five units, each containing furnaces 100 feet high. He said the company is prepared to spend up to $150,000 on smoke-elimination features.

The councilmen also amended zoning regulations in class D-2, commercial areas, permitting erection of buildings up to 85 feet (eight stories) on streets of a maximum width of 100 feet. The change was made to provide for a proposed eight-story office building to be erected next to the George Mason Hotel.

Air Traffic Rules Revised to Increase Safety With Liberalized Provisions for Helicopters

By the United Press

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday issued a general revision of air traffic rules to increase safety and included liberal provisions for helicopter operations because of their special characteristics.

The new rule book specified that conventional airplanes may not be flown lower than 1000 feet above the highest obstacle in congested areas. The regulation previously was 1000 feet above the ground.

Helicopters were exempted from this rule, however, as well as from others governing operation of the less maneuverable fixed-wing aircraft. The board recognized the "flying windmill's" unique ability to slow down or hover and to accomplish emergency landings in a relatively small space.

The 18 pages of regulations, effective October 8, resulted from a year's study by Government and industry and represented a codification and strengthening of existing air traffic rules.

Helicopters, or rotary wing aircraft, had received no special regulatory recognition previously however and consequently had been bound by the same rules applying to conventional planes.

Now the unconventional craft, used in such diverse ways as search and rescue, seeding and mail carrying within cities, may be flown as low as desirable over congested and uncongested areas providing the operations are without hazard to persons or property on the ground and allowance is made for possible emergency landing.

The CAB said the rules were issued to provide changes and clarification in the interest of safety, to cover helicopter operations, to govern operation of planes on the water's surface and to provide certain essential minimums for instrument flight.

Rules were laid down for taxiing aricraft on the water.

2800 ARE KILLED AND INJURED every day on our streets and highways! Shocking as these conditions are, they won't be checked as long as all sorts of people—including reckless drivers, drunkards, morons and mere children—can obtain drivers' licenses almost at will.

You'll be startled at the ease with which POST writer David G. Wittels, using fake names to prove his point, obtained permits from 14 states by mail without even a pretense of a driving test. You will find that all 48 states have road tests of less than half the time prescribed by safety experts.

And you'll begin to understand why, despite improved automotive safety devices and super-highways, cars kill or injure over a million Americans each year. To see how State Licensing Bureaus help manufacture accidents, be sure to read . . .

Full-Fledged Civil War Rages In North Greece, Writer Finds

muniques indicated a full scale "invasion."

From what I have been able to nail down, there were nine guerilla battalions of about 150 men each.

But there can be no doubt that civil war is continuing here and that it will go on until satisfactory general amnesty terms are accepted by both sides.

On the day I arrived in Yannina, the notorious guerilla leader, Charissos Sdravass— reported killed on numerous occassions by the Greek Press—attacked the town of Elepherteron, 40 miles east. He entered the town with 50 bandits, captured 17 horses and an unaccounted number of women and left after one hour for Distraton, near Palevsteni.

The Sdravass band killed Anthony Kalikas on this raid. Kalikas allegedly failed to distribute UNRRA relief. This gives this guerilla leader a Robin Hood dash of glory.

While driving northeast from Yannina on August 6 I noticed army trucks bringing back wounded gendarmerie soldiers. I learned bandits had blown up a small wooden bridge on the road to Protrikalla and on a high mountain range between Epiros and Macedonia.

The only person I encountered up here who placed any credence in the formation of an international brigade was a Britisher who claimed he knew such an organization was trained at Bari, Italy.

Of all unlikely places to train such a force, Bari, under American and British scrutiny seems to me to be the most unlikely. But Greeks hate Italians so violently that this makes easy and effective propaganda.

As it stands today, small bands of guerillas are keeping government troops busy with sporadic raids. Citizens are being killed by raiders if they refuse to help them. If they do help they are arrested by the government when the raid is over and thrown into concentration camps on barren islands.

War is not over for the miserable people of Greece.

Submarine Rescues Pilot, Saves Plane

New London, Conn., Aug. 12 (AP). Rising to the surface shortly after its periscope sighted a pilot, who had dropped into the sea, the Submarine Finback today rescued the flier and aided in salvaging his small airplane.

The pilot, Godfrey J. LaPalme, was picked up in Long Island Sound and brought to the submarine base here, where his condition was reported as good.

Million Cut From Voting List, Hungarian Party Charges

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 12 (U.P.). Opposition Smallholders Party leaders charged today that more than one million Hungarian voters had been struck from the ballot lists for the August 31 election by electoral committees, many because they "belonged to the opposition."

Reliable reports said the Smallholders newspaper, Kis Ujsag, attempted to publish the reasons given for disenfranchisement, but was prevented by the government. The newspaper was edited by Bela Kovacs before he was imprisoned by the Russians on charges of conspiracy.

Smallholders officials said that about 22 per cent of the 4,800,000 who voted two years ago had been disenfranchised. In some large Budapest apartment houses, they said, all inhabitants had been eliminated from the lists.

It was understood that protests were made to the Communist Minister of the Interior, Laszlo Rajk, who promised that not more than 250,000 would be stricken from the lists. Rajk was said to have promised also that the electoral committees would publish lists of all voters.

(In the November 4, 1945, elections the Smallholders Party won 222 seats in the National Assembly, while the Communists ran a poor second with 70 seats. The assembly is composed of 409 elected members and 11 appointed members.)

The Smallholders' paper, attempting to report the election list scandal, boldly splashed the electoral committees' reasons for depriving voters of their ballots. The story appeared in the first edition, but was quickly suppressed by the government. The paper acceded to a government "request" that the papers already on the street be withdrawn from sale.

Observers pointed out that there are provisions for appealing the election committees' rulings, but the procedure is long and varied. Few disenfranchised persons were expected to wade through the red tape.

the country. At no time, they said, had they the impression that there was suppression of religion. They said they talked to many Catholic priests ,and only in a few cases—three or four—did the priests refuse to comment.

Referring to the recent State Department ban on American tourist travel in Yugoslavia, the churchmen said that when they applied for visas at home they were informed transportation in Yugoslavia was poor and the safety of Americans could not be guaranteed.

"We will deny categorically," said Dr. Shipler, "that American citizens cannot travel safely in Yugoslavia."

Melish said the group found no evidence of forcible mobilization of youth brigades for the construction of Yugoslavia's youth railway.

The statement said the party came here expressly to investigate reports in the American press that Archbishop Alojczic Stepinac, convicted of collaboration with the Nazis, was starving in prison and not allowed to worship. They said they talked with the Roman Catholic prelate for 20 minutes and he told them his food was good, his health was good and he was able to say mass daily in the room next to his cell.

Paint Thieves Get $706 Haul; Hotel Robbery Nets $86

Paint thieves—who got $706 worth—and a hotel bandit, who tapped the Potomac Hotel till for $86, were sought by police yesterday.

The paint, 266 gallons and one quart, was taken from the John Davis garage at the rear of 427 12th st. se., over the weekend, Davis reported yesterday.

Gordon W. Steadman, night manager of the hotel, at 800 18th st. nw., told police an unmasked man entered the lobby about 3:30 a. m., asked for a room, and sought change for $5.

Then he reached into his coat pocket as though getting a pistol and walked out with the contents of the cash drawer.

Five Battalion Fire Chiefs Are 'Rotated' to New Areas

John Kay John Werheim H. F. Harding
Three of five fire chiefs transferred in "routine rotation."

"Routine rotation" of five battalion fire chiefs was announced last night by District Fire Chief Clement Murphy.

The moves, scheduled for September 1, brought guarded comments of "retaliation" from friends of three of the battalion chiefs who are ordered to leave more desirable "downtown" posts for less active districts.

Chief Murphy announced the transfers of:

John L. Werheim, from the 6th to the 5th District.

Harold F. Harding, from the 7th to the 3rd.

Millard H. Sutton, from the 6th to the 3rd.

Joseph W. Kay, from the 5th to the 6th.

One Post Open

The transfers, along with the pending retirement of Battalion Chief A. J. Lipske of the Third District, leave one vacancy, in No. 7 District, Murphy declared. He said he was submitting the name of a candidate to that post today for action by District Commissioners. He declined to name his choice.

Chief Murphy said he called in each of the battalion chiefs to be transferred and spoke individually with them. None, he said, voiced any objection to the changes.

The Fire Chief said the rotating of battalion chiefs is for the good of the system, in that it gives each "the overall experience in handling the different fire conditions in the districts."

Chiefs Werheim and Sutton, he said, have had "plenty" or downtown experience; Harding's experience has been about "half and half," and Kay and Davis "have never had downtown experience."

Three Signed Petition

None of the transferred chiefs would comment officially though one said the downtown men were "being sent to Siberia." He complained bitterly that "this is a fine way to end a career, being sent out with the deadwoods."

It was recalled that Chiefs Werheim, Harding and Sutton all signed a petition last year charging that the morale of the fire department was reaching new lows under the command of Chief Murphy. Charges in the petition were referred to the District corporation counsel, where they were said last night to be still under study.

Besides announcing the transfers yesterday, Chief Murphy also disclosed that he had notified the Civil Service Commission and asked for lists of eligibles to fill department vacancies of one fire captain, two lieutenants and two sergeants.

Battalion Chief Lipske, who has been on sick leave, has formally applied for retirement but action on the request had not been completed yesterday.

Fire Officers Back James

dered by department headquarters to investigate and make a report on the blast.

"I submitted the report to Deputy Chief Mayhew the next morning. It wasn't accepted, and I had to stay in his office and make it all over again," Rees declared.

Rees told The Washington Post that his first report contained no recommendation and that was why he was ordered to make out another report. He said the second report contained a recommendation, but he would not reveal what it was.

Captain Grisso testified that, to the best of his knowledge, it was common practice to use crankcase oil for cleaning boilers.

"I believe a mixture of gasoline and oil is the same as crankcase oil since the latter contains up to 30 per cent gasoline," he said.

Earlier, James testified that there was no crankcase oil or commercial cleaner available.

"Adhered to Practice"

"So I adhered to the common practice of mixing gas and oil," he said, citing a 1939 memorandum signed by O. P. Fearn, then superintendent of machinery for the Fire Department.

(The memorandum read in part: "Gasoline is a universal solvent. I know of no other material which can be used for this purpose which can be secured at a cost not prohibitive. . . . Where a fire hazard exists, little gasoline or no gasoline should be used."

(When the blast occurred an open coal stove was burning about 12 feet from the boiler.)

James told the court he had never received instructions as to how a boiler should be cleaned.

He admitted under cross-examination that he knew gasoline vaporizes at room temperature.

Learned a Lot, He Says

"I have learned a lot since the investigation started on July 1," the officer said.

"If you had it to do over again would you give the same orders," asked Prosecutor Edward Beard.

"I can't see where they would be materially changed," James answered.

After the testimony of Chief Harding, the trial was adjourned until 10 a. m. tomorrow. The one day's recess was at request of defense counsel, who had another case pending. The proceedings are being held in the No. 16 Firehouse, 1018 13th st. nw.

Eccentric Tennessee Preacher Leaves $25,000 Estate to Mrs. Roosevelt

Greenville, Tenn., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The Rev. A. B. Starnes, who often called Franklin D. Roosevelt "the greatest man who ever lived," left his entire $25,000 estate to the widow of the late president, the probate of his will disclosed today.

Starnes, who died last week at the age of 71, named President Roosevelt as executor in the will drawn in 1941. County Judge S. W. Doty said a new executor would be named.

Mrs. Roosevelt had not been apprised of her legacy, which included all of Starnes' 150-acre tobacco, corn and wheat farm except a five-acre tract where he built his church and preached every Sunday.

The mildly eccentric Starnes prided himself on being a staunch Democrat in this predominantly Republican section of eastern Tennessee. Whenever he came to town he would sing the praises of President Roosevelt. So far as his neighbors knew, he had never met Mrs. Roosevelt.

The only stipulation in the will was that Mrs. Roosevelt should erect a monument, not to cost more than $200, over Starnes' grave and care for the grave as long as she lived.

The only relative mentioned in the will was a niece, Mrs. Paul Jones of Fredricksburg, Va., who received permission to live in the Starnes' farmhouse during her lifetime without paying rent. Two brothers in Greeneville and a sister in California were ignored.

The tall, slender pastor of the Starnes Sunrise Church (independent denomination) was regarded as a curious character by his neighbors.

Heat, Shortages Cut Auto Output

Nearly 43,000 Workers Idle in Detroit Plants With Temperatures in Mid-Nineties

Detroit, Aug. 12 (AP).—Passenger car production continued at low level again today as final assembly lines in the plants of four companies remained idle and production by others was hampered by materials shortages.

All told nearly 43,000 workers were idle as Ford and Studebaker final assembly operations remained at a standstill and Chrysler Corp. closed its Chrysler and De Soto division lines following walkouts the management attributed to excessive heat.

Temperatures in the mid-nineties were reported as Chrysler sent home approximately 6750 workers.

Ford recalled 32,000 manufacturing employes today but did not reopen the assembly lines. The assembly operations will be resumed tomorrow when 19,000 more hourly rated workers are recalled. Studebaker, with 10,000 workers affected, has not indicated when production will be resumed.

Ford and Studebaker closed their final assembly lines when supplies from the strike-bound Murray Corp. of America ran out. Ford expects to resume limited output with body components and other parts normally obtained from Murry, purchased from other suppliers.

At Murray 7000 workers have been idle almost three weeks in a dispute in which the CIO United Auto Workers' Union is demanding contract clauses providing exemption from certain stipulations of the Taft-Hartley Labor Law.

No progress was reported today in negotiations between the Murray management and the UAW-CIO. Prior to today's conferences Murray President C. W. Avery asserted that while the management had offered six proposals that would give the union a degree of immunity from damage suits for unauthorized strikes, the union had demanded an unqualified agreement not to sue.

There was no union comment on the Avery statement.

Clinton, Mich., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—An uneasy peace returned today to this village of 1100, split by a battle between the United Auto Workers (CIO) and the Clinton Machine Co., where 500 workers were back at their jobs under State police protection.

State police rushed to the scene when 200 workers smashed through the picketlines in a flying wedge led by Don Thomas, 200-pound forme football star and company president, yesterday.

Fresh violence threatened by pickets against those who had joined the back-to-work movement was averted by a worker stratagem of staying in the plant overnight. The workers also were fed inside the building.

Some 300 workers, who were said to include almost half of the 650 who struck July 29, went peacefully into the plant today. Picket lines were skimpy, with 56 State Troopers stationed nearby to prevent new fights.

Match Company Struck

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Diamond Match Co. was hit by a strike today.

Seveen members of the Operating Engineers Union (AFL) walked out in support of contract wage demands and 200 members of the Matchmakers Union (AFL) refused to cross the two-man picket line.

Owners of British Cinemas Appeal to Attlee, Insist They Need U. S. Films

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—The owners of Great Britain's 4500 motion picture theaters declared today they "cannot continue" without Hollywood pictures.

They urged the Labor government to reconsider the 75 per cent tax on foreign film earnings, which provoked American film companies to embargo all shipments of feature pictures and short subjects to Britain.

"Is it your deliberate intention to obliterate the British film industry?" the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association asked Prime Minister Attlee in a letter published after an emergency meeting.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Hugh Dalton, rejected in the House of Commons a suggestion advanced by Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, and others that the tax violated terms of the $3,750,000,000 American loan agreement.

Minor Toping Arouses City

"The board's interpretation of the law in the 13 years of its existence has never been questioned by licensees or their attorneys," Payne pointed out. "Furthermore," he added, "the assistant corporation counsels assigned to the board haven't challenged it and have even written the formal citations where dealers have been reported selling to minors."

"It's the intent of the law and the whole community that minors should not receive alcoholic beverages in any publicly licensed place," he added. Drinking by children will not increase here "if we can help it," he promised.

West said he hadn't issued a previous opinion on the subject because it had never before been challenged. "I don't know why under the sun it took 13 years for somebody to challenge it," he asserted.

He said it "apparently didn't dawn on" the members of his staff assigned to the ABC Board that there was no provision in the law prohibiting drinking by a minor.

West issued the opinion at the request of ABC after attorneys for the Mayflower Hotel Corp. asked the board to dismiss a "sale to minor" case.

West urged parents to teach their children how to drink. He said they should keep alcoholic beverages in the home, "to take the mystery away from them," should drink moderately themselves to set a good example, and should teach the children about the disgrace which accompanies over-indulgence.

Dr. Overholser said, "I don't know about Mr. West's law, but his advice is good. Drinking is so nearly universal in this country that the average individual mixing in society is going to come into contact with it.

"In such a situation, it's far better to have youngsters growing up with a sane and normal approach to drinking," he added.

On the other hand, Dr. Agnes B. Greig, a private child psychiatrist, found West's advice "quite shocking." She said she didn't agree with his assumption that drinking is something all youngsters are going to do.

"Healthy teen-agers enjoying a good life don't like to drink," she maintained. "Lots of youngsters today don't think it's smart to drink. Children like to feel protected by parents whose standards are fair."

The Rev. Mr. Edmonds observed that "placing a third person, an adult, between the bartender and the minor sets up an easy channel of supply and would seem to nullify the effectiveness of the law."

Edward N. Myles, president of the Tavern Owners Association, said he welcomed "the ruling in so far as it absolves us of being held responsible where an adult orders alcoholic beverages and then slips the drink to a minor."

"But we positively do not condone drinking by minors in our establishments," he added. "If we find any minors drinking, we will refuse to serve the adults with them, or the minors themselves."

Lords Approve Crisis Measure

royal assent which makes it law.

Although he indorsed Conservative charges that the bill gives "Hitler-like totalitarian powers" to the government, Lord Salisbury advised his followers to "allow the government to introduce such proposals as seem to them appropriate to deal with the difficult situation."

The Laborite Lord Chancellor, Lord Jowitt, questioned whether the crisis bill gave the government any authority it does not already have under a 1945 act which extended for five years the defense powers in force during the war.

Lord Beveridge, famed for his wartime "cradle to grave" security law, said the bill was framed in "totalitarian terms."

Churchill to Broadcast

Lord Teviot, a Conservative, declared:

"It would create in this country an enormous feeling of hope if tomorrow we woke up and found that Winston Churchill was Prime Minister, and he was followed by his team of intelligent men to deal with this economic situation."

The Conservative Central office announcement that Churchill would broadcast to the nation Sunday at 9:15 p. m. (4:15 p. m., EDT.).

Lord Jowitt declared the government would not even consider taking such a step as nationalization of the iron and steel industry under the emergency powers.

"If and when we decide to do this, we shall come to Parliament with a straightforward bill to show what we are doing," he pledged.

Specifically the bill gives the government wide powers to direct the economy so that the "whole resources of the community are available for use, and are used, in the manner best calculated to serve the interests of the community."

The Liberals won a legal guarantee that the powers would not be used for "suppression or suspension" of the press.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Judge Considers Case of Beer Transported Into Maryland

Trial Magistrate William Wheeler, in Silver Spring Police Court, yesterday took under consideration a plea of "illegal search and seizure" in a case involving transportation of liquor into Montgomery County, Md., in excess of the amount permitted by law.

Kimmon Jones, whose address was given as 300 Ritchie ave., Silver Spring by the arresting officers, who claimed a Washington address, was arraigned on charges of bringing in untaxed liquor. Detective Sergt. James M. Anderson and Stanley Harding testified that they saw Jones purchase 3 cases of beer and five fifths of whisky in a Washington liquor store and that they arrested him when he drove his car into Maryland.

Jones, through Attorney Paul D. Taggart, contended he was a resident of Washington and intended taking the liquor back to Washington to a party later at night. He also argued that the arrest was the result of illegal search and seizure without a search warrant or a warrant to arrest.

State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson replied that the officers had observed a misdemeanor being committed in their presence and did not need a warrant to arrest. The detectives said the license plates on Jones' car was listed to the Ritchie ave. address. Montgomery County law prohibits bringing more than two quarts a month, one quart at a time, into the county.

Similar charges against Leslie Young, Linden, Md., and Russell Brown, janitor at 3943 Newdale st., Chevy Chase, Md., arrested by Detective Corpl. Frank Briggs, were continued pending decision in the Jones case.

Alexandria Girl, 10, New Polio Case; Area Total Now 11

A 10-year-old Alexandria, Va., girl is being treated for polio at Children's Hospital, the Health Department revealed yesterday.

Health officials said this was the eleventh actual case in Greater Washington this year. Although a total of 13 cases have been reported, two were subsequently determined to be other diseases, they explained.

The girl, whose home is in the 300 block of Cameron st., Alexandria, was reported "doing very nicely" at Children's Hospital. She is the second Alexandria case this year.

Other Greater Washington cases include four in Montgomery County, one of which resulted in death; three in the District, and two each in Prince Georges and Arlington Counties.

Wife Killed In Fall After Hug on Porch

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—Joseph V. Weislo, 22, sat on the porch rail of his second floor apartment, eating ice cream.

Mrs. Anna Marie Weislo, his 17-year-old wife, walked to him, threw her arms about him and leaned over to kiss him.

Weislo lost his balance and toppled over the rail, his wife grabbed him and was dragged over with him.

Mrs. Weislo died of a fractured skull several hours later.

Her husband was released from a hospital after treatment for severe bruises.

Mrs. Weislo's body was sent to the Joseph H. Chalk funeral establishment at Woodside, Long Island, N. Y., for services and burial.

Prince Georges Awards Street Contracts

Two contracts for street and roadway improvements were awarded by the Prince Georgoes County Board of Commissioners to the James Gibbons Co., of Relay, Md., yesterday. Action on a third was withheld pending approval by citizens of the area.

The contracts awarded call for resurfacing and realigning of two thirds of a mile of Temple Hills rd. between St. Barnabas rd. and Bergdoff rd. at a cost of $25,730.28 and construction of a bridge over Charles Branch on the Marlboro-Croome Station rd. at a cost of $17,255.

The Gibbons Company also was low bidder with $23,517.70 for surfacing all streets in Special Improvement District No. 27, Lanham Heights. The commissioners instructed County Engineer Arthur W. Tayman to discuss the proposal with Lanham Heights citizens and report their desires at next week's board meeting, when action will be taken. This work would be financed through an assessment on residents of the Special Improvement District.

'All Aboard for Marshall Hall' . . .

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S CRUISE—Patsy Robinson, 9, of 733 Richmond ave., Silver Spring, Md., is welcomed aboard the SS Mount Vernon by Ben Rodins (left), 4607 Connecticut ave. nw., arcade operator, who was host to 75 crippled and handicapped children yesterday on a cruise down the Potomac to Marshall Hall and back. Police Lieut. David McCutcheon, one of the officers of No. 1 Precinct stationhouse who used their own cars to drive the youngsters to and from the wharf, carries Patricia Dion, 6, of the East Potomac Park Tourist Camp. The children, from Children's Hospital and social service lists, gave the river boat its most appreciative passenger list of the season

As early as 1830, bachelor guests at the Greenbrier Hotel resort at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., were assigned to cottages formally called Wolf Row.

Three School Board Members In Arlington Seek Reelection

Three of the five members of the Arlington County school board will run for reelection in November.

Their action—just under the midnight (EST) deadline for filing—brought to 13 the number of candidates in the race for five seats on the county's first elected school board. Five others announced their candidacy yesterday, while another five had filed previously.

Four new candidates for the county board election also entered the ring, bringing that total to nine.

The current school board members who filed were Mrs. Lucy G. Bussey, John M. Stewart and William Montgomery Smith.

Other school board hopefuls who beat yesterday's deadline for filing by eleventh hour action, include Ernest T. Gearheart, jr., local attorney; Ralph M. Kimble, County Republican Committee secretary; Ernest C. Betts of 2628 S. Fern st.; Dr. Charles P. Cake, Arlington physician, and Roger B. Sprigg, a local certified public accountant.

The five who filed after indorsement by the Arlington School Board nominating conference were Mrs. Edmund D. Campbell, Colin C. MacPrerson, O. Glenn Stohl, Barnard Joy and Curtis E. Tuthill.

The four new candidates for the county board are: Lawson Wimberly, a member of the Democratic executive committee from Virginia Highlands precinct: Jacob C. Bechtel, a resident of Glen Carlyn precinct; Millard P. Divine, 4015 N. Washington blvd., and Robert W. Gaines, local real estate man.

Already announced as county board candidates are T. Oscar Smith, Lincoln Mackey, Mrs. Florence Cannon, F. Freeland Chew and Harry W. Cuppett.

Incumbents in the two seats which have attracted the nine candidates are Chew and Cuppett.

Falls Church Up in Air on Water Boost

Arlington authorities were uncommunicative yesterday on what probale action will be taken regarding an appeal from Falls Church for additional water.

At a meeting of the Falls Church town council Monday night, J. H. McCarthy, head of the town's water and sewer department, told the council he could get no definite answer from Arlington authorities on the proposal.

County Manager A. T. Lundberg of Arlington, who has been authorized by the county board to confer with Falls Church and Fairfax officials on the question, said yesterday he was mailing another letter on the subject but he did not disclose its contents.

McCarthy told the town council that failure of Arlington to sign an agreement providing for the additional water is holding up two large housing projects.

Buliders of the houses on the Greer and Westcott tracts have applied to Falls Church for water for use in the near future.

Theater Stands Firm on Its Racial Policy

The National Theater announced yesterday it will continue its ban on Negro patrons until discrimination elsewhere in the city is eliminated.

Marcus Heiman, president of the National's operating company, threatened a switch from legitimate stage to "some other form of entertainment," if pressure necessitates. It is understood Heiman was referring to a possible switch to the showing of motion pictures.

Heiman said the National would change its present for-whites-only policy only if—

1. The general discriminatory policy here is changed by law.
2. Business and civic groups here revoke racial restrictions.

"We will remain steadfast in our position and be reconciled to the final outcome," Heiman said.

Contract Ban Sought

Heiman's statement, released here by National Theater Manager Edmund Plohn, came in midst of negotiations in New York in which Actor's Equity is seeking contracts with producers banning appearances here until the National lifts its race ban.

Thirty-seven Broadway producers, including Oscar Hammerstein, Ruth Gordon and Richard Rodgers, announced last week they would sign such a contract, taking exception to the League of New York Theaters opposition to the proposed clause.

Heiman's statement referred specifically to the negotiations with Actor's Equity.

"Local and national groups," he said, have gone on record in statements to the effect that once they break down the policy of the National Theater in Washington, they will go after other places locally and nationally.

"Therefore, we will not be coerced into doing anything which may affect others.

To 'Remain Steadfast'

"We will remain steadfast in our position and be reconciled to the final outcome.

"Let others build theaters or do anything they please. If we cannot get plays because of actors' unions, we will eliminate presenting them and offer some other form of entertainment."

National Manager Plohn said Heiman, by the last statement regarding other "form of entertainment," probably meant a switch to showing of motion pictures.

Under terms of the proposed Actors' Equity contract now under negotiation, the actors' organization would not stop plays from coming to the National before June 1, 1948.

The forthcoming season, therefore, would not be affected.

Heiman, president of E Street Theater Corp., is a former president of the New Fork Theater Owners League with which Actors' Equity is negotiating.

Playless Washington

We cannot believe that the management of the National Theater is so insensitive to its economic future that it will willingly doom Washington to a playless existence merely to enforce what it mistakenly believes is a dictate of "local custom" with respect to admissions. Yet the evidence is mounting that this is precisely what is in prospect. Thirty seven New York producers have announced that they will sign contracts requested by Actors' Equity barring performances in Washington after next summer unless in the interim the prohibition against Negro patrons is relaxed. This comes on top of similar boycotts by more than 50 prominent individual members of the Dramatists Guild. Now a special meeting has been called of the League of New York Theaters to reconsider the League's earlier stand opposing the antidiscrimination movement. All in all, the outlook is that unless the National management takes quick stock of its own self-interest, Washington fare soon will consist only of second-rate productions or worse.

In explaining its resistance on the ground that it conforms to local practice, the National management is clinging to a myth. With its monopoly on professional stage productions here, the National sets whatever pattern there is. That is why the theater has a public responsibility, and why the sort of pressure now being exerted is eminently justified after other means have failed. As a matter of fact, there is plenty of evidence that in Washington auditoriums the National policy is far from the general rule. There is no distinction as to patronage at various outlying summer theaters, at the Catholic University theater, at the Watergate or at the numerous governmental events. Thus it is untrue that the National is being singled out as a "testing ground" in relaxing the color bar. The ground already has been tested, and, not surprisingly, without riots, miscegenation or hard feelings.

Jabberwocky

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet representative to the United Nations, has once more demonstrated the impossibility of securing any all-inclusive agreement on the control of atomic weapons. His tirade in reply to a factual and dispassionate article by Frederick H. Osborn, deputy American representative to the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission, seems to close the door to hope. His accusations that Mr. Osborn distorted Russia's position, that he wrote incoherently and without regard for fact, can be passed over as of little significance. But the utter sterility of the Russian policy, as outlined by Moscow's chief spokesman on this subject, is a source of profound disappointment to everyone who has hoped to see effective international control of this earth-shattering weapon established.

Apparently Mr. Gromyko's purpose was to stir up such a flood of confusion as to divert attention from Moscow's flat refusal to join in any international atomic controls that would be worthy of the name. He repeated, for example, a previous statement to the effect that the Soviet plan calls for "the establishment of control and inspection over all facilities from mines to plants for the production of final atomic materials immediately after an appropriate convention is concluded and an international control organ established." Other delegates have tried by every conceivable means to find out whether Moscow contemplates that this "inspection" would be carried out in each country by its own nationals or would be directed solely by the proposed international atomic commission. But Mr. Gromyko has no answer. In a recent session of the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission, almost every delegate asked this question in one form or another. The Soviet spokesman replied at length without conveying the slightest enlightenment. What he said amounted to nothing more than that his position was perfectly clear and that no further definition was necessary.

Moscow thus clings to a formula of meaningless generalities that could be interpreted to her own interest after the naive Americans had destroyed their atomic bombs and provided the whole world with the know-how of using atomic power. Even through the fog of Mr. Gromyko's article this inflexible policy is apparent. He is specific enough, moreover, to let it be known that Russia will not consent to the punishment of a violator of the proposed atomic treaty, except by agreement among the five big powers, Russia included. This alone is equivalent to saying that no atomic-control agreement is possible at present.

The only alternative left is an agreement for peacetime use and wartime control of atomic energy among the nations willing to join in a genuine international system. No control at all would be a virtual death warrant for civilization. International control without Russia will necessitate the retention and improvement of atomic weapons as a safeguard against attack when that country comes into possession of atomic power. The possibility of a world-destroying war cannot, therefore, be ruled out, but it can be minimized. A group of nations working together for peaceful development of atomic energy and for the punishment of any power, within or without the group, that might initiate an atomic war would be a powerful deterrent to aggression. Of course this concert would be open to Russia as soon as that country could see the light. Indeed, we think that prompt advancement along this line would be the best possible means of inducing the Russians to drop their stubborn obstruction and assist in the establishment of genuine international controls.

Flying Down To Rio

Secretary Marshall is off today to Rio for his baptism in inter-American diplomacy. The 20 republics (the exception is unrecognized Nicaragua) are foregathering for the purpose of putting the Act of Chapultepec in treaty form. That act was signed at Mexico City on March 6, 1945, and provided that the American republics should act as a unit in case any one were attacked, either by an American power or by a power outside the Americas. In other words, the republics set up a regional security system within the United Nations. It was the greatest recognition of interdependence in the history of the Americas. As such the instrument testified to the success of the Good Neighbor policy, marking as it did the conquest of fear of the United States, and its replacement by mutual faith. What constitutes aggression—that $64 question—will doubtless be the subject of discussion at Rio.

The creation by common consent of a policeman for this hemisphere set aside the Monroe Doctrine on which the United States relied upon for 100 years. Under the Monroe Doctrine the United States reserved the right, without authority from the Latins, to check aggression by a non-American power in this hemisphere. In 1933 the Latins adopted and participated in the Monroe Doctrine; that is to say, all the American states agreed to prevent aggression in this hemisphere by a non-American power. Then at Mexico City all the American republics agreed, in addition, to check aggression by one American nation against another. For this purpose the various agencies in the inter-American system are buttressed by the creation of a new and significant agency composed of representatives of all the general staffs.

The intent of the compact is to build up a secure hemisphere, not a militarized one. It would be a deviation from the purposes of the Act of Chapultepec to arm the Latins in the manner provided for by the bill on inter-American defense which is now pending in Congress. Such a project would make the general staffs masters instead of servants of the smaller Latin American nations. And it would halt progress in the development of a continental community resting upon the drawing together of the politics and economies of the hemisphere. Another example of backsliding was the debt-collecting clause contained in the act on fresh sugar quotas. Secretary Marshall, in a message released with the President's signature of this act, paved the way for his visit to Rio by reaffirming our allegiance to arbitration in debt as in other controversies arising in inter-American relations. We hope the Rio conference will be guided by the loftiest aspirations of the statesmen who have erected our existing code of relations.

Gold And Dollars

Imports into the United States provide only a fraction of the dollars required to finance foreign purchases of our goods. In the first six months of this year, the excess of exports over imports amounted to approximately 4.7 billion dollars. Since this export surplus has to be paid for from the proceeds of dollar loans, dollar balances, gold stocks, and current gold production, information concerning the amount and the distribution of foreign-owned gold and dollar balances is of vital interest to our export industries. Such facts also throw much-needed light on the volume of foreign lending that this country may be called upon to provide in the months ahead to enable needy nations to buy our products.

The writer of an article appearing in the current Monthly Review of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York on World Distribution of Gold and Dollar Assets estimates that the gold and short-term dollar assets now available to foreign countries amounts to 18 billion dollars as compared with 14 billion dollars at the outbreak of the war and 20 billion dollars when the war ended in August, 1945. About two thirds of these holdings consist of gold held by governments and central banks; the rest of foreign-owned balances, official and private, in American banks, and foreigners' holdings of short-term dollar assets.

With such huge sums at the disposal of the rest of the world, people may well wonder why so much is being said about a shortage of dollars. The answer is, of course, that a large proportion of these dollar holdings are in the nature of ultimate reserves that the holding countries would be unwilling to part with except in dire emergency. For instance, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer has indicated that the 2.4 billion gold and dollar balances of the British government, exclusive of the remnants of the American and Canadian loans, is regarded as a more or less untouchable fund. Moreover, as the Federal Reserve article states, a large part of the official gold and dollar reserves of the world (excluding privately hoarded gold which does not count) represents legal currency reserves that foreign central banks are required to maintain either by law or custom. To part with them would deal a severe blow to public confidence. Then, too, half of the five billion dollars of American balances and short-term securities held by foreigners are privately owned and could only be utilized to meet balance of payment deficits through voluntary repatriation or by means of governmental requisitions.

Another factor of great importance in assessing the buying support afforded our export trade by foreign-owned gold and dollars is the distribution of such holdings and the rate of depletion. In other words, the extent of foreign buying depends not alone on the amount of reserve buying power of the takers, but also on the state of their international trade balances. For example, Argentina still has large reserves of gold and freely convertible currencies at her disposal, but she has been forced to draw heavily on them during the past year. That is the situation of Latin America as a whole. Gold and dollar reserves are much greater than they were before the war, but since the beginning of the year they have been shrinking rapidly. In western Europe, France and Holland afford outstanding examples of countries that have experienced heavy drains on gold and dollar reserves.

It is evident that countries in this situation can interpret the handwriting on the wall. They know that it does not take long to exhaust the largest reserves, if outpayments are constantly in excess of inpayments. There is only one effective way to deal with such unbalanced conditions: that is, to reduce the outflow of gold and dollars by spending less abroad and undertaking to build up depleted reserves by exporting more goods. The essential economies and readjustments made necessary by the shrinkage of dollar balances have already resulted in the application of protective measures by various countries, such as prohibitions or restrictions of imports, import licensing, and tariff increases and the end is not yet in sight.

It seems almost certain, therefore, that foreign demands for our products will decline substantially in the months ahead, even with the help of dollar loans to stimulate buying, owing to the inability of many countries to finance their requirements and the justified unwillingness of others to exhaust their ultimate reserves of gold and dollars. A drop of 13 per cent in June exports from the May postwar peak is, indeed, attributed primarily to the growing world shortage of gold and dollar balances.

Corn Beef

The tremendous demands on our grain supply put the United States in the position of a gambler relying on his winning streak to pull him through. This year the dice seem to have been miscast, at least as far as corn is concerned. As of August 1, the Department of Agriculture estimates that because of bad weather the 1947 crop will be 628 million bushels short of the record 1946 output of 3287 million bushels. The drop alone represents more corn than we exported last year. And the August 1 figure does not take into account the additional damage being done by the excessive heat and drouths in the Middle West. The reduced crop is a sobering reminder that agriculture is a game of chance in which we are foolish to assume that we have a monopoly on luck.

Actually the August 1 estimate of 2659 million bushels is slightly above the 1936-1945 average production. But that does not tell the whole story. In the first place, domestic demand has increased during the last decade, both because there are more people and because per capita food consumption has risen. Secondly, with foreign agriculture by no means restored, the demand for corn abroad will remain high. These factors combine to produce the present zany price structure in which corn is at an all-time peak. Moreover, the gloomier the outlook gets, the more further spurts are likely to be touched off.

If the effects of the corn picture are obvious, they are nonetheless disheartening. Although the shortage of corn for export probably can be made up somewhat by the bumper wheat crop, high corn prices mean high meat prices, which in turn reduce the purchasing power of nations already short on dollars. The domestic implication of continued high meat prices is no less severe. They mean an additional squeeze on the poor, battered consumer who has seen little indication, at least in food costs, that the inflation spiral has leveled off.

Perhaps the most frustrating part of the entire situation is that there is nothing much to do but bear it. The Government could request tightened margin requirements or a voluntary cut among industrial users of corn, but these are relatively ineffectual measures for holding down prices. There is one area, however, in which Government action could be effective in the future if Congress would assent. It is not possible to prevent bad weather, but it is possible to mitigate its effects through an over-all program of flood control, water storage and irrigation.

DREAM

I dreamed of desolation in the dust,
This city crumpled and the walls now prone,
The trains and all the girders flaked with rust,
Felled in the silence of the weeds and stone.
And down the avenues where birds took flight,
I faced on ruin, thinking what was borne—
The once uncurbed, electric wheels of light
Beneath which cloaks of life were proudly worn.

And as I walked, I thought I heard a sound:
A little song that had escaped the past
Now made this shattered city hallowed ground.
I looked around and let it hold me fast.
The courage of a love that knew its way
Found its eternal words across the clay.

Brewster Vs. Hughes

Your editorial of August 8, "Mr. Brewster's Round," exhibits a biased and, to my mind, a catachrestic interpretation of the record of the hearings with respect to the Hughes-Brewster veracity issue. Not only the straightforward statements of, and answers to questions put to, Mr. Hughes, but also the emotional attitudes of the two individuals, indicate a Hughes victory in every round; and this I believe is the consensus of those attending the hearings and of the public generally.

Mr. Hughes has been composed, careful, and confident in his statements in the face of obvious inequities in treatment and questions of the chairman of the committee, a confrere and appointee on the committee of Mr. Brewster's, whereas the Senator has reportedly broken down emotionally, apparently not from the sense of wronged innocence, but rather as might be expected in a person against whom, professing humble virtue, considerable testimony has been presented reflecting on his public morality. Misstatements of fact by the Senator have been pointed out by Mr. Hughes, which in itself should put one on guard with respect to the accuracy of other statements.

And of what value are the flippant irrelevancies of Mr. Brewster regarding the buying of his own peanuts at the baseball game attended on a ticket provided by a Pan American Airways friend, the purchase of the Pan American "palace" on F st. very reasonably "after a great tragedy when a child was killed by a dog and the place was reputed to be haunted," or that the toilet on the first floor "is more constantly out of order than any I've ever seen." What state of mind do these irrelevancies indicate? You do not find them in Mr. Hughes' statements or testimony.

Round for round, I suppose the Brewster-Hughes score looks about even at this point, and the rough stuff has been called off. Since the "game" has so far centered around one type of "big biz titan" against another, a social-economic minded spectator will perhaps be not too much concerned in which side wins.

Senator Brewster may have Nehemiah and the Bible lined up on his side, but the admiring, vocal spectator-audience and some lively cartoons on Mr. Hughes' side are not to be sneezed at. Again the "Daumier" of America (Herb Block) qualifies for first prize with his "Shooting an Arrow Into the Air" in The Washington Post of August 7. My street-corner newsman tells me he had to order an extra 200 copies to supply increased demand.

"Plane Survival"

In your aviation editorial of August 9, you say, "If a strong aviation industry in all its components is essential to this country's safety and well being, then Congress will have to step in promptly with funds." Congress has stepped until out of wind. The money poured into aviation between 1939 and 1946, in seven years, has been colossal.

The aeroplane until this last war was not a transport alone, but was also a weapon. The gain from the war brought about a dissolution of that principle. The essential airplane now and in the future is the jet high speed military plane having nothing in common with all prior development of aircraft. This has divorced commercial aviation from military aviation.

Until this last war, commercial aviation was riding on the coattails of Army and Navy developments. (Its war cost was five times the cost of the railroad system.) The big shots of commercial aviation were the "sole legatees"—aviation handed them these things on a silver platter: (1) a monopoly of routes and ports created by the Federal Government and taxpayers' money; (2) a subsidy to get going, and keep moving; (3) aircraft, developed as strategic weapons made available to commercial aviation, by reason of expenditures for Army and Navy research.

Did you ever hear of a commercial airline inventing, designing or developing any single mechanical element for aviation progress? Hardly ever. They get these benefits from the armed forces, but that is rapidly nearing an end for the reason here stated. If commercial aviation is to survive, it will not be from "shots in the arm" from Congress. On the contrary it must learn to walk without crutches. To help it to do so is the only congressional program.

British Socialism

May a "poor relation" suggest that James MacIntosh (letter published August 7) should go to England, study there the conditions under which the British have lived since 1939, note what, in fact, the Socialist government has done, and then dare to compare that country with Russia.

Perhaps he might also extend his travels to the USSR. It would do him no harm. We English, are in debt, we have made mistakes but we still are proud of our country. We do not resent criticisms which are just, but prefer them based on fact.

British in Palestine

This is in reply to the letter of Miss Sadie Levy in The Washington Post of August 7. I appreciate the delicate position Miss Levy is in being both British and Jewish at the same time.

But let us face the facts. British troops are in Palestine only by virtue of the mandate given to Britain by 52 nations of the world, including the United States. The mandate entrusts Britain with the responsibility of facilitating Jewish immigration into Palestine, the close settlement of Jews on the land, and the establishment of a Jewish homeland.

The word "oil" is not mentioned anywhere in the mandate. If it is true, as Miss Levy alleges, that British armed forces are utilized in Palestine for the protection of oil interests, no matter whose oil interests, then they are perverted from their legal purpose. Furthermore, the employment of British ships, planes and troops for the purpose of excluding Jewish refugees is certainly a flagrant violation of Britain's legal obligations.

It is the fashion nowadays to blame violence in Palestine on the efforts of Mr. Ben Hecht. I believe Miss Levy gives Mr. Hecht too much credit. Violence in Palestine is the natural reaction of freedom-loving people against the illegal acts of the mandatory power.

The world witnessed the violence that broke out among some British troops in Palestine and among some British citizens in England following the execution of two British sergeants by the underground. Is it not to be expected that some Jewish residents of Palestine will react the same way when they see their wives and mothers and brothers and sisters killed by illegal British action? Is it not natural that some people will be provoked to acts of violence when they see thousands of legal Jewish immigrants being turned away from the shores of Palestine by force?

Moral Aspects Of The Atom Bomb

The Washington Post's atomic supplement of August 3 was most interesting from the scientific standpoint, but your preceding announcement stated that the articles would "take up every phase of this important question." Every phase? No. The most important phase of all was neglected, namely, the religious and ethical.

The Washington Post has said that "What our Government does is determined, in the last analysis, by what the majority of us want done," and has asked, "What do you advise doing about atomic energy? Yes, you, and all the rest of us."

It would be well to recall that in the days following Hiroshima and Nagasaki, some voices were raised in protest against the resulting moral degradation of America before the world, but they were soon hushed amid the more popular braggings and implied threats to other nations.

What has become of American morality, that we can now countenance in our own conduct that which would place other nations among the outlaws? Have we become a law unto ourselves that we can find it proper to use such a devastating weapon as the atomic bomb, and then have the temerity to ask that it be never used again by any other nation?

The editorial in The Washington Post of August 6, strikes more nearly the right chord in its note of moral shame, but blames Russia for the gulf which now divides the nations.

In our bewilderment, perhaps, if the truth were known, we can still look to the conscience of the average American citizen, he who is inarticulate because he cannot make his voice heard. One of these citizens, Bishop Elwood L. Haines of Iowa, was heard in Philadelphia on September 3, 1946, at the triennial general convention of the Episcopal Church. Bishop Haines presented a resolution denouncing the surprise bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki as "morally indefensible." The resolution asked the convention to "express their penitence for this military action" to the President of the United States, and to ask him and Congress to make "some official acknowledgment of this penitence."

What came of that voice from the church? Nothing.

But I cannot bring myself to believe that the majority of my fellow countrymen would have countenanced the dropping of those bombs. The deed was done without the knowledge of the American people, and now, at this late day, we are asked to express our opinions of what should be done with this horror which we have created. Well, I, for one, agree with Bishop Haines.

Acknowledgment of our guilt and shame would be the first step in an attempt to regain somewhat our former moral position. The second step would be to help in the restoration of those two Japanese cities. The third step would be to withdraw to our extensive boundaries between the Atlantic and Pacific, and cease promoting conflict in every corner of the world by our interference in the affairs of every nation that has something we covet. Fourth, we should promote the development of atomic energy for the benefit of humanity, for the elimination of drudgery, and want, and disease.

Many will reply that these things cannot be done because Russia will not allow us to forget that she is out to control the world. How about all our talk of The American Century, the Pacific is an American lake, etc.? Does that sound to Russia like American control of the world?

Women Look to '48

INCREASING signs indicate American women are being needled out of their political timidity and laziness. Feminine plans afoot point to a record assault on Congress in 1948. More women also are expected to seek public office on lower levels.

One evidence of new political aggressiveness is the campaign Representative Margaret Chase Smith of Maine is making this summer for the Republican nomination for Senator in 1948. Since the Maine primary is in June, she must do most of her campaigning before the next session of Congress.

Giving up her safe seat in the House, held since 1940, Representative Smith is contending against the Governor of her State in her effort to be the first woman to get a foothold in the Senate wholly on her own steam. She decided to do this partly because she felt women were lagging in public life and she should break a new trail as a political example.

Three Democratic women candidates for the House defeated last November are going to show they are good fighters by running again. Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse of Connecticut has announced her candidacy, as has Mrs. Helen Mankin of Georgia. Mrs. Olive Remington Goldman is counted on to try again in Illinois.

A FEELING of duty to run for public office is spreading among women leaders. Mrs. LaFell Dickinson, on her retirement last June as president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, announced she was going back to her home and run for any office for which she could get the nomination. Four years of observing Government procedure in Washington convinced her of the need of direct political action by women.

Equally significant is the way women's national organizations are working to get feminine candidates in the field. Two women Senators and 28 women Representatives in 1948 is the goal of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Member clubs of this body are backing definite women candidates, such as Representative Smith of Maine.

Branches of the American Association of University Women are getting behind capable women candidates. One in Wilmington, Del., recently bucked a party machine to help one of its specially qualified members to a seat in the State Legislature. Women's groups also take credit for getting two of their sex, Dr. Sarah Blanding and Dr. Helen C. White on the board of 10 to administer foreign scholarships under the Fulbright Act. They also saw to it that the lagging nomination of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as delegate to the next General Assembly of the United Nations was confirmed.

RECENT barrages of criticism of American woman's political loafing has stirred women leaders to action. Whether they can stir the average woman out of her comfortable, nonpolitical rut is still a question. Most recent belaboring of women's political complacency, by Alice Fraser, in McCall's magazine, points out that while feminine representation in Congress is 1 per cent, it ranges from 2 to 27 per cent in national legislative bodies of 27 other countries, including many called "backward."

Generally women are told not to aspire too high in politics at first, rather to run for school board or city council, or try to be precinct captains. Yet the urgent need of more women in the next crucial Congress is generally felt by those concerned with social legislation, and is causing some women's groups to concentrate their fire on the congressional race. Present women members of Congress feel strongly that more women are needed in that body to give it balance of viewpoint.

The Congress elected next fall with its prospective problems of housing, education, health, welfare of youth and aged, and above all the halting of war, will have special need of enough women members so that congressional committees, where the real work is done, will not continue to handle the Nation's affairs as a committee of men might run a household.

On The Mall

May I ask you to rejoice with me at the recent removal of the two passageways which since World War II have obstructed and marred the perspective of the Lincoln Memorial reflecting pool?

May I also ask you what the chances are for further restoration of this perspective by the removal of the temporary buildings still standing between the reflecting pool and the Washington Monument?

May I finally confide to you my secret hope that some day the Mall will be extended around the Monument and on both sides of the Pool down to the Lincoln Memorial?

Aside from the Champs Elysees in Paris I know of no other urban perspective in the world that compares with that extending from the Capitol to the Lincoln Memorial, and it would be a deep satisfaction for those lite myself who are devoted to the beauty of Washington to know that it will be fully restored.

These magnificent two miles still have, in fact, tremendous possibilities of harmonious development and should eventually become the main thoroughfare of this Capital—provided of course that future buildings, temporary or otherwise, be erected along their sides and never, never more, across them!

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Palmeritis Again?

IT IS TIME for Americans to brace themselves against another attack of the kind of hysteria which swept this country during the unlovely A. Mitchell Palmer era. That fact is underlined by reports reaching Washington of something that is going on in New York.

According to reliable reports an important grand jury investigation is in progress there. Prime mover behind the investigation is J. Edgar Hoover's FBI. The investigation is concerned with the relationship between certain American citizens, including public officials, and the Soviet Union. It is being conducted in conditions of the utmost secrecy. This much is known.

Because of the curtain of secrecy, the rest is speculation. But it is believed possible that the investigation may result in the American equivalent of the Canadian espionage case.

Indeed, according to one version, Igor Gouzenko, the Soviet code clerk who spilled the Soviet beans in Canada, at the same time started the FBI on the trail here. According to this version, when Gouzenko gave his startling testimony to the Canadian police, he also implicated certain Americans including Treasury officials. The Canadian authorities did not publish these revelations, but quietly passed the word to Washington. One report has it that at least one of the American officials involved served in wartime not far below the top level.

No one doubts that such investigations must be made. Indeed, they are essential. If there are Americans who, like the handful of pro-Communist scientists and politicians in Canada, were willing to work against their country for the Soviet Union, the facts must be known, and on the basis of the facts, calm and effective action must be taken, as it was taken in Canada.

IT IS QUITE possible that nothing on the scale of the Canadian revelations will result, and that the whole matter will peter out. The FBI has already overreached itself on one occasion, in the Amerasia case. Then it was clearly established that confidential documents had indeed been leaked. But Jack Service, the State Department officer involved, was completely cleared. Yet if something really sensational does emerge from the current investigation, it is fervently hoped by observers of the political atmosphere here that the American people will recognize an isolated incident for what it is, and keep their sense of proportion.

For the grim contest with the Soviet Union in which this country is now engaged has faced the American Government with an immensely difficult problem. That is the relationship between the personal rights of those Americans who work for the Government and the maximum security for the Government. This dangerous problem will not be successfully solved if the results of the current investigation lead to an atmosphere of national hysteria.

The issue has, of course, already squarely confronted the Government. The Atomic Energy Commission, the most "security-sensitive" spot in the Government, has quietly dismissed a number of employes believed to have an ideological sympathy with the Soviet Union. The State Department, only less sensitive than the Atomic Energy Commission, some weeks ago also less quietly dismissed 10 of its employes on the same grounds. A forthcoming report in this space on these dismissals will serve to illustrate the grave dangers inherent in the issue.

THE BEST example of how not to deal with the problem was presented by the House-passed Rees loyalty bill. That bill provides for star-chamber proceedings against any Government employe on the basis of "derogatory information," a phrase which its sponsors failed to define. Such level-headed conservatives as Sam Hobbs of Alabama instantly labeled the bill a monstrosity and fought it.

The debate on the bill was a disturbing spectacle. The leader of the fight against it was the brilliant Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. Again and again Kefauver would rise to his feet, and calmly but cogently attack the more outrageous provisions of the bill. No serious attempt was made to answer Kefauver's charges. Again and again, laughing and gossiping, the members of the House would rise, in majorities of three or four to one, to vote down Kefauver's objections. The Rees bill never reached the Senate. But an 11 million dollar appropriation for loyalty investigations was passed by both Houses. Fears are widespread that the Congress will demand a really impressive box-score, come what may, for its money.

This sort of thing, and such nauseating exhibitions as the attack in the Senate on David E. Lilienthal as a "Communist," have led to the most serious misgivings. No sensible man, in view of the implications of the Canadian case, believes that the ideological sympathies of Government workers in key spots can lightly be laughed off. But no sensible man believes that anything can be achieved by hounding American citizens, or by allowing American concepts of justice to degenerate to those of a Bulgarian people's court. That is why such profound concern is felt here, over what the national reaction may be if the more sensational reports of what is going on in New York prove true.

Ecuador to Protest Alleged Peru Attack

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 12 (AP).—Official sources said today Ecuador had instructed her ambassador in Lima to protest to Peru against an alleged attack by Peruvian troops upon the frontier city of El Progreso, a few days ago.

The Ecuadorean officials charged that a Peruvian military detachment made the attack without warning, ransacked several houses and captured 22 Ecuadorean soldiers, civil police and civilians.

Airline Profits And Subsidies

WHILE THE struggle between rival airlines was being aired before the Senate War Investigating Subcommittee, another and far less publicized phase of the contest was in progress before the Civil Aeronautics Board. At issue were the rates charged by Pan American Airways on its exclusive routes in Latin America.

Childs

Last November, the CAB's public counsel filed a startling brief. It charged that Pan American's figures of cost in Latin America were "abnormally high" and the accounting methods used so confusing "as to cast doubt upon the reliability of the reported figures."

The brief, which used even more caustic language in criticizing specific practices, grew out of a report submitted by Pan Am covering its 1944 operations in Latin America. That report showed that the company had an operating profit of $1,679,357 for the first 10 months of 1944. But in subsequent reports from the company covering November and December, this profit was wiped out and replaced by a loss of almost $800,000.

IN OCTOBER of 1944, the company showed an operating profit of 20 cents per revenue mile. The reported figures for the month of December showed a loss of 81 cents per revenue mile. It was this extraordinary change in so short a space of time that CAB's public counsel attacked in the 86-page brief, signed by Harry A. Bowen, who has since resigned from the CAB, and by William C. Burt.

According to the brief, many of the thousands of items of cost charged off in November and December applied to other months of the year. Public counsel asked that these be related to the specific time in which they occurred. Pan American refused this request.

The brief included an exhibit to show that "Pan American is the only carrier whose costs per revenue mile and per ton mile increased with increasing operations during 1944. Increasing operations and increasing trip frequencies accompanied by increasing unit costs is against all experience in the industry."

"Over the three-year period Pan American's plane mile costs averaged more than twice the costs of the four largest domestic carriers," the brief stated. This was true, it was pointed out, even though labor costs for maintenance at the terminal in Brazil were only a fraction of similar costs in the United States.

In replying, Pan American charged that CAB counsel had no basis for questioning Pan American's bookkeeping. Lack of experience in airline operation and airline accounting was shown, according to the company, throughout the brief.

LATER CAB sent nine accountants to Miami to go over Pan American's books for the period in question. For six months they added and readded a complicated maze of figures.

In their report, they said they found nothing irregular in Pan Am's accounting. The company naturally made much of the fact that after six months no irregularities had been brought to light.

This illustrates very well the dilemma of regulation in its present form. The nine accountants had been borrowed by CAB from one of the older commissions. During their stay in Miami, they were prodded by CAB lawyers who pointed out that it was not merely a matter of correct addition and subtraction, but the whys and wherefores of accounting practice.

After sitting on the case for many months, the CAB now has handed down a decision. Over its Latin-American routes, Pan American was awarded a rate of 80 cents per mail-ton mile. This is considerably under the rate asked by the company. But it is more than those who first brought the case had believed equitable.

Regulation by bureaucracy faces staggering handicaps. The company, be it airline, steamship or railroad, hires the smartest accountants and the cleverest lawyers. They have the brains and the financial resources to contest endlessly with the bureaucrats.

During his last term in the Senate, Justice Hugo L. Black conducted a vigorous investigation into steamship subsidies and profits. The public got a lot of information it never had before. The same kind of investigation into the airlines would be a healthy thing, not alone for the public interest, but for the lines themselves.

Reds Hurt Their Own People By Scorning U. S., Shreve Says

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 12 (AP).—Earl O. Shreve, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said today spurning of the Marshall Plan by Russia "is a crime whose principal victims are the teeming populations under the Kremlin's dominion."

Addressing the National Institute of Commercial and Trade Organization Executives, held at Northwestern University, Shreve said the Soviet decision to "go it alone" in post-war reconstruction "ends lingering illusions about real collaboration with the totalitarian sector," and "will help bring clarity to the whole picture."

Shreve said:

"Charity is an exceedingly flimsy foundation on which to base reconstruction." He added:

must see ot it that our gifts and

"From this point forward, we loans are an investment in world prosperity.

"The nations of western Europe, under our prodding, have finally got down to the essential job of mapping plans for recovery predicated, not merely upon American help, but on maximum self-help.

"American business can only applaud the effort and extend its assurances of unlimited cooperation."

With respect to domestic problems, Shreve urged business to "bend backward to avoid misuse of distortion" of the Taft-Hartley law; encourage home building, and to bring pressure on lawmakers "to overhaul the whole complex of tax laws from top to bottom."

"The channels of investment and enterprise have been blocked by punitive, unwise tax barriers," he asserted.

Canned Fruits and Vegetables Expected to Run 5% Short

By The Associated Press

The Nation's total supply of 12 major canned fruits and vegetables in the 1947-48 season probably will run about 5 per cent less than a year ago, the Department of Commerce announced yesterday. This includes both the new pack and the carryover from last year.

Of the six major fruits—peaches, pears, pineapple, apricats, mixed fruits and red pitted cherries—the supplies may be about 10 per cent under the 1946-47 total. For six vegetables—peas, corn, beets, lima beans, spinash and green and wax beans—supplies "may be equal or very nearly equal" to those of last year, the report said.

The fruits and vegetables covered by the survey represent 70 per cent or more of all canned fruits and vegetables. The Department said its estimates are preliminary.

Although estimates of the number of cases in the new pack are not included in the report, officials told a reporter that the six major vegetables may run about 90 million cases as compared with last year's new pack of 108 million. The six fruits may be down about 10 million cases from last year's 57 million.

The carryover of stocks packed in the 1946-47 season is figured at 125 million cases, or 60 million more than a year ago. This figure includes all fruits and vegetables.

"In addition, retail stocks, particularly of fruits, are undoubtedly higher at the beginning of this season than they were last summer," the announcement said.

"In the 1946-47 season estimated exports of all canned fruits and vegetables totaled 15 million cases. Government procurement accounted for another 12 million cases. For 1947-48, reduced exports will probably more than offset increased Government procurement of about 2 million cases."

Work of 80th Congress Neither Praised Nor Heavily Censured

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 12.—Performance of the first Republican Congress in 16 years, which will bear importantly on next year's presidential election, has met with a mixed reaction from the country's voters.

GOP strategists drafting their 1948 appeal will find that while the record of the Eightieth Congress' first session does not elicit overwhelming praise from the voting public neither does it come in for heavy censure.

One voter in six says the Congress did a good job, but one in four believes it did a poor job, while the rest either say it did only a fair job or express no opinion.

The survey was conducted during the last week of July (Congress adjourned July 26) and a national cross-section was asked:

"In general, do you think the present Congress has done a good job or a poor job?"

The replies:

Good	17%
Fair	37
Poor	27
No opinion	19

"Generally speaking, do you think the present Congress which has been in session since January 5, has done a better job, poorer job, or about the same kind of job as sessions of Congress in recent years?"

Better	18%
Poorer	21
Same	39
Qualified and no opinion	22

Voters have scattered ideas about the importance of things the national legislators failed to do. The complaint registered most frequently—by about one in every seven—is that Congress should have reduced taxes. This ignores the fact that President Truman twice vetoed tax measures passed by both houses. Earlier polls by the institute showed that most people wanted Congress to act on universal military training and minimum wages, and there also has been dissatisfaction with the housing program.

Twice as many Republicans as Democrats declare that the legislators performed well in the seven-month session. Congress is, of course, controlled by the Republicans. The breakdown follows:

	Dem.	Rep.
Good	12%	24%
Fair	35	41
Poor	34	18
No opinion	19	17

Apparently farmers found more satisfaction in what Congress accomplished than any other occupation group, only 19 per cent feeling the record was poor. Union members, influenced by their dislike of the Taft-Hartley Act, register substantial dissatisfaction with the session; 37 per cent of union members say it was a poor job, while only 14 per cent give it a good rating.

An interesting note is that while eight of ten voters express opinions on how good a job Congress did, less than half can correctly name the Congressman from their districts. This is shown in the following table:

"Can you remember offhand the name of the United States Congressman from your district?"

Correct	38%
Incorrect	9
No answer	53

Consul Would Bar Marriage Paper From Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 12 (AP).—Consul General Sidney Redecker said today he had recommended that an American publication devoted to loney hearts be barred from Germany lest German girls "find an easy, dishonest way to get into the United States."

"The magazine said most of its advertisers are sincere, genuine people who want to get married," the consul said, "but we have to make sure the frauleins really intends to get married and that the soldiers really are going to marry them. There are too many ways to distort the law (permitting German girls to emigrate to the U. S. to marry soldiers or former servicemen) and this could be another."

Odom May Talk With President

Chicago, Aug. 12 (AP).—William P. Odom may tell President Truman about his record round-the-world flight Thursday, his manager said tonight.

Franklin Lamb, who has been handling the pilot's engagements since Odom's 73-hour, five-minute solo flight ended Sunday, said Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughn had proferred an invitation to the flier to visit the White House.

Tomorrow, Lamb said, Odom plans to fly the converted twin-engine bomber, in which he made the world circuit, to New York where he will be guest of Mayor William O'Dwyer.

Seven Arraigned In Kansas City Vote Indictments

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Seven persons indicted by a special Federal grand jury investigating alleged vote fraud in Kansas City appeared for arraignment today before Judge Albert A. Ridge.

Through his attorney, William H. Costello, Democratic judge in the Fifth Precinct of the Second Ward, filed motions to dismiss both indictments against him, one charging perjury, the other vote fraud. Ridge gave Special Prosecutor Richard Phelps five days to file answers.

Robert McKissick, Democratic precinct captain, and five other persons charged with voting by misrepresentation, also were up for arraignment.

An attorney was appointed for four Negro defendants and reduced the bonds of three from $1000 to $200. The fourth was under a two-year sentence for larceny when the indictment was returned.

3 Oil Companies Increase Prices Half-Cent a Gallon

Three oil companies have increased the wholesale price of gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil a half-cent a gallon, a survey showed yesterday.

Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. will increase the wholesale price the same amount today.

The price-boosting companies said no general retail price increase had been ordered. The matter of passing the increase on to consumers, they said, was being left to retail outlets.

That retailers will boost prices a half-cent within the next few days is highly probable, one distributor said.

Companies which have already boosted wholesale prices are Gulf Refining Co., Sinclair Oil Co., and Independent Oil Co. which distributes Cities Services products.

Czech Scouts Ask Tolerance For Red Youth Movements

Moisson, France, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Czech Boy Scouts attending the sixth International Jamboree today passed out pamphlets calling for tolerance toward Communist youth movements and urging Scouts of the western nations to unite East and West through Scout ideals.

The Boy Scout group from Hungary also came with similar pamphlets, but did not distribute them except to a few inquirers early today.

The Czech group is headed by Dr. Karel Prucha, who said he feared there might be animosity between his boys and those of the western nations, but added "so far there has been no unfavorable mention of Communist youth movements in our country and everybody has got along fine—even magnificently."

"The boys all think its terrific, too," he said.

Prucha said he did not "want to give the impression that any of our 490 boys and leaders came here to propagandize for or against any nations or political ideals."

"We are merely afraid of intolerance," he said.

The Hungarian handbills called on Scouts of other nations to "do your best to become acquainted with the youth of every nation in eastern Europe, including the youth of Soviet Russia. We beg you and all the Scouts of the world from the depths of our hearts: Do not listen to heralds of hatred. Do not believe liars and slanderers."

Asked about the activities of Scouts in his country, Prucha said: "In Czechoslavakia we go along with all the political parties, but we do not take any part in politics."

"This is why we have been able to survive in Central Europe, while most Scouts of other eastern European nations have been suppressed," he added.

Posse Hunts Boy On High Divide

Hamilton, Mont., Aug. 12 (AP).—A sheriff's posse spread out over 7258-foot high Skalkaho Divide, about 20 miles east of here, today hunting for a 4-year-old boy, lost in the rugged mountains since yesterday afternoon.

Sheriff F. O. Burrell searched all night for Arnie D. Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Olson of Victor, Mont., after he wandered away from a camp where his parents had gone yesterday to cut poles.

Near-freezing temperatures were felt in the region last night.

The searching party grew to more than 300 as news of the boy's disappearance spread. Some Hamilton businessmen closed up shop to participate in the search, a sheriff's deputy said.

CLIMAX OF LONG DISPUTE—Assistant Secretary of Navy W. John Kenney (right) awards the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal to Vice Adm. Charles E. Rosendahl, retired (left), often called the "Billy Mitchell of the Navy." The DFC was awarded by special Act of Congress to Rosendahl, ardent supporter of lighter-than-air aviation, for saving the lives of six crewmen by landing one section of the airship Shenandoah after it broke in three parts on September 3, 1925, at Caldwell, Ohio, killing 14 persons. The DSM is for wartime services as Chief of Navy Airship Training, May, 1943, to August, 1945. Rosendahl, who has clashed frequently with supporters of surface warfare, lives at Tom Rivers, N. J.

Poison Gas of Army Is Seen As Cause of Gulf 'Red Tide'

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 12 (AP).—Dr. Herbert R. Mills, director of Tampa Municipal Hospital's pathology department, said today the most logical theory to account for the fish-killing "red tide" is that it "has been caused by the presence of poison gas in Gulf waters."

Dr. Mills said he had received reports the Army dumped lewisite and mustard gas into the Gulf "about 40 miles offshore."

Dr. Mills was the first scientist to support the poison gas theory for the "tide," which has killed millions of fish along Florida's west coast and left their bodies littering beaches from Sarasota to Clearwater. Other scientists have blamed a microorganism.

The Army has admitted dumping some mustard gas in the Gulf last summer, but denied the gas was potent enough to kill so many fish over so wide an area.

A microscopic parasite believed to be the fish "murderer" will be flown to the University of California for analysis.

[The United States Fish and Wildlife Service in Washington, said that it had identified the suspect as "gymnodinium," a one-cell parasite about the size of a blood cell.

[The agency explained the parasite, which has multiplied billions of times and has mysterious sources of sustenance, exudes a poisonous chemical toxin lethal to fish.]

American Horses Going to Europe —Canned in Gravy

Have you wondered where all the horses have gone?

A lot of them are being shipped to Europe for food.

Yesterday the Department of Agriculture reported that about 39 million pounds of canned "horse meat and gravy," valued at $6,389,030, was shipped in the past 12 months. It also sent $260,000 worth of "cured horse meat."

The value of commodities shipped from July, 1946, to July, 1947, was:

Dairy products, $77,328,000; poultry products (dried eggs, frozen eggs and turkeys), $203,219,344; livestock products (including horse meat and live horses and mules), $163,591,043; fats and oils, $8,404,350; fruits and vegetables, $64,618,403; grain and cereals, $803,812,672; cotton (amount unavailable) and special commodities, $23,707,814.

Band Armed With Tommyguns and Bombs Attacks RAF Headquarters in Jerusalem

Jerusalem, Aug. 12 (INS).—A band armed with tommy guns and bombs attacked RAF headquarters in Jerusalem tonight coincident with a report that one Jew had been killed and two wounded in renewed fighting with Arabs on the Tel Aviv-Jaffa border.

A Jewish informant said the new casualties in the northwest occurred when the Jews were attacked by Arabs for the third straight day.

First reports indicated that the Jewish underground was involved in the new thrust at the British in Jerusalem, where the armed band penetrated the heavily guarded British security zone.

Flares Light Sky

Some of the attackers launched diversionary attacks on guards at the general postoffice and the joint British police and criminal investigation headquarters.

The wail of sirens sounded through the city and the sky was lit by flares and tracer fire. Many sections of Jerusalem were shaken by sporadic explosions and the rattle of gunfire.

This was the first serious incident in several days in which British forces were involved.

For the last two nights clashes between Arabs and Jews have resulted in at least 16 casualties, including six killed.

Order Leader Expelled

The British have ordered the expulsion of a former Egyptian army officer named Mahmud Habib, identified as commander of the militaristic Arab youth movements.

This followed Sunday's killing of five Jews and the wounding of eight in a dance hall battle near the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv, which adjoins the all-Arab city of Jaffa.

One Arab was beaten to death and two Jews wounded in another clash yesterday.

Anti-Semites Fined

Liverpool, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Twenty-eight adults and 11 children appeared in police and juvenile courts here today charged with disorderly conduct during the August 4 anti-Semetic disturbances.

Most of the adults were fined up to $20 and made to pay damage costs up to $100. Disposition of the juvenile cases was not announced.

Lady Astor Denies 'Didn't Care' Quote On Jewish Deaths

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Lady Nancy Astor radioed from the liner Queen Mary today a deniel that she had said she did not care how many Jews were killed in Palestine.

The remarks were attributed to her by ship news reporters who interviewed her aboard the liner last Friday. Reporters insisted today that she told them "You can quote me on that" after making the alleged remark.

Lady Astor's message, sent in reply to an Associated Press radio query, said, "I deplore gangster methods in Palestine. When I was asked what I would do regarding Palestine, I said 'wait for the United Nations' report.' When I was asked about British soldiers, I said 'I am amazed at their patience and control.'"

Let's Wake Up Rip Van Winkle!

Millions of bushels of food may rot in our fields this harvest time, instead of being available to the world's markets—because we are short of freight cars. Here is a way that thousands of cars can be freed for service in a hurry.

ARE you interested in the price of food? Does it give you a twinge to see those pictures of mountains of wheat piled on the ground and potatoes going to rot—when there's a desperate world food crisis?

The bottle-neck is our freight-car shortage. But thousands of cars could be freed by a single decision—if old-line railroad managements would act.

Don't Blame the War!

This is hard to believe, but it's true: we have today only three-fourths as many freight cars in our country as we had twenty years ago. This shrunken fleet is now called on to handle the greatest peacetime traffic in history. And the war itself is not to blame for the shortage—for in no single year from 1925 to the start of hostilities did the railroad industry buy as many cars as it junked. Twenty years is a long time for even Rip Van Winkle to sleep!

What Can Be Done?

There is at least one remedy that can be applied at once—despite the steel shortage and other difficulties in car-building. This remedy requires no new equipment, no period of time to work out—nothing but an act of management:

Lift what appear to be agreements between railroads that deliberately slow down many freight trains!

Here is an example. There are eight important routes by which you can ship "fast" freight from California to Chicago. These routes vary in length as much as 450 miles. But, curiously, the time schedule for each of the eight is exactly 118 hours—and 30 minutes!

Similarly, scheduled freight trains moving west over the important routes from Chicago to the Coast areas, despite great differences in terrain and mileage, take exactly 130 hours—on the nose!

Is This Free Competition?

Could it be that these schedules are fixed by agreement? That the trains which could be fastest are held back for the slowest—so that no road can have even the slightest competitive advantage?

Railroad men know that, in many instances, a whole day could be cut off these schedules between California and Chicago—if managements would simply order it. If that were done, on these roads and on others, it would ease the national car shortage at once!

Are old-line managements asleep in the dell while many freight trains creep at a snail's pace—by agreement?

There is good reason to believe that by lifting deliberate freight slowdowns, on the roads that still practice them, we could provide more cars this summer and fall than our shops can possibly build. And every car is desperately needed!

A Call For Action!

The next few weeks will be the critical ones in our food problem. Our wheat crop is estimated to exceed any previous record by 300 million bushels. It is even now being piled in the fields—for want of cars.

If you feel as strongly about this as the C&O does, write to your newspaper and your congressman. Do it today while it is on your mind.

Ask them to stir up Rip Van Winkle—and tell him that time is short. Demand that our trains be scheduled not merely to suit the private deals of the railroads, but so that we can make the best use, for the whole public, of our shamefully depleted stock of freight cars!

Ringside Table — With Mary Harris

JOHNNY MEYER IS CRITICAL of the general attractiveness of Washington girls. The chubby party-thrower for Howard Hughes, while talking to his old acquaintance, Bandleader Bob Knight of the Lounge Riviera, had nothing to say about his embarrassing moments before that Senate committee. Instead he wailed, "Aren't there any goodlooking girls around this town? In that whole committee room I saw only one good looker. I think she was the secretary to Senator Brewster's lawyer." . . . Looks as though John has a small streak of magnanimity in thus tossing a laurel leaf to the opposition.

Joe Dosh, radio's handsome star singer, will soon appear at the Old New Orleans . . . Nick Gaston, owner of the O. N. Orleans, is off to Los Angeles and the Ahepa convention this week, will return in a few days.

DUBONNET A-ZOOMING. The deft promotion and policy changes inaugurated at the Dubonnet Room by Manager James Patterson of the Sheraton Hotel are drawing scads of happy and interested patrons. The 20 per cent tax is now something of the past in Dubonnet, except for the dance hours on Friday and Saturday. Art Taylor's organ and George Berg's piano blend in cheerful and popular rhythms . . . Other Sheraton innovations coming up later include the installation of a new cocktail lounge and coffee shop.

Opening date for the Balalaika has been set for Thursday, September 11. Owner-impresario Mischa Bess is confecting an elaborate revue as Balalaika's initial offering.

LA VOGUE. Olivia Davis, owner of Merry-Land, is having her mink coat made over in the 1948 mode—new and closer-fitting cuffs, extra gores and all that . . . Louise Lee, perky black-eyed singer at the Casino Royal, is frisking around in a fall vintage black satin gown with an extreme peg-top skirit . . . Pat Whitney, Congo Room chanteuse, flaunts a huge rose at the hem of one of her formals. Just as though people wouldn't be looking at her pretty ankles, anyway . . . Jean Davis, soignee booker of revues at the Lotus, is high summer style itself in white pique with broad black stripes.

PAGING MR. COLLINS. The Rainbow Room is recommending a wine Collins in addition to the more standard Tom Collins and rum Collins. Major Domo Karl recommends either port or still burgundy in the wine Collins. The port, naturally, will give you a drink with more body.

The New Bali will take a three-week vacation beginning August 15, reopen on September 5 with Lester Young, "Wild Tenor Sax King" and his band.

INDOOR SCENERY—AIR CONDITIONED. The Good Earth has found a perfect summer use for Italian marble fireplace with the Wedgewood figurines. Wired music now comes floating out of the chimney . . . Greece in the days of its glory never had a more beautiful eating place than the classic Muses where softly tinted marbles, golden highlights and classic basreliefs create an atmosphere of airy luxury . . . While outdoor dancing lends midsummer charm to Quonset Inn, it's amazing to see how many people prefer to stay snuggled up to the giant oval bar and bend their ears to the musical madness of the Tunesmen. The interior of Ruby Foo's has the clear sparkle of claret lemonade. And the murals are more intricate than the most difficult of cross word puzzles . . . Near the entrance at Olmsted's is a unique crystal vase with concealed lightning in its base to glorify the flowers it holds. This masterpiece of modern art is the creation of the decorators who did New York's lush Baroque restaurant . . . Most refreshing bandstand background is that view of the harbor at Rio that shimmers behind Johnny's Robb's orchestra at the Madrillon.

EASY LISTENING. Everything from Debussy to "Smoke, Smoke, Smoke" is woven expertly into the sessions of Al Shea's Trio at the China Clipper. A visiting couple from Connecticut came back four nights in a row to hear them do "Clair de Lune" . . . Quick on the trigger on getting new music is Jack Corry, band leader at Glen Echo. He gets the new tunes practically wet from the presses, has clever arrangements made in jigtime . . . Sammy Ferro, leader of the Neptune Room's Tidesmen, has received 1334 requests in the last four weeks. And those old "Oklahoma" tunes figured as high in popularity as the new hit paraders . . . It's a happy night at Ciro's when Pretty Mary Pearson drops in with a party and turns on a few of her beautiful soprano solos, especially if she chooses "Porgy and Bess" songs . . . All the girls in the Metronome Room sigh with joy when Bob Ellis gives with "Try a Little Tenderness."

Man Fined $250 For Exposure

Leslie Hicks, 33, 1832 14th st. nw., was sentenced yesterday to pay a $250 fine yesterday for indecent exposure on a streetcar July 2. Hicks exposed himself before a 25-year-old woman who screamed.

In sentencing Hicks, Judge John P. McMahon of Municipal Court said:

"This is the type of offense which leads to real sex crimes."

Promise to Obey Is Problem for Royal Wedding

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—The government may have to decide whether Princess Elizabeth will promise to "obey" Lieut. Philip Mountbatten in their November wedding, the London Star said today.

A prayer book which a Church of England bishop sent the Princess as a gift contains the marriage service omitting the word "obey" and also the older service which binds even a queen to mind her husband.

While this will enable the Princess to compare the two services, the Star said, there is a snag: only the "obey" version has parliamentary approval. Parliament in 1929 turned down the revised prayer book, but it nevertheless has come into wide use.

Baby Fools Doctors And Today Has Birthday Party

New York, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A Year ago nobody gave Richard David Mann the slightest chance of ever having a birthday.

He had just been born, so tiny and fragile he couldn't be touched, but doctors estimated he weighed just a pound.

Today his happy mother, Mrs. Richard F. Mann, was baking a big cake that will have one candle for his first birthday on Friday.

She calls him "Butch," which she thinks is a good name for a fighting personality. He now is 25 inches tall and weighs 15 pounds.

Army 'Operation Snowdrop' Force Will Gather Soon

The Army Ground Forces said yesterday that 150 officers and men will begin arrivng next Frday at Pine Camp in upper New York State to prepare for "operation snowdrop"—a mock airborne invasion of snowbound "enemy" territory.

The aerial "invasion" will take place sometime in February but advance units now en route from Camp Campbell, Ky., and Fort Meade, Md.

The operation, involving some 2800 infantry troops, is intended to test the effectiveness of new winter equipment. It will be held in an uninhabitated section of the huge reservation near the shores of Lake Ontario.

Ching Plans Role As 'Encourager' of Industrial Peace

Cyrus S. Ching, director of the new Federal Conciliation and Mediation Service, said yesterday that he would try to obtain industrial peace under the Taft-Hartley Labor Law by encouraging people to settle their own affairs."

Ching, who plans to take over his new post about September 1, oered his interpretation of the law after a conference with President Truman. He was accompanied to the White House by John R. Steelman, presidential adviser and longtime Administration labor expert.

Ching was asked about prospects for maintaining labor-management peace under the new conciliation agency.

"I would rather guess at that a year from now," he replied.

Bradley Sails Friday For European Tour

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, believed likely successor to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Army Chief of Staff, said yesterday he would sail from New York aboard an Army transport Friday for a six-week survey of United States occupied zones in Europe.

He conferred on the trip with Defense Secretary-Designate James Forrestal and Secretary of War Kenneth Royall. Bradley said he planned to come back to his job as Veterans Administrator when the survey is completed.

Pavia Bridge Collapses

Milan, Italy, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The fourteenth-century "old bridge" of Pavia fell into the Ticino River early today when its 100 granite columns finally succumbed to age and war damage. The covered bridge, famous for the chapel which stood in its center, collapsed at an early hour and on one was injured.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Little People Credited For Vital Democracy

By Drew Pearson

As of the close of business today, this columnist is going to permit a little more peace and quiet in the life of Washington—at least as far as this typewriter is concerned—and go on vacation.

In my absence this column will be written by an old hand at the game. For a good many years, he called the tunes on the Merry-Go-Round. Maybe you've already guessed who he is. But if you haven't, you'll have to wait until tomorrow to get his name.

All I'm going to tell you is that he is the best reporter in Washington. And I predict he will be so good that nobody will care much whether I come back or keep on vacationing. In fact, some people will be delighted.

Meanwhile, and before I close up the typewriter, here are a few things I would like to get out of my system.

MAKING DEMOCRACY LIVE—The longer I live, the more I find that a whale of a lot of little people in this country are quietly going about the business of helping their fellowmen and making democracy live. A lot of times we don't know anything about them, and I'm going to try to tell more about them in the future. Meanwhile, here are a few I've run into lately. . . . Lyman Lantz, Garret W. McEnerney and the California Commission on Living War Memorials are doing a fine job inspiring war monuments which recall the ideals for which we fought, rather than the weapons with which we fought. . . . Another hero without headlines is R. M. Davis, the West Virginial coal operator, who has been inspiring the people of his State to think about ways of winning the peace. Davis began life as a street car conductor, never went to college, but started a State-wide contest on a department of peace which made people think about how we can head off another war . . . Near Philadelphia, an American Legion committee headed by Clarence D. Bell has just done a fine job investigating real estate operators and how some of them have abused veterans. They found that veterans sometimes were persuaded to sign blank agreements, sometimes didn't get back their down payments, and sometimes the same plot of ground was sold to several veterans . . . Two young vets who have done a lot for freedom of the press lately are John W. Perry, jr., and Farwell Perry of the Perry newspapers. They have shown how a special typewriter can be used to print small weekly or daily newspapers, thus bolstering what has been the backbone of press freedom—independent newspapers.

CORRECTIONS—Before I get away, I want to correct something which may have done an injustice to a lady who has been working hard for this country—a Chinese physician, Dr. Margaret Chung. Some weeks ago Federal authorities informed me that Dr. Chung had sailed for Europe with Virginia Hill, the girl friend of the late Bugsy Siegel. I now find, however, that Dr. Chung sailed instead for Honolulu, where incidentally, she has done a fine job among men in the armed services . . . also Billy Wilkerson formerly associated with Siegel in the Flamingo Hotel at Las Vegas, who sailed for Europe about the same time as Virginia Hill, informs me that he broke with Siegel a long time ago. His trip was to attend a motion-picture convention in Belgium . . . one more point. From a recent column on Pan American Airways wire-pulling, some people got the impression that Clarence Young, a former Pan AM official now on the Civil Aeronautics Board, was in the pocket of his former bosses. As a matter of fact, Colonel Young calls the shots exactly as he sees them. I consider him a fair-minded public servant . . . speaking of fairness, one thing the Senate committee glossed over about Elliott Roosevelt was that he flew 89 combat missions over enemy territory, using an unarmed reconnaissance plane, helpless before enemy attack. His outfit suffered 90 per cent casualties—the reason Elliott urged Howard Hughes to design a faster plane. Elliott has plenty of faults, but cowardice is not one of them.

SENATE PROBES—Speaking of homes for veterans, if Pan American Airways and Trans World Airlines had any patriotic public relations oomph, they would immediately transform the two mansions they maintain for lobbying into homes for veterans. Both airlines operate swank houses in Washington for entertaining Congressmen, cost of which is deducted either from taxes or airmail subsidies. Each house could accommodate several veterans and families . . . for many years I have watched Senate probes, and most of them have been healthy. That's why I hate to see their effectiveness get hit in the solar plexus. However, that is what the present Brewster probe has done . . . The public is fed up with ballyhoo about wine, women and song for those in a position to influence the great air routes of the world. What they want is not a sideshow, but an impartial, thorough investigation, the kind Hugo Black did of lobbying or Ferd Pecora did of Wall Street . . . for instance, all the Senate has to do is subpena certain records from the War Department to unravel the most amazing story of political deals between the United States Government, Pan American Airways and various Latin American dictators. They will discover that about 100 million dollars was paid to Pan American Airways to build Latin American air bases from which it received healthy benefits; on top of which the Brazilian government also got an additional 100 million dollars . . . Though the war is long over, all this has been kept a strict secret. However, if the Senate committee wants the documents, here are their dates: Chief of Army engineers report of August 5, 1944, entitled "Administration of Secret Pan American Contracts" written by Maj. Robert M. Condra and travelling auditor J. H. Ross . . . Also the committee should subpena three reports by Lieut. Col. Robert M. Wold, dated January 4, 1943, January 23, 1943 and April 1, 1943 . . . These are far more important than Hollywood beauties.

THINGS TO WATCH FOR—Abe Spanel, a little guy who during the war switched from making baby's waterproof pants to making rubber life rafts, is among the next to be crucified by the Brewster committee. Spanel wrote some inspiring editorials during the war, had them published as paid ads in the newspapers, even got permission from the Treasury Department to deduct these from war contract expenses. However, the Senate seems to think this was wrong. . . . Things in the State Department aren't as happy as appear on the surface. One Assistant Secretary of State has been able to see his chief, Secretary of State Marshall, only once in three months. Some other top diplomats are in the same boat. When they can't get policy set by the man at the helm, they have trouble steering the right policy course. . . . The Constitution may have to be amended to make the President commander-in-chief of the Air Force. At present the Constitution merely makes him commander of the Army, Navy and the militia of the separate States. Now with unification, the Air Force is no longer under the Army, and the President technically is not its commander. . . . Incidentally, the Air Force may need a little commanding, because the air boys are acting high, wide and handsome when it comes to raiding other branches of the service. For instance, paratroopers, who fight on land, have always been part of the ground forces. Now the air boys want to take them over. The air boys have also taken the design for rockets away from Army ordnance. . . . Reminds you of 1914 when the Coast Artillery wanted to take submarines from the Navy because the Coast Artillery was charged with the defense of the coasts, and subs in those days could only cruise a few miles out to sea.

All of which proves that Washington bickering remains about the same, whether in 1914 or 1947, and will probably continue about the same when I get back to Washington in September.

'Kiddies' Going Wild O'er GWTW

By Richard L. Coe

BACK WITH THE WIND: Though it coppen 10 Academy Awards in 1939, there seems to be a "new" audience for "Gone With the Wind" . . . These are the youngsters whose folks didn't take 'em along the night they saw the whopping breeze . . . The film returns to the Palace tomorrow morning after what the exhibitors probably call a "pre-reissue-release" in Atlanta, where, it turns out, the kiddies went mad over the thing . . . Anyway, because 75 per cent of the matinees and 25 per cent of the evenings were what Metro calls "young people," the firm is anticipating hefty business on this fourth visit . . . We saw the film for the third time yesterday (we might add, four hours of yesterday) and found it still a swell picture, indeed a remarkable picture . . . Once again the vitality of its characters reminded us of the arguments we used to get into over the book with our intellectual superiors . . . How they used to sneer at the thing! . . . We always had the feeling then—and still do—that if it hadn't caught on, the same set would have considered it one of the great triumphs of the age . . . But as soon as it captured the imagination of the millions, the intellectual set dropped it like a hot brick . . . Except for her brilliant Sabina in "The Skin of Our Teeth," on the London stage, Vivien Leigh hasn't had such a role since, nor has Huckster Gable . . . The whole production remains a marvel of movie-making . . . Yes, you can't go wrong at the Palace starting tomorrow.

SUCH REISSUES as "GWTW" are raising hob in the Screen Writers Guild, whose magazine, Screen Writer, currently includes a supplement titled "1 Per Cent of the Gross" . . . Ring Lardner, jr., Philip Stevenson and others are writing on the subject, with Martin Field pointing out that since 1926 "a backlog of some 6000 feature films has been piled up . . . Of these at least a few thousand can be revived and shown to new audiences" . . . He makes the point that if a book or a play is reissued, the authors receive additional royalties . . . But not in the case of reissued films . . . They're just so much gravy to the corporations which own them, Field claims . . . He reports that both the Screen Writers Guild and the Screen Actors Guild are dickering with producers to settle this grievance.

COL. JIMMY LAKE reports a busy week on 9th st. . . . The Gayety reopens Friday and the colonel says that "we're all busy down here and everybody's in the hoi-poloi" . . . Virginia Kinn headlines the first show, with George Murray as the featured comic . . . Showtimes will be the same as last year, with continuous performances from 11:30 a. m. to 5 and reserved seat night performances at 8:30.

THE LITTLE is sadly bidding Tallulah Bankhead farewell . . . Sadly, for "A Royal Scandal" did increasingly well and would have held over had not the screen been set for "The Scarlet Pimpernel" and "Under the Red Robe," opening this morning . . . "GWTW's" Leslie Howard shares the top spot of the former with Merle Oberon . . . Raymond Massey's in both of them . . . Although when "Pimpernel" came out, his name wasn't important enough to list in the cast sheet, he's in it . . . And he's got the Cardinal Richelieu role in the Anthony Hope romance, with Annabella and Conrad Veidt as his costars.

TEX BENEKE and his 36-piece Glenn Miller Orchestra take over the Watergate for a concert at 8:30 tomorrow night . . . Tex has done well with Miller's old boys and August 14 has a special meaning for them all, for they've chosen VJ-Day as a yearly tribute to the major who lost his life during the war . . . Garry Stevens, the Moonlight Serenaders and Tex will do the vocals.

HILLBILLY music comes back to Uline's Arena Friday and Saturday nights, with the arrival of Ernest Tubb, one of Nashville's "Grand Old Opry" boys . . . Tubb inherited the late Jimmy Rodgers' $10,000 guitar and thinks mighty highly of it . . . Along with the lanky strummer will be his Texas Troubadors . . . At least, so promises Connie B. Gay, the Radio Ranch boy who don't need to go to any old WARL radio studio for his broadcasts . . . He zroadcasts right from his own Vuginia ranch, he do.

JOSEPH HARDY, the Olney's leading man, is in his last week for "The Hasty Heart" . . . Jos was right proud that Ruth Chatterton has asked him to repeat his "Little Foxes" role of her husband with her up at Deer Lake, Pa. . . Then Joe goes into one more summer show, "The Milky Way," before buckling down in a new play this fall with Clare Luce . . . Joe's sure learned a lot of lines this summer and he's been most effective in those smart guy roles he specializes in . . . Good luck, Joe, and come back in a new one.

E STREET'S most remarkable sight these days is the line at the National box office . . . "The Red Mill" is doing it after all these years and we couldn't be more surprised to find that the 40-odd-year-old Victor Herbert operetta is responsible for a midsummer stand-up brigade, rivaled only by the peerless "Oklahoma!"

CORPSE HUNTERS: Adele Jurgens doesn't seem to be expecting Jim Bannon, who looks quite desperate in this scene from "The Corpse Came C. O. D.," opening tomorrow at the Metropolitan

This Morning
—With Shirley Povich

Blue Plate Special

BOSTON, AUG. 12.—And now the glitter of Buck Newsom's pitching for the Yankees is beginning to wear off in spots. The opposition has been knocking the spots off him lately. In fact, he broke in for the Yanks with three impressive victories in a row, but he hasn't lasted beyond the sixth inning in any of his last three starts.

POVICH

That's the way it goes with Newsom. With every new club he joins, he breaks in with a flourish. He's the consistent opportunist that way. There is no gainsaying the three nice wins he turned in for the Yanks at the outset, when he was on trial, in a sense. He pitched himself into a full World Series share and a regular job next year that will last until Bobo acclimates himself to his new job. That latter state of affairs never reacts in Newsom's favor.

Frank Filchock will play football this fall, despite the fact that he is permanently barred by the National Football League and unacceptable to the All-America Conference, or any other league that fancies itself a part of organized football.

Filchock sold out his ice cream business in Washington the other day and entrained for Canada where he will quarterback a Canadian Rugby pro club.

Meanwhile, Coach Steve Owen of the New York Giants frankly admits that he'd rather have lost any other man on his squad except Filchock, who was heaved out of the league for failing to report a bribe offer. He doesn't have another quarterback, and in his desperation is trying to groom Frank Reagan, the old Penn star, for the job.

ED SMITH, the left hander of the White Sox, claimed yesterday by the Boston Red Sox, would be a member of the Nats except for the fact that Manager Ossie Bluege got a bum steer.

"We're trying to get another left-handed pitcher because we're short handed, and when Smith's name appears on the waiver list, I wanted to claim him," said Bluege. "Sid Hudson was hurt, and we needed pitching help. But Hudson came to me before the game in Philadelphia last Sunday and said he felt fine, so we passed Smith up.

"But Hudson lasts only two innings in Philly and comes up with a sore arm that may keep him out for weeks. Now I wish we had claimed Smith. We had the first crack at him, being lower in the standings than the Red Sox, but we ended up with a sore-armed Hudson."

STAID OLD BOSTON saw something new the other night when Fenway Park fans, in a rage at Umpire Joe Rue, showered the field with newspapers, seat cushions, sandwiches, beer cans and even shoes. It rivaled any rhubarb seen in Brooklyn, and was first page stuff in the Boston newspapers.

Bobby Doerr was the victim of Rue's decision at third base and the customers took their cue from Doerr, a tranquil soul, who rarely squawks. When he did, he got ready support. When Third Base Coach Del Baker, another traditional non-squawker, also stormed at Rue and was heaved out of the game, the fans cut loose. Joe Cronin's heave-ho after he joined the tirade was a mere anti-climax.

President Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox, whose special police gave Rue excellent protection as he walked from the field, found no cause to quarrel with his squawking players.

"They were standing up for their rights, it was no act," he said. "Everything they did was sincere. Don't forget, we were out in front in the ball game at the time. It wasn't any cry-baby act on the part of the Red Sox."

THE NEW ENGLAND race horse people are in an uproar this week because of what happened to Eddie Yowell, former jockey who now is a trainer. Yowell, a favorite in these parts, who rode in the first race ever run legally in New England, at Rockingham Park in 1933, now finds himself in a jam because Blue Gyp, a horse in his stable, was found to have been stimulated.

The evidence was there with benzedrine discovered in the horse's saliva. And the trainer is considered responsible. But Yowell says many persons could have had access to the horse's barn and it is unfair that he is barred because of circumstances he could not control.

In New England they're now saying that the receiving barn which is maintained by the tracks with all entries subjected to saliva tests before the race, is the only answer to such cases. Maryland horsemen fought the receiving barn for a long time, but the majority are now happy to be out from under the threat of what happened to Yowell.

Nats' Story Unchanged, They Lose By 2-1 as Bosox Rap Wynn in 9th

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Boston, Aug. 12.—The Nats were practically on their way to the dressing-room mirrors for an admiring peek at themselves as winners of a ball game today when the Red Sox suddenly stirred up two runs in the ninth, and the Nats didn't win.

They were licked, 2 to 1, after Early Wynn took a 1-0 lead into the ninth with a four-hit game in his possession.

Then it was that the Red Sox pulled the run out from under Wynn and knocked any incipient vanity out of the Nats, who haven't won a ball game in Boston in seven tries this season.

As late as two out in the ninth, Wynn was still nicely out in front. Johnny Pesky drew a walk to open the inning and Dom DiMaggio sacrificed him to second. Wynn disposed of Ted Williams on a high pop to Priddy for the second out, and then had no success at all thereafter.

Bobby Doerr rescued the Red Sox from defeat and Murrell Jones won the ball game for 'em. Doerr lashed a single to center for the tying run and Wynn had two strikes on First Baseman Jones when he lost the ball game.

Jones whacked a line drive triple to center to score Doerr all the way from first.

The Red Sox ended up with six hits, and the Nats in a burat of batting power made nine hits off Dennis Galehouse and Mickey Harris. It marked the first game in their last 13 that the Nats have achieved more than seven blows.

But the Nats' swats added up to one mere run in the first inning, and none at all thereafter. They got their run when Joe Grace led off with a single and scored, two outs later, on Mickey Vernon's double off the left-field wall.

The Nats had men on first and third with one out in the fifth after Ferrell singled and Wynn doubled, but got nothing except a laugh from the ladies day crowd of 16,742.

They ended up in the embarrassing situation of having two men on third base and no farther. First Baseman Jones, who took a grounder by Lewis, stepped on first to retire the batter and finally achieve an unassisted double play.

Ferrell cautiously held third on Lewis' grounder, but Wynn didn't hold second. After Jones retired Lewis, Jones calmly walked across the diamond where both Ferrell and Wynn were standing on the bag, and tagged Wynn out to end the inning.

In the seventh, Gerry Priddy reache dthird base with one out when Dom DiMaggio missed a nose-dive for his liner which ended us as a triple. He rested there while Ferrell popped up and Wynn lined out.

Wynn allowed the Red Sox two hits in the first inning and two in the fifth and no more until they won the ball game in the ninth . . . Cecil Travis, who played third base today because Manager Ossie Bluege decided to rest the overworked Eddie Yost, didn't have a fielding chance . . . Tomorrow, the Nats will try an innovation—Milo Candini as a starting pitcher for the first time this season. He'll face Tex Hughson.

JOHN GIACOFCI AND HIS MIDGET RACER

Astute Local Midget Owner Content to Let Others Drive

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

"You can weld steel but not bones."

That is the philosophy of a young Washington mechanic who has owned a midget racing car for four years but has yet to drive it.

John Giacofci, 24-year-old Navy veteran, is content to let the thrill seekers do the actual racing. He keeps his car in shape, settling for the 60% of all prize money which goes to the owner.

"Besides," he confides, "I'm not built to drive. My knees hit the dashboard." He indicates his 6 feet, 180 pounds. "Just like a horse jockey, midget drivers usually have certain specifications—somewhat different."

Keeping a car running—especially one like Giacofci's "Poison Baby," as some drivers refer to it—seems to be a full-time job in itself.

Three weeks ago a driver, Harry Hart, died in a crackup of Giacofci's tiny thunderbolt and it has taken the young graduate of Eastern High every minute since then to repair his livelihood. Yesterday it was reassembled, painted a brilliant red and white, and Giacofci is ready to put it back on the racing circuit.

Tomorow night, with the well-known Mike Joseph piloting, the speedster competes at Yellock Jacket Speedway in Philadelphia; Friday ngiht it'll be back at West Lanham; and so forth.

Five or six nights a week it'll race until, of course, the next inevitable smashup. Then back to Giacofci's tiny shop at the rear of 112 17th st. se.

That fatal accident of "Poison Baby"—Ciacofci ignores the nickname, calling it simply "My Offenhauser"—wasn't the first the local lad's cars have suffered.

Hart had a preliminary scrape, from which he may have been still shaken when he took his death ride. And George Fonder demolished the car earlier, stepping out with a mere skinned lip.

"I gamble with my car," Giacofci summarizes, "and the drivers gamble with their necks. It's strictly business with both of us, and not such a bad business at that . . ."

Clearing five to six hundred dollars a week, when his car's in action, seems profitable enough. That's what Giacofci's share of purses amounts to after about $300 in expenses.

The young owner wasn't always so well-heeled. There were the days back in 1938 at the short-lived Capitol Speedway when John, still in school and majoring in "anything except mathematics nad history," hung around just for the chance of shoving one of the big drivers' cars.

Then came the big day when his savings paid for an Elto Outboard 4-60. There followed racing around the midwest, and finally came April 1946 when there was word from Los Angeles that the car he'd always wanted—an Offenhauser—was ready.

"I went out and watched 'em assemble it," he says, "so I know every screw. That three weeks on the coast, incidentally, is about the only formal mechancial schooling I've had. It cost me just about $4900—the price of the car."

"That was cash, too. In this business there's no such thing as time payments, just like there's no such thing as insurance."

3½ Games Separate N. L. Leaders

St. Louis, Aug. 12 (AP).—Southpaw Johnny Schmitz of the Chicago Cubs handed the St. Louis Cardinals their second loss in 13 starts today, putting the soft brake on their stretch drive in pursuit of the Brooklyn Dodgers. The score was 2 to 1.

The defeat put St. Louis three and one-half games behind Brooklyn, subject to Brooklyn's night game with the Boston Braves at Ebbets Field.

The Cubs touched three Cardinal pitchers for 10 hits while Schmitz, steady all the way, yielded only seven before a crowd of 16,877.

Bookie Jim Hearn gave way to Al Brazle after five and two-thirds innings. Brazle was steady but was pulled for a pinch hitter in the seventh and Howie Pollet finished the game.

Schmitz was bad medicine to the Cardinals in a crucial game last season. It was he who defeated them here in the final regular game, forcing the Redbirds into a playoff with the Dodgers.

Brings Home Run

Chicago scored first in the fifth. Schmitz and Stan Hack singled with none out, and then Schmitz scored from third when Eddie Waitkus hit into a double play.

The Cardinals tied it in their half of the fifth on Del Ricee's double and singles gy Hearn and Red Schoendienst.

Veeck Evasive

Feller Irked By 'Fuss' Over Cuban Plans

Cleveland, Aug. 12 (AP). — Bob Feller said today he couldn't understand why his acceptance of an offer to make a five-game appearance in the Cuban League this fall had "created such a fuss."

The Cleveland Indians' ace hurler made the comment after Walter Mulbry, secretary-treasurer of baseball and spokesman for Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler said he did not believe Major Leaguers would be permitted to play in the Cuban League during the 30-day barnstorming period beginning October 8 if club owners objected.

"What's all the fuss about?" Feller asked. I certainly don't intend to play against any ineligible players or do anything to hurt organized baseball. The Cuban League has been recognized as a part of organized baseball so I see no reason why I can't go to Havana."

Expects no Opposition

The Tribe pitcher sad he had not obtained permission to make the trip from Indians' President Bill Veeck but anticipated no opposition.

Veeck currently is recuperating in a hospital from a second operation on his right leg which was removed last fall and Feller said he planned to discuss the tour with him as soon as it is convenient. "Right now he has other worries," Feller said.

Veeck declared from his hospital bed "until I talk with Feller I have no idea what stand I will take. The rule states he needs the permission of the baseball commissioner.

Up to Club Owner

At Chicago, American League President Willam Harridge said approval of appearances by Feller and other American League players would be up to Commissioner Chandler.

Mulbry said Feller had not been in communication with the baseball commissioner's office.

Asked whether Chandler had made any secret agreement with the Cuban Winter League to allow major league players to play in it during the barnstorming period, Mulbry answered:

"No."

Feller, who has spearheaded efforts of major league players to barnstorm for unlimited periods, asserted:

"I'm for the players and I believe they have every right to barnstorm and make some extra money. Why should a major league player be limited to 30 days of barnstorming when a minor leageu can play all winter? It places a penalty on being a major leaguer.

Yarosz Third Contender in 3 Weeks Here

When Tommy Yarosz, third-ranking lightweight contender, exposes his chin to Bee Bee Washington at Griffith Stadium next Monday night, it will mark the third straight week that District fight fans will be watching an outstanding title contender.

And that's a record that not even New York, which is losing its grip as the Nation's fight capital, can boast.

Yarosz Record Best

The "name" boys who have paraded in the Griffith Stadium ring the past fortnight Johnny Bratton, the No. 8 lightweight, who stopped Herbie Jones in the eighth round, and Washington's own Smuggy Hursey, now No. 9 on the middleweight list, who was held to a draw by Danny Kapilow last Monday night.

With the possible exception of Archie Moore, the No. 4 man of the 175-pounders who battered Curtis Sheppard here two months ago, Yarosz has the best record of the lot.

The brother of Ted Yarosz, former middleweight champion, has lost but two fights out of 62 and currently has a string of 36 straight victories.

Tommy campaigns as a lightheavy, but he can do business in the middleweight class, too, as he fights at 163 pounds.

First Showing Here

This will be Yarosz's first appearance in Washington, but his second meeting with Bee Bee. He and "Double B" collided in Pittsburgh, Yarosz's home, in February and Tommy got the nod after a whale of a battle.

The Yarosz party is due here Thursday to finish preparations for the bout at Turner's Arena, the same day that Bee Bee unlimbers his artillery at the 14th and W streets fight palace.

Dutch Leonard Blanks Giants

Philadelphia, Aug. 12 (AP).—Knuckleball Artist Dutch Leonard limited the New York Giants to six hits today in pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-0 triumph over the home-run hitting New Yorkers. The Giants were blanked in their specialty today.

Philadelphia raked a trio of Giant pitchers for 10 hits, all singles, with Del Ennis, Jim Tabor and Howie Schultz chipping in with two apiece.

Rickey Undecided On Leo's Return, Columnist Says

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Columnist Earl Wilson of the New York Post said today in a dispatch from Hollywood that Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, had told him he "doesn't know" whether Leo Durocher will return as Brooklyn manager next season.

The Dodger boss hitherto has steadfastly declined to discuss the future of Durocher, who was suspended by Commissioner A. B. Chandler shortly before the start of the 1947 campaign. Wilson, who interviewed Rickey on a movie lot, quotes him as having replied to a direct question about Leo's status:

"I don't know. You say, why don't I know, and I say because it's too early to tell, and because of complications. Time will tell."

Asked by Wilson if, by "complication," he meant that it would be difficult to drop his present manager, Burt Shotton, if the Dodgers should win the National League flag and the world series, Rickey was quoted as having replied:

"You could build up a pretty good case for that side, couldn't you?"

3 Swim Titlists Out to Repeat

Three champions will defend District AAU outdoor senior swimming crowns at Takoma Park pool Monday night.

Miss Roland last year won both the 100-yard breaststroke and backstroke titles.

Another Takoma champion, Jan Vanderslui, will be out to repeat in the men's backstroke. Heretofore, the backstroke has been a 150-yard race, but is being trimmed this year to a century.

Stanley Tinkham, the Ambassador ace who captured a trio of firsts last week in the regional AAU championships at Sarasota, Fla., is another titlist out to repeat. The rangy youngster took the 220 breaststroke last summer.

Leola Thomas, Ambassador, who broke two records in three wins at Sarasota, is priming to eclipse her District 100-yard freestyle record of 1:05.7, set in 1944.

How to Play Tennis

By Dave Johnsen

This is the third of a series of articles by the District's leading tennis players in conjunction with The Washington Post-Recreation Department Tennis School.

The Drop Shot

A drop shot is an undercut stroke which drops just over the net with a very low, slow bounce.

It should be used after several deep drives to the corners have your opponent on the run. When he finally hits a short return, you are in position to either make a forcing shot to the deep corner which you follow to the net, or use the drop shot.

Johnsen

The shot should be dropped near the sideline on either side of the court and must land near the net or its effectiveness is lot. It should not be used too often or your opponent will be on the lookout for it.

It may be made off either the forehand or the backhand. Do not give the shot away beforehand by choking up on your racket, but make the stroke naturally as you would a regular drive. Work on your deception until you feel you have it mastered.

The drop shot is most effective against players with weak net games and players who are slow on their feet and tire easily. The purpose of this shot is to tire and demoralize one's opponent, much the same as a boxer uses body punches to slow up his rival and set him up for the kill.

A tennis match cannot be won with the drop shot alone, but it is a necessary shot in a well-rounded game. Keep it in reserve until the right moment comes and it will win many a crucial point.

Tindrel Scores Hagerstown Race Upset

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 12—With the thermometer registering around the 100 mark, some 5500 fans became even hotter when Mrs. K. L. Molyneaux's Louray O'Neill, 3 to 5 favorite, finished out of the money in the Cumberland Purse, six and one half furlong feature won by Stillson H. Hall's Tintrel, one that paid $9.40.

In Justice to Louray O'Neill, it must be said he had bad racing luck, and after getting into a contending position in the run down the back lane, tired. Tintrel forced the pace and then hung on gamely to defeat Stanley Greene, jr.'s fast closing Walter Haight. I. G. Schosch's Lord Loudoun was third.

J. N. Fishback's Sun Victory, favorite at odds of $5.60 started off the final week's racing by leading every step of a six and one half furlong race run in 1:23. J. K. Wynkoop's Miss Neptune outgamed Mrs. Esther Warren's Prison Ship for the place.

C. W. Spiker's Step Up registered his second straight score, when he came off the pace to whip S. Schosch's Intelligentsia in the mile and one sixteenth of the second. W. C. Ayers' Walter Light was third. Step Up paid $6.40.

When the 6-1 daily double combination of Sun Victory and Step Up clicked it enabled holders of tickets to collect $29.20.

The six and one half furlongs of the third fell to Mrs. Mildred C. Plank's Town Camp, one that raced the distance in 1:22 4-5 and who paid $5.60. The place went to B. E. Martin's Gradatim, with D. H. Tabler's Hard Loser, favorite third.

Famed Test To Be Held In Portland

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—The United States Professional Golfers Associatidn tonight announced the postwar renewal of the Ryder Cup matches with Great Britain would be staged at the Portland, Oreg., golf club November 1-2.

The British P.G.A. had announced earlier in London that the November dates would be acceptable, leaving the American organization to pick the site.

The P.G.A. officers here said arrangements were completed this afternoon by Ed Dudley, president of the ruling body of the United States pros, and Robert A. Hudson, an official of the Portland Golf Club.

The Americans, who now hold the cup, were scheduled to defend it in 1939 but the matches were postponed because Great Britain was at war.

British PGA officials accepted the November dates from a host of others submitted by the United States PGA.

Players who will comprise the British squad will be chosen from among the following:

British Open Champion Fred Daly; Reg Horne, who tied Frank Stanahan of Toledo, Ohio, for runner up spot in the British Open; Veteran Henry Cotton, Jimmy Adams, Ken Bousfield, Fred Bullock, Dick Burton, Max Faulkner, E. Green, Frank Jowle, Sam King, Dai Rees, Norman Sutton, Charley Wood and the winner of the news of the world tournament if he is not on the list already under consideration.

Alligator Bout Rivals Feature On Tonight's Card

Wrestling, alligator style, will be served up tonight at Turner's Arena as an added attraction on the show featuring Big Ben Morgan, 340-pound Texas giant, and Red Ryan, the roly-poly Philadelphian.

Gil Woodworth battles a 12-foot alligator from the Everglades weighing a mere 550 pounds.

Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Washington Zoo, will be among the interested observers, and also will serve as "unofficial" referee. Woodworth will attempt to turn the monster over on his back, and the same time will drop his head into the 'gator's mouth.

Ivan Talum opposes Farro Rinaldo, of Milwaukee, in the semi-windup; Billy Darnell tackles George Macricostas, and Stu Hart meets Andy Meixner. First bout is at 8:45 o'clock.

Upset Marks Women's Golf

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 12 (AP).—A missed four-footer putt on the last green today ruined the chances of the young gallery favorite, Mary McMillin, of davancing to the second round of the Women's West Golf Tournament but all other highly regarded contestants moved ahead.

After tournament-seasoned Dot Kirby of Atlanta had beaten 19-year-old Miss McMillin, the Wisconsin State champion from Green Bay, 1-up, by winning the sixteenth and seventeenth holes, other veterans were pressed to the limit and to extra holes on two occasions to remain among the 16 survivors.

Margaret Gunther of Memphis the Tennessee State titlist, needed 20 holes to beat Mrs. W. H. Bretzlaff, jr., the 1946 Detroit District runnerup.

Two of the leading contenders, defending champion Louise Suggs of Atlanta, and 19-year-old Grace Lenczyk of Hartford, Conn., respectively sidelined Clair Doran of Cleveland, 5 and 4, and Sallys Sessions of Muskegon, Mich., 3 and 2.

Soccer at Baltimore

Baltimore, Aug. 12 (AP).—For the first time in the school's history, University of Baltimore will field a soccer team this fall with eight games on the schedule. Francis M. Skaff, Bees' athletic director, will be head coach.

Henrich Hurt, Out for 3 Days

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Tommy Henrich, New York Yankee outfielder, probably will be out of the line-up for two or three days due to Jules Gordon, the club physicians.

Dr. Gordon said X-rays showed Henrich was suffering from a "slight effusion of the right ankle, nothing serious." He advised two or three days of rest.

Brewers Beat Firemen, 1-0, Before 5000 in City Series

The Washington Post-Industrial League representative scored a last-inning victory to inaugurate its action in the city sandlot championships yesterday when the Heurich Brewers downed Fire Department nine, 1-0, on the Ellipse.

With some 5000 spectators on hand, the Brewers got their single tally in the ninth on walks to Good and Castro, Pepco Barry's hit to left field, and Max Coe's long fly. Ernie Utz took credit for the victory, saving Ottie Printz from a desperate situation in the sixth and hurling one-hit ball the rest of the way.

Boggs allowed the Brewers only six hits while his mates collected 10 off Printz and Utz.

Today's scheduled in the scramble for a berth in the All-American tournament in Harrisonburg, Pa., lists Merrick Boys Club against Costello Post on the South Ellipse and Robins versus F.B.I. on the West Ellipse, both games at 4:45 p. m.

New Cab Zone Plan Approved For Bethesda

Peaceful settlement of the Bethesda taxi rate squabble was effected yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners.

James H. Pugh, attorney for Bethesda hackers, and County Public Utilities Agent Albert E. Conradis appeared before the commissioners at their meeting in Rockville yesterday. They presented a new zone plan for Bethesda-Chevy Chase, which Pugh said was satisfactory to the hackers.

The new first zone will be in a half-mile radius of the Bank of Bethesda corner at Wisconsin ave., and Old Georgetown rd. The rate will be 30 cents. Ten cents will be added for each of three zones on the outside. Cost from the District Line to Naval Medical Center will be 70 cents and to Suburban Hospital 60 cents under the new plan. The commissioners approved the new zones.

To be Effective Soon

Conradis said he was not certain just when the new taxi regulations would become effective, but that it would be within a short time.

The commissioners received a letter from the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department urging establishment of a fire district for Silver Spring as an effective method of forcing the Potomac Electric Power Co. to place its lines underground on Georgia ave.

Pepco had informed the commissioners that it would not put the lines underground unless such action were forced. The firm had intimated that higher rates would be sought for the area if the company were made to go underground. The company would ask removal of the area from the Washington Metropolitan Rate District and transfer of rate fixing to the Maryland Public Service Commission, which would result in higher rates for the suburban Maryland communities.

Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter said a fire district also should require fireproof doors, fire escapes, protection for boilers and other precautions. The commissioners then directed Public Utilities Agent Conradis to prepare a proposed fire district code for study by the board.

Ordinance Suggested

Sauter suggested an ordinance requiring that vacant lots be cleared of underbrush, particularly ragweed.

County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr reported that the new equipment shed for the Western Suburban District had been completed and was in use for county road equipment. A gasoline tank and oiling facilities have been provided for use by all cars in that area.

The building cost $5750 and was completed, except for plumbing, eelectrical fixtures and guttering, by employes of the roads department under supervision of Commisisoner Sauter, M. L. Armentrout, carpenter, and M. L. Butcher, foreman of the Bethesda Road Department.

Sarcasm Held Woe of Police

Taking sarcasm is part of the day's work of a policeman, according to Judge John P. McMahon.

Before the jurist yesterday came Police Pvt. G. D. Thornton, who complained that when on August 7, he approached the escort of Miss Ophelia Harrison, 22, 1619 B st. se., to question him, she butted in with:

Don't pay any damned attention to him. He's just trying to make some money on the side."

And, according to Thornton, she "used a very sarcastic tone."

In dismissing the disorderly charge, Thornton had placed against Miss Harrison, Judge McMahon said:

"Young man, in your line of business you've got to get used to sarcasm from people."

Brewster Committee Staff Faces Shake-Up

By Jerry Kluttz

These are several events in the making in Government:

PATENT OFFICE: Casper W. Ooms, the able and hard-driving Commissioner of Patents, will resign. It's reported he has already talked over his retirement plans with Commerce Secretary Harriman. A recent operation has kept Ooms from his office most of the time in recent months.

Ooms has reorganized much of the Patent Office work in his two years as its chief. Many an employe there is grateful to him for a better job classification and salary.

SENATE: The staff of the Brewster Committee will be shaken up. It's reported this staff will be made the "whipping boy" in the violent backfire from the so-called Howard Hughes-Elliott Roosevelt inquiry. Several GOP members are said to be critical of the staff's "sloppy" work in gathering material on the affair. But wasn't it the Senators themselves who allowed the "circus" to get out of hand?

LABOR: Lewis B. Schwellenbach, the disillusioned Labor Secretary, will put up a stiff fight to rebuild his scuttled department. He laid his plans Friday before the President, who is reported to be sympathetic. Those plans are said to provide:

For the President to send a new reorganization plan to Congress early next year which would call for retention of the United States Employment Service in the Labor Department and the transfer of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation from the Federal Security Agency to Labor. Also, the transfer of other labor activities to Schwellenbach's agency.

However, earlier this year, the Congress rejected a plan that would keep USES in Labor—an action which would compel its eventual transfer back to Federal Security. One of the big arguments against the plan was that USES and Unemployment Compensation should be together. Schwellenbach is willing to have them in the same agency—if they are in his department.

COMMERCE: Philip E. Nelson is reported planning to resign as chief of the Industrial Production Division in Commerce's Office of Small Business. A La Follette progressive, he plans to return to Wisconsin where he may run for Congress against Representative Alvin E. O'Konski, a Republican, in the Tenth District. Nelson formerly served in the Wisconsin Senate.

NLRB: The President will fire any top official of the National Labor Relations Board if he becomes dissatisfied with his administration of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act. He recently had the board's staff on his White House carpet and this, in effect, is what he told them:

I want to warn you now that each of you is on probation to please me and not the Ball congressional committee with your administration of the Taft-Hartley Act. The Constitution places the responsibility on me for the administration of laws affecting the executive branch. I'm delegating my authority on the labor act to you. You are working for me. I will not send to the Senate for confirmation next year the name of any official whose work does not satisfy me.

That blunt warning by the President was turned into an amusing—

STORY: Abe Murdock, one of the new NLRB board members, broke in to commend the President. He talked on the division of powers as between the Chief Executive and the Congress and he told his colleagues that the President was absolutely right. He then turned to the President and said, in effect:

"Mr. President, I want to remind you that when I was a member of the Senate I made several speeches on the constitutional powers of the Chief Executive, the Congress, and the Judicial Branch. I always raised my voice in protest when the Congress attempted to encroach on the powers of the President or the courts."

The President cut him off gently with his friendly crack:

"I remember all about those speeches of yours, Abe, I had to listen to them."

LOYALTY: Yes; every Federal worker must be fingerprinted again and it makes no difference how many times they have been fingerprinted before.

After my exclusive story here yesterday on the Federal worker loyalty plans, many employes called to say they had already been fingerprinted and they asked if a new set would have to be submitted. To repeat, the answer is yes.

Other employes wanted to know why Form 57's couldn't be used to identify and check up on them instead of their being compelled to fill out new forms. The answer is this—it's less trouble for all concerned to have employes make out the new and simple name form.

Bunch Case Inquest Set For Today

Coroner's Jury To Hear Doctors Who Examined Man At Gallinger

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

A coroner's jury today will hear details of the death of a man who died of a skull fracture six days after he was arrested for intoxication.

The victim, whose death on August 4 at Gallinger Hospital was officially ascribed to the fracture and to a cerebral hemorrhage, was Forest J. Bunch, 50-year-old carpenter, of 18 3d st. ne.

The inquest follows an investigation by the police department, instigated by the family of Bunch, in a letter to Commissioner J. Russell Young, the day before his death.

Picked Up on Intoxication

In their letter the family indicated that they had reason to believe that the victim had sustained his injuries while in custody of the Ninth Precinct police.

Records at the Ninth Precinct and at Gallinger Hospital show that Bunch was picked up in front of 1302 F st. ne. at 12:45 a. m., July 29 and taken to No. 9 on a charge of intoxication.

At 6:35 a. m., he complained of being ill and was taken to Gallinger Hospital, where his case was diagnosed as acute alcoholism with no apparent injuries.

He was returned to the precinct, but at 7:15 that evening, after showing visible signs of illness, he was taken back to Gallinger, but this time in an ambulance.

Doctors reexamined him but could not diagnose his case. He was admitted to the hospital suffering from "fever of an undetermined origin."

Later that night he suffered a convulsion and he was found to be bleeding from the nose and ear. Further examination revealed a skull fracture at the base of his brain and his family was notified that he was in a critical condition.

Evidence of Bruises

The family maintains that after talking to all the doctors that had examined Bunch there was evidence that there were bruises on his body on the second examination which were not there at the time of the first examination.

Homicide detectives who investigated the case say that their investigation shows that Bunch had been drinking heavily and that he might have suffered a stroke and fractured his skull when he fell to the ground.

The inquest will be conducted by deputy coroner Christopher J. Murphy. It is expected that five doctors from Gallinger who participated in the examination of Bunch will testify.

Better Pay Is Bringing Teachers Back to Md.

Counties Expect To Fill All Vacancies For First Time Since Before War

For the first time since before the war, county superintendents expect to fill all vacancies, the State Department of Education in Baltimore reported yesterday.

In Montgomery County, Assistant of Schools E. M. Douglass said the county has a full roster of teachers ready for the new term. He attributed the increased number of applications to the new salary scale that brings teachers substantial raises.

In Prince Georges County, W. S. Schmidt, director of instruction, reported some difficulty in filling 18 elementary school posts. At present there are 23 vacancies in the 735 teaching jobs available in the county.

Schmidt said he expected all posts will be filled by opening day.

The State Department of Education report also attributed the influx of teachers into schools to increased pay. The report indicated that the supply of teachers will permit superintendents in some cases to replace teachers holding certificates with those holding degrees.

Kew Garden Given Right To Hike Rent

Increases Average 3%, Will Bring Owners $1137 More Per Year

The District Rent Control Administration yesterday granted rent hikes averaging 3 per cent for 54 units at Kew Garden Apartments, 2700 Q st. nw.

Boosts averaging 12 per cent had been asked by the owners, the Roevmar Realty Corp. The rise allowed will bring the owners $1137 more per year instead of the $4488 they sought.

Two rooms and bath apartments will go up from $42.50 to $43.75 per month; six rooms and bath units from $107.50 to $110.75.

Examiner James G. Tyson, who heard the case July 29, recommended the increase to cover higher taxes and maintenance and operatingf costs. He said he made no allowance for capital improvements or the owners' plea that Kew Garden rent ceilings were lower than those for comparable housing accommodations.

Lynch Pulls Primary Victory Out of Virginia Official's Hat

ing, scheduled for 3 p. m. was delayed a few minutes while Levin Nock Davis, secretary of the elections board, talked by long distance with James Keith, the candidate's attorney, and was informed that McCandlish would not be represented.

Drawing Unprecedented

The drawing of lots in a primary race is unprecedented in Virginia but some years ago Peter Saunders, secretary of the commonwealth at the time, broke a tie vote in a general election from Wythe County by drawing a Democrat's name from a hat by consent of the candidate.

In the first announcement on the election night it appeared that Lynch had won the primary contest by two votes but in the official count Lynch lost a vote and McCandlish gained one to cause a tie and the vote was so certified to the board.

Several conferences between members of the elections board and Attorney General A. P. Staples followed and it was decided that under the State elections laws the board had authority to decide the matter by lot.

Montgomery Lists Teacher Pay Increases

700 will Receive Boosts Ranging From $300 to $1200

Montgomery County's new teacher-pay scale was announced yesterday by the county Board of Education at its meeting in Rockville, Md.

The new scale provides for increases from $300 to $1200 annually for the nearly 700 teachers in the school system and represents the culmination of a long campaign for more adequate teacher pay.

The new scale, however, will not provide actually for all of the county school teachers in accordance with the new salaries. Teachers who have been with the county many years who otherwise would receive twice as much increase are barred from the full boost by a limitation of $1200 annual step-up placed by the county commissioners in fixing the budget. It is hoped this inequity can be erased next year, officials said.

$2200 Minimum at Start

The new scale provides for an entrance salary of $2200 for teachers without degree; $2500 for those with bachelor's degrees and $2700 for those with master's degrees. They are increased annually until, at the end of 21 years, the teacher with a master's degree will be receiving $5300. The salaries are based on a ten-month year, and teachers who are required to work in summertime will be paid additional salaries based on their ten months' pay.

The board also announced appointment of Dr. Harold H. Mitchell to be the first full-time school physician for the county. Dr. Mitchell, at present health officer of the Lower East Side Health Center of New York City, will coordinate and supervise the school health program. He has had an extensive career in child health work and is to arrive in the county about November 1.

Site Purchase Authorized

Purchase of a 30-acre site near the present Bradley Elementary School for a junior high school and possibly another future elementary school was authorized at yesterday's meeting. The board will meet Monday to consider bids for construction of additions to Potomac, Rockville, Four Corners, Glenmont, Westbrook and Kensington elementary schools.

Acceptance of five dual control cars from the American Automobile Association for use in driver training courses in the county high schools was approved.

The new teachers' salary scale follows:

New Pay Schedule:

Hearing Is Slated On Va. Industrial School Merger

Richmond, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—A public hearing on a proposal that Virginia's four industrial schools for juvenile delinquents be merged into two coeducational institutions will be conducted in the Senate Chamber at the State Capitol on September 8, the State Board of Public Welfare announced today.

The board at its monthly meeting here today discussed the proposal at length and instructed the department's Bureau of Physical Operations to draw up a report on actual costs of construction and operating the suggested merger institutions.

A subcommittee of the board, which met yesterday and reviewed a report and recommendation from the State Department of Education on the matter, decided to incorporate the report into its final recommendation to Governor Tuck and did not disclose the education department's recommendations.

Two new principals and 99 new teachers were appointed by the Prince Georges County Board of Education yesterday. Fahy Honored On Eve of Quitting State Dept. Post

Charles Fahy, former United States Solicitor General, was honored in farewell toasting last night at the United Nation's Club, 19th and R sts. nw., signaling his retirement this Friday as State Department legal adviser.

He will be succeeded by Ernest A. Gross of New York, who was present at last night's special ceremony. Fahy will return to private law practice in Washington.

Nearly 100 members of the State Department's legal staff, their wives and fellow employes attended the cocktail and buffet hour, including Undersecretary and Mrs. Robert Lovett. The guests presented Fahy with a "Proclamation of Friendship" for his services.

Fahy, 54, entered public life as assistant solicitor of the Interior Department in 1933. He became, successively, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, assistant solicitor general, solicitor general, and director of the legal division of the United States Control Council in Germany, before his appointment to the State Department post in May, 1946.

New Screening Plan Will Close Relief Bureau Aug. 14, 15, 18

Normal activities of the Welfare Department's Public Assistance Division will be closed to the public August 14, 15 and 18 while social workers check cases to see which clients will be eliminated by tough new relief requirements.

This was announced yesterday by Edgar Morris, chairman of the Board of Public Welfare, who said a limited number of workers would be assigned to handle interviews and phone calls in emergency cases.

Special efforts will be made, he said, to forestall possible delay in mailing out September relief checks due to the three-day break in operations.

The case curtailment plan was approved by the Welfare Board last week as an alternative to a general 10 per cent cut in relief checks.

The plan will stop payments to those who have full time jobs, are eligible for unemployment compensation, have only small monthly deficits or have relatives who can supply adequate financial help.

Club Opens Scholarship Drive To Aid Training School Boys

The Exchange Club yesterday began a drive to provide 12 $500 scholarships for youths sentenced to the National Training School for Boys.

The club, at its weekly luncheon in the Willard Hotel, collected $250 toward the first of the planned 12 scholarships, Dr. Richard R. Hutcheson, president, announced.

If the plan is approved by Federal authorities, the scholarships would go to youths chosen by the boys themselves, to gether with Superintendent Harold E. Hegstro.m

The schol has plenty of college or vocational school timber, Hegstrom said, after addressing the club.

NTS has youths from all parts of the United States and possessions, many with keen abilities in music, radio, science, business or art, Hegstrom said.

Choice of college or school would depend upon the individual's abilities.

The scholarship plan knits closely into similar suggestions made by Attorney General Tom Clark, a Dallas, Tex., Exchange Club member, and stems from recent visits to NTS by local club members.

Here is how one Exchangite, Edward Beard, assistant corporation counsel, explained the idea:

"When you visit out there you realize those kids are just like yours and mine and you discover that the job National Training School is doing is one of the finest things on the American scene today.

"Those kids only want a fair break. We want to help them get it."

Announcement of the plan followed a talk by Hegstrom pointing out NTS's big problem is helping graduates get back into society without handicaps or stigma.

Helping the boy plan the right future, whether school or work, locating the right home for him, where someone will make the youth feel he is wanted and appreciated—that's the problem, sometimes seemingly insurmountable, said Hegstrom.

Citing case histories, the superintendent mentioned a boy who came back to NTS five times.

He had two married sisters. When their husbands not infrequently ended up in jail, the sisters resumed the only profession they knew. Two brother, disgusted, stayed away from home, and so, time and again was returned to NTS.

Home Was a Shack

Home for another graduate meant a windowless shack in North Carolina, where his four younger brothers were forbidden to return to school because they were lice-ridden.

Worst handicap, though, for the former NTS boy is the attitude of the general public—scorn, fear and suspicion.

In outlining the NTS curriculum, Hegstrom pointed out the institution's staff of psychologists and psychiatrists, chaplains, doctors and instructors get to know the youth more thoroughly than he was ever understood before.

NTS offers not only schooling and athletics, but also a wide range of vocational training, from farming to music, laundering and mechanics to laboratory training and business courses, he said.

The entire curriculum, he emphasized, is preparing the inmates for a return to normal living.

$22,000 More For Fire Alarm System Urged

Building Owners Group Fears Budget Slash Will Impair Efficiency

The Building Owners and Managers Association yesterday urged the Commissioners to ask Congress for $22,000 more for the operation of fire alarm headquarters.

The association, in a letter to the city heads, said it was "gravely concerned" over reports that fire alarm operations are seriously threatened because of budget restrictions.

Fire Chief Clement Murphy revealed Friday that a 1948 budget provision restricted fire alarm headquarters appropriations to $77,000, despite the fact that $98,000 is necessary for efficient operation of the fire alarm system.

BOMA pointed out that Chief Murphy had chosen to operate fire alarm headquarters at full capacity as long as the money lasts rather than reduce the staff with "resulting loss of efficiency."

"We submit he should not be placed in a position where he has to make such a choice," BOMA declared. "This association and its members have the highest confidence in Chief Murphy and feel that he would not ask for any sum in excess of his department's needs."

The necessary $22,000 could be reallocated to the fire alarm headquarters without adding to the $3,644,000 Fire Department budget for fiscal 1948, BOMA pointed out.

"We urge that as early a date as possible after Congress reconvenes, you present the matter to Congress with a view to having that body take corrective action," BOMA continued.

Chief Murphy said yesterday he also had asked the Commissioners to take the case to Congress.

'Spotty' Drought Adds Day by Day To Va. Crop Loss

Richmond, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—A drought of "really serious" import is causing financial loss in eastern Virginia with every day that passes without rainfall, State Commissioner of Agriculture L. M. Walker, jr., said today.

He said prospects for a late corn crop have diminished seriously. Tomatoes and other truck crops are suffering. Pastures are turning brown in many tidewater areas. The yield from hay crops is "far below" expectations.

Walker said he could not remember a year in which rainfall had been so "spotty." Some areas in eastern Virginia seem to have had ample moisture, the commissioner said, but o nother farms only a mile or so away crops are drying up.

Rainfall for the State as a whole apparently has been sufficient.

Age Leaves Its Mark, History Its Record, Congressional Cemetery Visitors May Read

Monuments like these were placed at the graves of many early Congressmen, buried in historic Congressional Cemetery

This monument was raised over the grave of Push-Ma-Ta-Ha, a Choctaw chief, who died of the croup while on a trip to Washington as a delegate of his nation

The Washington Post

Warlike monument marks the grave of Maj. Gen. Alexander Macomb, ex-Army commander

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Remote from the activities on "the Hill," aloof from the traffic of Barney Circle, are buried the dead of Congressional Cemetery.

Under the stately old trees on the bank high above the Anacostia River they rest, those people who took their great or modest part in national or local affairs.

Studying their stones, reading their names, is like turning the pages of an old local history on a drowsy summer afternoon, when suddenly from the pages comes the sparkle of the sun on the buttons of half forgotten uniforms, or the sound of galloping horses.

Some of Those Buried

John Philip Sousa, incomparable bandmaster; Elbridge Gerry, signer of the Declaration of Independence; Push-Ma-Ta-Ha, great orator and warrior; Tobias Lear, last of George Washington's private secretaries—these are some of the men in Congressional Cemetery.

Beyond the cemetery gate at 1801 E st. se., there are some 70,000 graves in all, according to William Heinline, superintendent of the cemetery for the last 13 years and former vestryman of Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, 620 G st. se.

The cemetery was established by the church in 1807. Washington had been the seat of national government only seven years.

Like the city, the history of the cemetery is a continuing one, with burials averaging about 300 a year, according to Heinline.

Few Children Burried Now

Significant in terms of improving health is his observation that whereas, "up to 30 or 35 years ago about six out of ten persons buried were children, now we seldom have a child buried here.

"Sentiment rules the world. Many, of course, come to see or tend their family graves," he says. One elderly man comes daily to tend the graves of his parents.

Practical Politician Too

The monument pays tribute to his patriotic devotion, but he was a practical politician, too, as the word "gerrymandering" attests.

Tobias Lear, whose name is familiar to every reader of Kenneth Roberts' best-selling novel, "Lydia Bailey," is buried in an adjacent grave. Lear, who was Washington's confidential secretary and married into the family, committed suicide in the garden of a home he built on G st. near 18th st.

Sousa rests beneath a marble exedra, or bench, and his grave is one of those which attract many visitors.

Sousa

Sometimes compared to a totem pole is the monument over the grave of Alexander Macomb, "major general commanding-in-chief," who died in 1841. The stone is surmounted by a Greek helmet.

Hint of Family Tragedy

A hint of family tragedy is revealed in the nearby monument of Commoder John Rodgers, senior officer of the Navy when he died in 1838. On another face of the stone is an inscription to "Midshipman Frederick Rodgers, drowned near Norfolk, a.,' in 1828, aged 17 years.

Commodore John Tingey, who served as first commandant of the Navy Yard and died in 1829, is buried by the cemetery office.

David E. Herold, who galloped into the night with John Wilkes Booth, and was hanged for his part in the assassination of Lincoln, is buried in an unmarked grave on the Herold family lot.

Nearly a hundred cenotaphs, erected by the Federal Government between 1838 and 1877, are a unique feature of the cemetery.

'New Terror of Death'

Senator Hoar of Massachusetts said on the Senate floor in 1877 that the prospect of being buried beneath one of those atrocities added a new terror to death. Upon his motion an act was passed putting an end to their further erection.

Push-Ma-Ta-Ha, the Choctaw chief, died of croup on Christmas Eve, while in Washington on a mission to the Great White Father.

"When I am gone, let the big guns fired over me," he said as he lay dying, and the words are inscribed on his stone.

The big guns were fired over him, and the drums muffled. The procession of the military, music and civilians in their carriages was a mile long. Thus was honored the white man's friend who held a commission in the American Army.

The site of his grave is always of interest to visitors, according to Superintendent Heinline, and frequently visited by Indians or those interested in Indian affairs.

A tall copper beech grows over the gravestone now.

It is the most appropriate monument that could be erected in this city of the past to the man who claimed the sun and moon for parents and asserted that at his birth he stepped forth from a tree a full fledged warrior.

Big Hotel Deal Bolsters Story Koos Leaving

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

CROPPING up again is the persistent rumor of important shifts in China's diplomatic setup. Wellington Koo, the present Ambassador, it's said, will return to Chungking to replace Wang Shih-chieh in the important post of Foreign Minister. The Koo ambassadorial job will be given to the United Nations Delegate, Quo Tai-chi, who has also had a crack at the Foreign Ministry.

Wellington Koo is China's No. 1 diplomat, brilliant, supple, marvelously successful in weathering his country's political upheavals. Fundamentally, he's no pal of Chiang Kai-shek. Twice in the past two decades the Generalissimo, to put it delicately, has forced the Ambassador to lam out of China. Once Wellington Koo just squeaked to safety on an off-coast British-held island by the somewhat undignified ruse of disguising himself as a peasant woman.

During these enforced absences various members of the Soong family (Mme. Chiang is a Soong) moved into the Koo's Peiping palace, and after the political tangles had been unsnarled, many of the most exquisite furnishings were mysteriously missing.

Roomers on the Side

TYING in with the rumor that Wellington Koo will return to his native land is another authoritative whisper that Mme. Koo has purchased Shanghai's two most luxurious hotels, the Cathay and the Cathay Mansions. These glamorous caravanserai were owned by Sir Victor Sassoon, who has had a finger in almost every Far Eastern financial pie. Sir Victor, who's lame, far from handsome, yet a real fascinator, stems from a family which originated in Bagdad, made their first pile in oriental rugs, then moved on to bigger and better deals in England.

If Mme. Koo has bought the hotels, a great sum of hard cash must have changed hands. She is a daughter of the late Oei Tjong Ham, nicknamed the Rockefeller of the East, who amassed a colossal fortune via opium, copra, rubber, sugar. Though he had 33 children by a sympathetic series of secondary wives, he left much of his money to Mme. Koo and her sister, daughters of his No. 1 wife.

Mme. Koo does not hesitate to say that she dislikes Washington. Washington, in turn, flips no handsprings for Mme. Koo. One of the minor but potent points of irritation came when Washington ladies, working on the China relief drive, suggested that a garden party be given on embassy grounds. "What!" Mme. Koo is reported to have said. "Have a lot of Americans running over my lawns!"

Top Hat Tales

ASSISTANT Secretary of State Norman Armour, who left Monday for the Inter-American Conference at Rio, tells some lovely stories about earlier days in his far-flung diplomatic career. In 1918, during the final phase of the Russian revolution, he was embassy secretary when Bolshevik forces were closing in on Petrograd (now Leningrad). When it became evident Petrograd's defenders could hold out no longer, our embassy staff was moved to Velogda.

Before leaving, the secretaries burned papers, destroyed files, left the embassy building bare as a bone.

After emptying the last safe Armour had a bright idea. Tenderly, he placed his shiniest top hat inside, twirled the combination, then crisscrossed the safe with imposing red wax seals. He knew this gaudy display would prove irresistible to the Bolsheviks.

Months later he learned what happened. After vainly trying to work the combination, the Bolshevik soldiers blew the safe open. "If you'd been within 200 miles at the time," an embassy employe who witnessed the safecracking told Armour, "you'd have been shot on sight!"

Voodoo, Obviously

IN THE Hoover regime, Norman Armour was Minister to Haiti.

According to diplomatic etiquette, he resigned when Franklin Roosevelt took office, but was immediately reinstated.

"One of the first things you're to do for me in Haiti," wrote the new President, "is to retrieve a cask of rum I left in the Legation cellar in 1917." FDR, then in complete physical health, had made a horseback trip in Haiti that year.

As Armour suspected, the cellar was empty. So he bought a small cask of rum, dispatched it Washingtonwards with a conferee. Not long afterward he received a second letter from Mr. Roosevelt. The President, carefully avoiding mention of the word rum, commented: "It certainly is strange and deplorable how the best things shrink with age!"

Your Questions On Homemaking

I would like to know how to refinish dark maple-stained furniture with a new finish as blond as possible. I have removed the varnish and stain with varnish remover, scrapers, sandpaper, steel wool, and elbow grease. What next, please? I have already applied two coats of oxalic acid. The wood is apparently solid maple. B. J. B.

It sounds as though you've done a very efficient cleaning and bleaching job on this piece of furniture. Do you want it still lighter? If so, you might use one of the commercial furniture bleaches, which are stronger than oxalic acid. A "pickled" or "limed" finish would also make the wood appear lighter, if you like such finishes. They can be achieved by applying a coat of thin white paint, then wiping it off against the grain before it dries. Wood that has been bleached is usually finished with either shellac, wax, or both. Be sure to sandpaper before applying the finish—or the paint in the liming process—as bleaches raise the grain of the wood.) Limed wood is usually shellacked to seal in the liming. Use clear shellac and apply it in very thin coats—about three of them. Let each coat dry and sand lightly before applying the next coat. Finally, apply several coats of wax, rubbing each to a sheen.

My problem is scatter rugs that won't stay put. Recently I bought a new rug the back of which had been treated with some sticky substance that holds it in place. Will you help me find out what it is and where it can be bought, as I'd like to use it on my other rugs? H. W. E.

There's a special preparation on the market for painting rug backs to keep them from skidding, but it's not always possible to find it in the stores. Certain glues are recommended for the same purpose. Inquire about them at your paint dealer's. Also, there are "rug anchors" for sale in the rug sections of several department stores here. These are thin sheets of rubber to put beneath your rugs to hold them in place.

The label on a suit that I am considering buying says that the material contains "reprocessed wool." Just what is the meaning of this term? G. H. G.

Reprocessed wool, according to the Wool Products Labeling Act, is wool which has been made up into merchandise but has never been used by the consumer. Or it is wool that has gone through some of the processes necessary to make it into yarn, but is again reduced to a fibrous state and remade into some wool product. In the process, the fibers may be stretched and perhaps even damaged. However, damage can also occur to a new wool fiber when it's being manufactured. Some grades of reprocessed wool, therefore, have better value than new wool of lower quality. In making cloth, reprocessed wool is usually mixed with new wool. If the yarn is well-spun and the fabric well constructed, combinations of reprocessed wool with new wool or other fibers will and have given satisfactory wear for many years.

A large kettle, a few jars, and a handy wire jar holder are about the only equipment you need to can peaches by the boiling water bath method. It's rewarding work, even for apartment dwellers short on time and kitchen space

Easy to pack and process are wine spiced peaches. They'll serve as a delicious, flavorful garnish for roast turkey, chicken, or pork next winter

Sugar's Plentiful, Too

Bumper Peach Crop Challenges Canning Skill

This year's bumper crop of beautiful peaches presents a real challenge to both city and country homemakers.

In a season like this, it's thrifty to put up peaches, whether you pick them from your own trees, buy a bushel from a roadside stand, or a few pounds at the grocery store. You save a little on just one jar, and you save a lot on large-scale canning.

Careful picking is the first step in successful canning. Choose peaches that are sound, ripe, and firm. Be sure the background color of the skin has turned from green to whitish or yellowish, but don't can peaches that are getting mushy. Use them for jam, preserves, or fruit butter, or serve them fresh immediately.

Simplest Way

One of the simplest ways to can peaches is to pack them cold, cover with hot syrup, and process in a boiling water bath. The following are the latest directions for this method, issued by the Bureau of Home Economics and Human Nutrition of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Wash peaches first. To make them easier to peel, put them in a cheesecloth bag or wire strainer and dip them in boiling water, then in cold water. Remove skins; halve and pit the fruit. Drop immediately into water containing 2 tablespoons each of salt and vinegar to the gallon. This will keep fruit from darkening. Drain just before packing in jars.

Put the raw fruit in freshly sterilized jars, packing up to one half inch of top. Cover with boiling syrup, still leaving about one half inch of space. Use a heavy, medium or light syrup, made by boiling sugar and water together 5 minutes. (Use 1 cup sugar and 1 cup water for heavy syrup; 1 cup sugar and 2 cups water for medium; and 1 cup sugar and 3 cups water for light syrup). Remove air bubbles by working the blade of a table knife down the side of the jar. Wipe jar rim and rubber ring with clean, damp cloth and put on lid. If using a glass lid, put long wire bale over the lid, and leave the short wire up. If using a screw top, screw down tightly, then turn back ¼ inch.

Count Boiling Time

Put jars into kettle of hot (not boiling) water. Add extra water if needed to bring water an inch or two over tops of containers. Put cover on kettle and heat. As soon as water hits a rolling boil, start counting the time. Then boil gently and steadily for 25 minutes if using pint jars, 35 minutes for quarts. As soon as you remove jars from water, complete seals.

WINE SPICED PEACHES

An unusual canned delicacy that makes a fine garnish for poultry or pork is wine spiced peaches. To make 4 pints, use the following:

- 3 cups water
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup tokay, muscatel, or other dessert wine
- ½ cup lemon juice
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 3 inches stick cinnamon
- 10 whole cloves
- 12 firm, sound peaches

Cook sugar, water, wine, lemon juice, vinegar, and spices together for 5 minutes. Skin the peaches, but leave them whole. Cook the peaches in syrup until heated through (about 10 minutes). Pack them into clean jars. Pour syrup over peaches. Seal, but not tightly, and process in hot water bath 10 minutes. Remove from water and finish sealing.

PEACH BUTTER

Good fruit butter—not quite as sweet as jam and preserves and full of natural flavor—can be made with peaches. Remove skins, pits, and spots from peaches. Crush the fruit and cook it in its own juice. Stir constantly until the fruit is soft. Press through a colander, then through a sieve to remove all fibrous material. Measure the cooked fruit and add half as much sugar as pulp. Add one-fourth to one-half teaspoon salt to each gallon. Boil rapidly until butter is thick, stirring all the time to prevent scorching. Add one to two teaspoons mixed ground spices to each gallon. Pour butter while boiling hot into sterilized containers and seal immediately.

Work With People, Not Papers, Is Test of Good Executive

By Genevieve Reynolds

"Higher qualified supervisors who will spend 90 per cent of their time working with human beings is one of the great, progressive needs of government," declared Arthur Fleming, director of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, in a dinner address last night before the 82 members of Girls Nation.

He told the teen-age representatives from 42 States, who are attending the citizenship school sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, that only 10 per cent of a supervisor's time should be spent at a desk shuffling papers.

Many supervisors escape the hard task of dealing with human beings by deliberately concentrating on paper work, thus creating more and more red tape, believes Director Fleming.

Uncle Sam's Boss

His remarks were made during a background talk on the functioning of the United States Government as an employer. Pointing out that Uncle Sam is the largest single employer with his two million civilian employes in and outside the continental United States, he asserted, "I believe the Government should become one of, if not the most, progressive employer."

During the afternoon, the feminine politicos toured the FBI building, met in the old House Office building, went in the Majority Caucus Room, organized a moot Senate, cast electoral votes for the two-party presidential nomineers, confirmed nominations. Arising at 6:30 p. m. they toured the Supreme Court Building. Today the youngsters will continue sessions of the all-girl senate, listen to talks by Mrs. John Davis Lodge and Capt. Joy Bright Hancock, director of the Women's Reserve, U. S. Naval Reserve.

Girls Choose Cabinet

One of the highlights of the six-day sightseeing citizenship training school was the national convention held Tuesday night at American University to choose national officers. In a close campaign, George Ann Hicks of Edmond, Okla., who ran on the Nationalist Party ticket, defeated Mary Gay Woodruff of Warrensburg, Mo., for the Girl Nation's presidency. Miss Woodruff ran on the Federalist Party platform. The entire slate of the Nationalist Party was elected. Shirley Jean Helmke of San Francisco was named vice president.

Girls Nation Elects George Ann, 16, For Miss President

"POLITICIANS seem to waste a lot of time," observes pretty 16-year-old George Ann Hicks, newly elected president of mythical Girls Nation, a school of government being conducted this week by the American Legion Auxiliary at American University.

"I guess the political representatives get a lot done," smiles the Edmond, Okla., senior, "but they seem to take a roundabout way."

George Ann, who with 81 other teen-agers has been touring Government buildings and watching the United States Federal Government's functions, believes in going directly to the core of problems and settling them. There's no dilly-dallying with her. In less than an hour after her election had been confirmed yesterday, she had her entire Cabinet named.

The youthful president, who was a candidate on the Nationalist Party ticket, will be a senior in the Edmonds High School. A member of the school band for four years, she was vice president of the junior class last term. In addition, she has been a member of the student council and office assistant for the past two years.

George Ann plans to be a teacher—government and history are her leanings. "Teaching is the best means of inculcating a desire for world peace into the hearts and minds of the young," she says.

Vitally interested in international problems, she hopes to see a Girls World, similar to a Girls State, sponsored by the Legion Auxiliary.

Your Baby and Mine

Some Light on Sunlight for Junior

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Babies are born into a world of noise and light. It is to be expected that they will have to accustom themselves to both. It is unnatural for a baby to be kept constantly in a darkened room. In fact, in most hospitals, the babies sleep in a nursery that is made bright as sunlight with enormous lights.

This is only a temporary situation, of course. But the observation has been made that if a baby is wakeful in the middle of the night and a light is turned on in his room, he will stare at the light, become fatigued and go to sleep more quickly than if he were in a dark room—presumably more hospitable to slumber.

One grandmother argued with a young mother that the baby should not be given a sunbath because the light out-of-doors would be harmful. She also insisted the shades in the baby's room be drawn so the room would be kept in perpetual twilight.

This is nonsense. When the baby gets a sunbath, as he can in moderate weather from the second month and on, his back should be turned to the sun so his forehead offers a natural shade for his eyes. Or, a magazine or newspaper should be held so it shades the face.

Babies close their eyes tightly when out in the sunlight so their eyes would not be harmed, if inadvertently sunlight fell on their faces.

A baby should not be put in his bed so when awake he stares at a white wall on which sunlight is falling. He should not have sunshine falling on his bed to cause a glare. It would be too much of a strain for him to look about him in such a strong and he cannot close his eyes or sleep all of the time.

But the shades should be up when he is awake. The curtains prevent too much of a glare and this is his natural environment, anyway. The eyes need the light in order to get proper stimulation.

Embassy Circles Speculate On Pakistan's New Envoy

By Marie McNair

WHEN India severs all ties with the British Empire on Friday and becomes an independent country, there'll be the problem of choosing an envoy from Pakistan, that vast country's Moslem state.

Speculation in Indian diplomatic circles centers on Mirz Abul Hassan Ispahani, a Calcutta businessman and member of the Moslem League's working committee.

Youngist—he's 44—the candidate for the post from Pakistan will bring with him, if and when he comes to Washington, a wife and three children. Like so many of his countrymen, Mirza Abul Hassan Isaphani speaks English with an Oxford accent. He was graduated from Cambridge almost a quarter of a century ago. Last autumn he came to this country to participate as a guest speaker on a forum held in New York and he's generally conceded to be one of the most brilliant members of the Moslem League hierarchy.

THOSE two "look-alikes" the Meems, are a sister team no more. The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem are widely separated now, with Anne Meem McLean's marriage to Dr. Floyd Sterling Rogers taking her to Florida.

Dr. and Mrs. Rogers are to be permanent residents of St. Petersburg, in fact they're building a house there now. Mrs. Rogers young sons, are at the moment visiting their father, Ned McLean in Colorado.

Eleanor, now Mrs. Cecil A. Jamison is still in her apartment at the Westchester, waiting for the day when she and Captain Jamison can move into the house at 1917 23rd st., which they recently purchased and are remodeling. Promised for May, the house is still in a complete turmoil.

TOWN TOPICS:

Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett will give a stag cocktail party and reception on Friday at the Carlton for members of the Anglo-American Coal Conference which opened here yesterday. Headed by Sir William Strang, British political representative in Germany, the visitors from England are here to discuss Ruhr production.

Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, who had planned a summer-long tour of Europe, never got there; went to Cape Cod and the Adirondacks instead.

However, they'll take off today for another stay on the cape at Marston's Mills, where they'll be until after Labor Day. They will also hop over to Cotuit to see Mrs. Shouse's son-in-law and daughter, David and Joan Robertson, at their new summer home.

Even Wolf Trap Farm, their country place in Vienna, Va., is almost unbearable this week, says Mrs. Shouse. And the crops are suffering along with the rest of the Nation's products.

Mr. and Mrs. John de Sibour and their children, Jay and Stephanie, will spend most of September at Nantucket, Mass.

And . . . A card from Mrs. Morris Cafritz from Rockland Breakwater, Me. "This is the loveliest country," she writes. "No wonder Mrs. Stone (Harlan Fiske) was inspired to paint. The lakes are emerald, surrounded by violet hills; the bay, dimly blue."

Pepco Opens Bids Today On New Issue

By S. Oliver Goodman

Competitive bids will be opened today in New York City on 140,000 shares of new Potomac Electric Power Co. $50 par preferred stock. High bid on the new issue is expected to range from 3.60 per cent to 3.80 per cent dividend rates.

The 140,000 new shares will be used to redeem 70,000 outstanding shares of Pepco 5½ and 6 per cent preferred stock. Basis of exchange will be two shares of new $50 preferred for each share of old $100 par preferred, plus a cash adjustment.

Preferred stockholders not electing to exchange may turn in their shares at the redemption price of $107. Balance of the new issue will be offered to the public.

Refinancing was approved July 24 by Public Utilities Commission which stated that 5½ and 6 per cent rates on existing preferred stocks are "obviously far in excess of the current cost of preferred stock capital to a utility with a credit rating comparable to that enjoyed by Pepco. . . ."

TIME EXTENSION: Attorneys for six local banks will have until September 15 to file briefs in a tax appeal case involving about $100,000 on 1945 returns. Time extension was granted yesterday by Lawrence Koenigsberger of District Board of Tax Appeals, who also gave attorneys permission to file a joint brief on common issues. Institutions contend they are "saving banks," and should pay a 4 per cent rather than a 6 per cent tax on gross earnings. They also claim deductions on interest paid depositors. All banks in city are watching this case as guide. Corporation Counsel's ruling against certain deductions has defined gross earnings as gross receipts, banks claim.

Libby, McNeil & Libby has revised its contemplated financing program and will offer 15 million dollars of 20-year sinking fund debentures instead of preferred shares . . . Halsey, Stuart & Co. and associates yesterday offered $22,868,000 of Boston Metropolitan District 1⅞ per cent bonds at prices to yield 0.70 to 1.85 per cent.

AVIATION NOTES: United Air Lines net in second quarter dropped despite increased revenues. Net was $250,471, or 8 cents a share, compared with $1,353,601, or 71 cents a share in the same 1946 period. Morris, founder of Morris Plan system of banking . . . "We talked about a high consumption, high-spending economy during the depression. Now it's here. But most of us are too busy worrying about a recession to notice it," said J. A. Union Leader's Door Smashed In Baltimore Strike Flareup

Baltimore, Aug. 12 (AP).—An officer of the CIO shipyard workers union whose 13,000 members are on strike at four local yards reported the inner vestibule door of his home had been smashed early today.

The officer, H. C. Lundy, recording secretary of Local 31, said he was awakened by the crash to see a dark car speed away from his house. Lundy is an electrician with the Maryland Drydock Co.

Earlier, a spokesman for the union—regional director Walter H. Oakes of the industrial union of marine and shipbuilding workers of America—said pickets at three Bethlehem Steel Co. yards and at Drydock have "rigidly adhered to instructions" to refrain from any violence.

He made the statement in connection "with publicity" concerning a recent paint-bomb damaging of two homes, one of them belonging to an official of the Maryland Drydock Supervisors Association.

Formation of this independent union at Drydock and the question of representation of supervisors has been one of the main issues in the prolonged dispute.

The company, through President George H. French, has offered $1000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the paint-throwers.

The IUMSWA has called a mass meting of its strikers for Friday evening.

WINTER'S AHEAD...

. . . And there's no time like the present for seeing that your coal bin is filled, ready for the first chill day that heralds harsher weather to come! Have your dealer take your order now — don't wait until leaves fall, when the "last minuters" and "Johnny-order-latelies" swamp supply and delivery!

Coal in your bin is just like money in the bank — it's there when you need it. And "Fuel Satisfaction", the all-purpose bituminous coal mined along the Norfolk and Western Railway, because of its superior quality, is money in the bank that pays extra dividends of comfort, convenience and economy.

For the winter ahead, call for coal — but remember "Fuel Satisfaction"!

Dr. Newman New President At Va. Tech

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—Dr. Walter S. Newman was elected president of Virginia Tech today, Col. James P. Woods of Roanoke, rector, announced at the conclusion of the quarterly meeting of the board of visitors.

Dr. Newman has been vice president since May, 1946, and acting president since last Christmas when Dr. John R. Hutcheson became ill. At the same time that the board made Dr. Newman president they elected Dr. Hutcheson chancellor of VPI.

This action was taken, the board's resolution declared, "in recognition of the devoted and faithful service of Dr. Hutcheson to this institution through the years."

"We feel that in justice to him and the institution as well as the board should relieve him of his duties and burdensome responsibilities as president in order to promote his health and prolong his services to the institution."

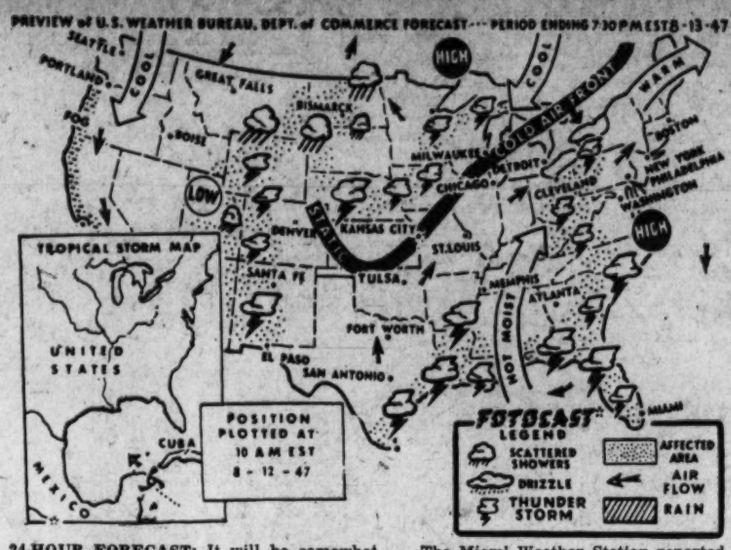
In his position as chancellor, Dr. Hutcheson will "act as the agent of the board in such matters as are delegated to him by the board." Both the appointment of Dr. Newman as tenth president of Virginia Tech and that of Dr. Hutcheson as chancellor become effective September 1.

The board reelected its own officers; Col. James P. Wood, rector, and chairman of the executive committee; and Vernon G. Eberwine, Suffolk; Edgar D. Nininger, Roanoke; Robert A. Russell, Rutsburg, and William E. Wine, Parker, members of the executive committee.

The board also approved a petition of the alumni association to install memorial chimes in the tower of Burruss hall. The chimes will be placed at a future date as part of a war memorial for which funds are being raised by the alumni.

National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Rev. L. A. Wagner



24-HOUR FORECAST: It will be somewhat warmer from New England to the Ohio Valley today. Maximum temperatures will be 90 degrees or above from the Gulf States through the Central Plains to the Lower Lakes and New England this afternoon as warm southerly winds sweep over these areas.

Coolest weather in the Nation will be reported in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Montana as cool air pushes its way across the Canadian border. Afternoon readings will be in the comfortable 80s in the Northern Plains and the Far West.

Scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms will occur along the east slopes of the Rockies and from the Gulf States to western New York. Warm air flowing over the Gulf of Mexico will pick up moisture, rise into giant thunderheads and release storms over affected areas in these sections. Showers and thunderstorms will develop behind the cold air front from Michigan to Nebraska.

The Miami Weather Station reported a tropical storm just south of Cozumel Island at 10:00 EST yesterday. Squally winds of 50 to 60 miles per hour were reported. This storm is expected to move northwestward about 15 miles per hour and be in the Gulf Wednesday. Shippers in the southern Gulf are cautioned against high winds.

Sunny weather is promised for the Nation today except in the Gulf States which will be overcast.

Airflow arrows on the FOTOCAST indicate the direction air is flowing around high and low pressure cells. Unequal heating over the earth's surface develops high cells where air is cold and low cells where it is warm. The pressure difference in these cells set the air in motion.

Maximum temperature forecasts include St. Louis, 99; Chicago, 98; Kansas City, 97; Milwaukee, 94; Pittsburgh and Albany, 92; Cleveland, 91; Washington and Hartford, 90; Philadelphia, 89, and New York, 88.

Man Charged With Social Security Leak

Baltimore, Aug. 12 (AP).—A former Social Security official was ordered held in $1000 bail today for Federal grand jury action on a charge of divulging confidential information, and FBI agents announced the arrest of a second man who was charged with bribery.

Fred Hallford, special agent in charge of the Baltimore FBI bureau, said Samuel C. Lipson of Brookline, Mass., was arrested today in his Boston office. He was alleged to be the man who induced Howard F. Quillin to give away the information.

Arraigned before U. S. Commissioner James K. Cullen, the 36-year-old Quillin admitted he had passed on confidential information and had received money from the other man as a sort of "gratuity."

The former head of the Social Security Board's information division here wept as he testified that at first he had refused to make his disclosures but had been induced to believe that no offense was involved.

Hallford said Lipson was engaged in probate work in Boston.

Specifically, Lipson was charged with violating the Federal bribery status by giving Quillin $50 or so in order to obtain unauthorized information from the official.

Quillin declared the seeker of information had insisted he was entitled to the data and Quillin could procure it for him quicker and with less red tape.

Annapolis Men Form Group On Recreation

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 12 (AP).—A municipal committee on recreation, composed of five aldermen and approved by the city council, was authorized today to deal with recreation matters here.

But the city council declined to apportion 20 per cent of parking meter receipts to pay a municipal recreation director as proposed by Alderman Charles Bernstein.

The committee was authorized after Anthony J. Sterago, president of the City Softball League and secretary of the Great Annapolis Recreation Association, urged setting up a municipal department of recreation.

Mayor McCready named Alderman Bernard Hoff as chairman to serve with Alderman Charles Bernstein, Jesse A. Fisher, Charles A. Oliver and Arthur T. Elliott.

Appointment of the committee was the upshot of another bombardment of city council by a group of teen-agers who want something done about recreation in the city.

Bonuses Held No Relief for Damages

Richmond, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—Payment of year-end bonuses and overpayments made to empolyes in certain weeks do not relieve an employer of the obligation to compensate his workers for deficiencies in other work weeks or from the obligation to pay liquidated damages, the U. S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today.

These conclusions were stated in opinion written by Circuit Judge Morris A. Soper in a case which the appeals court remanded to the Baltimore District Court for further proceedings.

The Roland Electric Company appealed from a decision in the lower court entering judgment in favor of several of its employes for overtime compansation, liquidated damages, and attorneys' fees.

The appeals court agreed with the lyower court in rejecting the company's defense that the deficiencies complained of in certain weeks were offset by excess payments in other weeks and by year-end bonuses.

The case was remanded to the lower court because some of the workers' claims are barred by Maryland's three-year statute of limitations.

Md. Artillery Given A-Bomb Blast Problem

Camp Ritchie, Md., Aug. 12 (AP).—One unit of Maryland's National Guard will go into summer maneuvers next week pretending that an atom bomb has just wiped out Baltimore.

That's the problem which will confront the 110th Field Artillery Battalion. Lieut. Col. J. Purley Cooper and his batteries from Pikesville, Westminster and Bel Air will have the mission of beating back a mythical enemy armored column that is supposed to land from Chesapeake Bay after the atom bombing.

The enemy armor is supposed to be heading for Pittsburgh. Colonel Cooper's troops will emplace their guns along the Waynesboro Pike, north of here and just across the Pennsylvania State line. The maneuver starts Monday night.

GOP Names 11 To Run for Va. Senate Seats

Richmond, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—Virginia Republicans will put up candidates in 11 of the State's 36 senatorial districts, records of the State Board of Elections indicated today.

Flooded by registered letters from political party chairmen throughout the State, the board was not able to tabulate the number of contests for the House of Delegates. A complete roundup was expected to be available tomorrow.

These are the Senate contests in which Republicans will appear:

Fourth Senatorial District (Amherst, Bedford and Nelson)—Republican S. P. Steward vs. Democrat Senator I. Paul Wales.

Fourteenth District (Carroll, Floyd and Grayson)—Republican S. Floyd Landreth apparently will have no Democratic opposition here.

Fifteenth District (Smyth, Washington, and Bristol)—Homer C. McFadden, Republican, against George M. Warren, Democrat.

Sixteenth District (Lee and Scott)—Republican C. S. Pendleton, sr., against Senator Lloyd M. Robinette, Democratic incumbent.

Twenty-first District (Franklin, Montgomery, Roanoke County and Radford)—Republican Senator Ted Dalton vs. Ben Chapman, Democratic nominee.

Twenty-fourth District (Page, Rappahannock, Rockingham, Warren and Harrisonburg)—Republican Senator J. A. Garber vs. Raymond Guest, Democratic nominee.

Twenty-ninth District (Fairfax, Prince William and Alexandria)—Thomas Graham, Republican, vs. Senator Andrew W. Clarke, Democratic.

Thirtieth District (King George, Lancaster, Northumberland, Richmond County, and Westmoreland)—Sanley G. Adams, Republican vs. Senator Robert O. Norris, jr., Democratic incumbent.

Thirty-fifth District (City of Richmond)—Mrs. Vernon Browning, Republican vs. Democratic nominees named August 5.

Reported Republican opposition in the city of Norfolk faded last night with an announcement of Norfolk Republican committeemen that no candidates would be placed in the field for either the Senate or the House.

The State Board of Elections early this afternoon had received no word from Stanley S. Garner, delegate from Newport News, who trailed well behind Senator L. U. Noland in last weeks' senatorial primary in the thirty-third district.

Garner has announced publicly that he intended to jump the Democratic Party by running against Sentaor Noland again in November as an independent.

Kessinger to Run

Covington Va., Aug. 12. (AP).—Temple L. Kessinger, former President of Local 675, United Paper Workers of America, CIO, today qualified as a candidate for the House of delegates on an independent ticket. Kessinger was endorsed by the CIO Political Action Committee at a mass meeting of local 675 last night.

Mrs. Powell Candidate

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—Mrs. Dorothy V. M. Powell, local attorney, today announced her candidacy as an independent for the House of Delegates from Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania County in the November election.

She will oppose William J. Gibson of this city, who was renominated in last Tuesday's democratic primary. It will be Mrs. Powell's second attempt to wrest the seat from Gibson. She was defeated in 1943 by 52 votes.

Midshipmen, Cadets Leave Today on Test

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—Final preparations were being made today for the departure tomorrow of the approximately 68 warships which will take part in Operation Camid II.

Midshipmen aboard the battleships New Jersey and Wisconsin, the carriers Kearsage and Randolph, and the destroyers Cone, Stribling, O'Hara and Meredith, joined other ships of the task force late Monday afternoon. Today West Point cadets, who have been undergoing orientation at the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek Annex 3, embarked aboard LCTs (landing craft tank) at Annex 2 and then transferred to the transports on which they will travel up to Bloodworth Island tomorrow.

The fleet will sail at 5:30 a. m. tomorrow, and early Thursday morning the "softening up" of Bloodworth will begin. Cadets will watch from LSTs (land ships tank) and LCTs as heavy guns and Army, Navy and Marine Corps planes strafe and bomb the beach.

Due to the shallowness of the water around the target area no actual landings will be made, but the landing craft will approach to within about 1500 yards of the shoreline, the whole process simulating an actual landing.

Tangier Sound Oyster Menace Growth Tested

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 12 (AP).—The Tangier Sound screwborer population—a constant menace to baby oysters—underwent a check today by three State fisheries experts.

The marine animal suffered a severe setback in the spring of 1945 when fresh water floods rushed into the Chesapeake Bay, but it has been having a steady growth ever since.

Shellfish culturist Ralph Hammer said he, G. Francis Beavan and Fred Seiling of the Department of Research and Education, would take up specimens on oyster shells and make a count of egg cases to determine the female screwborer population.

"We have a good set of oysters in Tangier Sound, largely because the oyster's enemy was given a hard time," he said, "so we want to see what the growth of drills has been in the area."

The study may influence the oyster planting policy of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

Hammer said the United States Fish and Wildlife Service had been studying drill life, but research results so far have been inconclusive. He explained that screwborers grow on oyster shells and penetrate the baby oysters with a tip like a dentist's drill. Then shell opens and makes a meal for a drill.

The drills require about 15 parts of salt per thousand in water, as compared with 9 parts per thousand needed by oysters—hence, fresh water is the drill's own conqueror.

Hearing Is Slated In Boulevard Bus Dispute on Sept. 10

Muirkirk, Md., Aug. 13.—A hearing in the Safeway Trails, Inc.-Greyhound Bus Lines case on service along Baltimore blvd. has been set for September 10 in Prince Georges County Circuit Court Upper Marlboro.

Miss Ruth Otto, secretary of the Boulevard Bus Riders Association, said that Judge Charles C. Marbury will conduct the hearing.

Safeway Trails .nIc., has interstate rights along the boulevard, while Greyhound has intra-state operation rights.

Miss Otto said that a victory was won by the boulevard riders last week when Judge Marbury overruled demurrers filed by the Public Service Commission and the Greyhound Co. The demurrers sought to prevent the bus riders from having access to the court.

United States Navy carrier pilots shot down 6484 enemy planes in World War II. United States losses were 452.

The Late Miss Elliott Caused Joe to Be Tardy

This is a scream. It's from Mrs. Joseph Miller (nee Elliott), of 24 Farragut pl. nw.

While Mrs. Miller was single and still dating, her beau of the moment promised to come by for her at 8 o'clock one night.

He arrived thirty minutes late and offered this explanation:

He had gone to the right apartment—but the wrong floor. A woman answered his knock.

"I'm calling for Miss Elliott."

"Miss Elliott," said the woman, "is dead."

"Dead!" he exclaimed in horror. "She can't be. She just can't be."

The woman was sympathetic, but firm.

"I'm sorry to be the one to impart such sad news," she replied, "but Miss Elliott is dead."

He left, visibly shaken. But then he recovered his presence of mind sufficiently to check the address again—and eventually he proceeded to the right floor, and married the girl. Mrs. Miller says:

"I get cold chills when I think what would have happened if he hadn't discovered his error."

AD VALOREM

The Cardinals haven't even overhauled the Dodgers yet, but the football season appears to have opened anyhow.

Richard Geske, of 1108 Allison st. nw., sends along his favorite yarn about a game played a dozen years ago between Pittsburgh and Wisconsin.

Near the end of the first quarter, the Panthers scored a touchdown. As the teams lined up for the try for the extra point, a Pitt lineman said to a Wisconsin tackle:

"Sorry," replied the Badger, "but we don't get paid for playing."

In the succeeding quarters, the Panthers got into high gear and started to shove their touchdowns over in bunches. With the score 27 to 0, the teams lined up for another conversion try and the Pitt lineman again addressed the Badger tackle:

"Hey, Mac—now I understand why you guys don't get paid."

SAILS TALK

This note is from Stanley Golden, secretary of the local lodge of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped:

"AFPH is sponsoring a moonlight cruise on Friday, on the S. S. Potomac. Tickets may be obtained by calling REpublic 1121.

Nuf sed, Stapley.

SUGGESTION

F. J. A. writes:

"Now that the Senate committee is finished with it, how about moving the Hughes-Brewster show to Constitution Hall?

"As it stands, it wouldn't be worth more than a 15-cent admission charge. But if they'd throw in some of those Hollywood babes we heard so much about, maybe they could change a quarter."

Grin and Bear It

"My committee will investigate those wild communistic parties in Hollywood . . . and we'll get the facts if we have to attend every one of them!"

Leonard Lyons

But Mike Had Better Not Claim It

Hollywood.—Mike Romanoff has applied for a passport and soon will go abroad. This will be the first time that Romanoff, now a naturalized citizen, will travel on a legitimate passport. Federal Judge Knox, by sentencing Romanoff to 90 days in the Federal jail, made it possible for Mike to remain in this country. When Mike was released he spent the night sleeping in Central Park. He awoke, took a walk down Lexington ave. and met Judge and Mrs. Knox, who took him to tea. Romanoff was placed on probation and the probation officer made it so difficult for him that Mike was returned to court accused of "a bad attitude." Knox finally decided to drop the probation. "Just write me a letter now and then," he told Romanoff. Mike, who now has a business for which he was offered $300,000, writes to Knox every three months.

During his probation period Romanoff had to assure the probation officer that he was gainfully employed. "I work for Robert Benchley as a research assistant and secretary," Mike reported to the officer. "I get $100 a week." The officer called Benchley to verify this. Benchley, of course, confirmed the employment. After a year of this the probation officer was still suspicious. "I assume you're filing an income tax return on your salary from Mr. Benchley," said the officer. Mike nodded. "Tuesday is the last day to file," said the officer. "Report on Wednesday with a copy of the tax return" . . . Mike therefore had to file a tax return on income which he never received and paid $144 in taxes which were never due.

Mrs. Charles Guggenheimer was being interviewed about the Lewisohn Stadium concerts, which she has been operating for almost 30 years. The reporter asked her: "Mrs. Guggenheimer, tell me frankly—what is your dream?" Mrs. Guggenheimer thought for a moment and then gave a frank answer—"To break even."

The only thing which might bring June Havoc back to Broadway is Edna Ferber's play for the Theatre Guild . . . Miss Havoc received rave notices from the critics for her performances in musicals and straight dramas. Then she waited three years for movie offers, and now at last they've come—from every studio in Hollywood. "It's a slow take on a slot machine," she sighed last night, "but the jackpot is fabulous."

Last week Rene Clair, the French director who left Hollywood to return to Paris, issued a statement criticizing the "cinematic isolation" of the movie makers here and suggesting some co-ordination with French efforts. "There's a great difference between making pictures in France and making them in Hollywood," was Ernst Lubitsch's comment on Clair's statement. "For instance, a French movie can open with a husband storming into his wife's room shouting: 'You were unfaithful to me last night.' That's a fascinating opening. In France the wife may explain it and be reconciled with her husband, but in an American film, under the Johnston office code, the wife would have to die for her transgression."

Burt Lancaster is negotiating to do the screen adaptation of Sinclair Lewis' "Kingsblood Royal." . . . Milton Shubert, who is recuperating from a hospital siege, leaves for the Navy hospital at San Diego shortly for examination preparatory to his discharge from the Navy. Shubert, who acquired the American rights to Puccini's music, hopes to have the musical ready for Broadway in January. In the meantime he's received and rejected high offers from every film company . . . Ben Blue says that he comes from a town which is so small that the train stops there only for laughs.

Telephone

The telephone appears to be . . . An instrument we use . . . To call the different numbers that . . . We are inclined to choose . . . But it is more than that because . . . It keeps our hearts in touch . . . With all the friends and relatives . . . Who mean so very much, . . . It is a business calling card . . . To help us sell and buy . . . Or get a reservation when . . . We want to ride or fly . . . The telephone enables youth . . . To make or break a date . . . And it is indispensable . . . To our affairs of state . . . And so we ought to keep in mind . . . That when we are alone . . . The world is just as close to us . . . As any telephone.
